

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry, no matter how small, should be recorded to ensure the integrity of the financial statements. This includes not only sales and purchases but also expenses and income. The document also highlights the need for regular reconciliation of accounts to identify any discrepancies early on.

In addition, the document provides a detailed breakdown of the accounting cycle, which consists of eight steps: identifying the accounting cycle, journalizing, posting, determining debits and credits, preparing a trial balance, adjusting entries, preparing financial statements, and closing the books. Each step is explained in detail, with examples provided to illustrate the process.

The document also covers the preparation of financial statements, including the balance sheet, income statement, and statement of cash flows. It explains how these statements are derived from the accounting records and how they provide a comprehensive view of the company's financial performance.

Finally, the document discusses the importance of internal controls and the role of the auditor. It explains how internal controls help to prevent errors and fraud, and how the auditor's role is to provide an independent opinion on the accuracy of the financial statements.

INTRODUCTION.

THE history of the Hellenic people, from the days of their struggle with Persia, down to their submission to the Western Conquerors, is a story which can never tire, if only for its wealth of striking and pathetic incidents. But it is the intellectual greatness of the Greeks, and their important influence upon the world, which invests with a peculiar interest everything connected with them. In poetry, in philosophy, in art, they have shaped the thoughts of all succeeding time. And the history of the Greeks, thus unique in its interest, lies open to us in a literature equally original. So rich is their historical literature, that the very brilliance of Herodotos, Thukydidēs, and Xenophon almost blinds us to the sterling common sense of a Polybios, or the painstaking labours of a Diodoros. Nor do we always remember how much valuable history we owe to the accurate notes of travellers like Strabo and Pausanias. Even the very gossip of Greek political circles survives for us in the jests of Aristophanes, or the anecdotes of Plutarch and Athenæos.

The literary documents bearing upon Greek history form a very wide field, upon which the labours of many generations of scholars have been spent, with the result of recalling for the modern reader the very colour and movement of ancient Greek life in the pages of Thirlwall, Grote, Curtius, and other great writers. But while the literary data have thus been subjected to the most careful sifting, and have been assuming a more complete and final form, another and supplementary class of documents has been acquiring new prominence. The liberation of Greece, and the increasing facilities for travel in the Levant, began early in this century to bring to light a larger number of archæological monuments connected with classical Greece than had ever been known before; and it suited the scientific temper of the time to turn to these with an instinctive energy for their careful investigation.

To a certain degree any and every object recovered from the ruins of antiquity will help in the illustration of ancient life. But the study of archæology rises almost to an equality with the study of ancient literature, when we find in a work of art the interpretation of the spirit of a period, or when the excavation of an ancient site unlocks the secret of its history. It is true that the very richness of Greek literary records has deprived the evidence of Greek archæology of some of its importance. Nevertheless the evidence of Greek coinage has never failed to engage the attention of historians; and any scholar may see at a glance how intimately Greek politics are illustrated by Greek coinage, by turning over the numismatic manuals lately issued by the British Museum¹.

With good reason I have reminded the reader of the historical importance of Greek coinage; for in approaching the study of inscriptions, it will be instructive to compare our work with the work of the numismatist. Now the coin and the inscription have this in common, that both of them are works of art, and both of them also bear a written record. But although the coin usually contains a stamped legend, yet it obviously belongs more to archæology than to literature. When however we turn to inscriptions, the literary interest is the primary consideration, the archæological interest stands second. The inscription combines, it is true, some of the interest of a piece of sculpture, together with that of a manuscript. The archæologist is concerned to note the metal, or the kind of marble employed; the ornamentation, if any, as an index of the age and the style of art-cultivation; the size, shape, and manner of the lettering, as invaluable marks of the date and locality. But as a literary document the inscription has all the interest of an archetype manuscript: it is an authentic record of the time to which it refers. Whatever amount of information the inscription may convey, be it little or much, its evidence will at least be welcomed with eager curiosity. It is impossible to linger, for example, over those awkward-looking numeral letters in the financial inscriptions of the Periklean time, without a peculiar sense of satisfaction. We are here face to face with state documents which Perikles may have issued, and Thukydides may have read.

Such reflections, however, it may be said, belong merely to the sentiment of the dilettante. What is the real value of Greek inscriptions to the serious student of Greek history? And here I might perhaps regret that my Manual appears at a moment when the greatest of Greek historians has been lately strengthened in his just hold upon English scholars by a translation which will become classical. For Professor Jowett is so engrossed by the genius of his author and by the paramount value of Greek literary records, that he can find little to glean from the duller study of inscriptions. Some may find a pleasure (he says) 'on Greek soil, under the light of the blue heaven, amid the scenes of ancient glory, in reading inscriptions, or putting together fragments of stone or marble.' But 'they add to our knowledge' only 'a few facts.' We must return to the study of the literature of Hellas, 'finding some little pleasure by the way (like that of looking at an autograph) in deciphering the handwriting of her children amid the dust of her ruins!'. We may trace in this estimate a lingering echo of that controversy which long continued between the last and greatest representative of the old school of purely literary scholarship, and Augustus Böckh, the founder of the newer school. It seemed impossible for Godfrey Hermann to understand those new methods of study, wherein (so far from Greek literature being dethroned) archæology and literature combine to call to life again the features of classical civilization. But since the time of Böckh, whose patient learning was only equalled by his brilliant generalizations, it has become not so much a maxim as an instinct with scholars to regard archæology as the handmaid of literature, and to study the life of ancient Hellas as a whole, illustrating it by every light that can be thrown upon it, whether from the genius of her authors, or the witness of her inscriptions, or the progress and decay of her art, or the physical features of the country, or the excavation of ancient sites.

The most devoted students of inscriptions will be the first to urge that too much must not be expected from them. If we leave out of sight the more private inscriptions, and confine ourselves to those which illustrate history, and have a place in this collection, we find that they nearly all consist of decrees of public assemblies, laws, treaties, letters of kings and others, votive offerings, or statements of public accounts, and these all share the usual reserve and formality of official documents. The information they yield is indirect. It is like examining mediæval charters, or financial state-papers, or the letters and other documents of the Record Office, for the illustration of English history. You must know how to interrogate the documents rightly, in order to get at the information they contain.

We shall express precisely the strength and the weakness of inscriptions as bearing upon history, when we say that they give us almost always just the information we least expected. They supplement, even more than they confirm or illustrate, the writings of ancient historians. For the inscriptions at present discovered are but a few fragments from the wreck of the ancient world. They were originally deposited chiefly in temples or other public buildings, where they might be at once safe and accessible, and these buildings have been long ago destroyed by earthquake or invasion, and their ruins have often for centuries served as convenient quarries for the successive inhabitants of ancient sites. We need not therefore wonder that though some 4000 Attic tombstones have been read, yet we have hardly ever come upon the epitaph of any historical character. Among the numberless public documents found upon the Akropolis, only now and then do we light upon the names of men known to fame, like Nikias, Alkibiades, Demades. Only occasionally do we meet with documents (such as Nos. 39-60), which a reader of Thukydides would have expected to find. Considering the large extent of colonization in Greece, it is singular that No. 29 is the only known decree upon the subject, and this deals with an almost unheard-of settlement. But it is this unexpectedness which constitutes the chief interest of inscriptions; they afford information which we cannot get elsewhere.

A more serious defect arises from the fact that so few localities in Greece have been at all made to yield up the inscribed monuments which lie buried beneath. On some few sites indeed, chiefly the sites of ancient temples, systematic explorations have been made, as at Delphi, Priene, Olympia, Ephesos, Delos, Dodona. To these may be added the excavations of Mr. Newton at Knidos, Halikarnassos, and Branchidæ, those of the Athenian government on the Akropolis or the Great Theatre, and the German excavations at Pergamon. Upon these and other sites inscriptions have been diligently searched for and found. But for the rest, we have to trust to the chance discoveries made in the course of modern building on ancient sites. Thus by far the largest yield has been from those localities which are still in modern times the sites of flourishing towns. Here in the continual course of the demolition of old buildings and the erection of new, large numbers of documents have come to light. Let any one glance at a collection like Böckh's Corpus Inscriptionum Græcarum, and see how large a proportion comes from places like Athens, Thessalonika, Smyrna, and Rome, and he will understand how partial and accidental is our present acquaintance with the inscribed monuments of ancient Greece. But small as it is in comparison with the ancient total, it is sufficiently large to occupy the energies of many students, and to afford valuable results.

It is a serious drawback that the marbles which survive to us are often miserably chipped and broken. The result is that their value often becomes apparent only after a wide and careful study of similar documents¹. To those whose business it is to edit these inscribed texts, no fragment is without value. A tiny bit of marble in an English collection may just complete some broken slab recently discovered in Greece, so that you cannot pronounce a priori any fragment to be unimportant. Those who open a volume of inscriptions for the first time think very differently. They are naturally disappointed at the incompleteness of most documents, and they find a stumbling-block in what appear to be the capricious restorations of the editor. Why should such license of conjecture be allowed in an inscription, when no sound critic would deal so with a manuscript? The answer is twofold. In the first place, the language of inscriptions (especially honorary decrees, treaties, and other kinds) is often formal and stereotyped; the same phrases recur, with very slight variation, from one end of Greece to the other. This sameness and formality of phrasing makes the restoration of many inscriptions an easy matter. And secondly, where the general sense of a fragment is tolerably clear, it is allowable to supply by way of suggestion a few words that may help the reader to follow the probable sequence of syntax and meaning. In such cases the editor is bound to point out that no certainty attaches to the verbal restorations suggested: they are only to serve as a convenient commentary.

The growing amount of materials has called into existence a school of students, with Augustus Böckh as their founder, whose task it is to collate, edit, and arrange the ancient texts; and further, to gather from the edited texts the historical and other results of their studies. Böckh's Political Economy of Athens, well known in England through its translation by Sir G. C. Lewis, was an early and a signal example of this kind of study. A similar value belongs to Köhler's Urkunden und Untersuchungen zur Geschichte des delisch-attischen Bundes, Dumont's L'Éphébie Attique, Foucart's Des associations religieuses chez les Grecs, Lüders' Die dionysischen Künstler, and many others, some of which are enumerated at the end of this Introduction. Neither could such manuals as the Griechische Alterthümer of K. F. Hermann, or of G. F. Schömann, have been written, but for that study of inscriptions to which Schömann especially was devoted.

It is from works like these that we can best appreciate the benefits conferred upon Greek studies by the discovery of inscriptions. But the reader of such a book as Curtius' History of Greece will not unfrequently have been reminded of the Epigraphical pièces justificatives available for the illustration of Greek history. And Mr. Capes, in his lectures on University Life in ancient Athens, has shown that the curious information afforded by inscriptions is sometimes entertaining; although anything more dreary than the original documents upon which Dumont and Dittenberger had based their descriptions, I cannot conceive.

In the present volume it seemed best, with the consent of the Delegates of the Press, to confine myself to documents directly illustrating history only. Of course a very large number of Greek inscriptions relate to religious ceremonies, agonistic contests, and concerns of private life; or have to do with legal and constitutional antiquities rather than with historical events. If it is thought desirable, another volume embracing these classes of documents could easily be prepared, which would probably exceed the present volume in interest, inasmuch as the subjects it would illustrate are less familiar to the readers of Greek literature.

This volume therefore contains only Historical inscriptions. And in presenting these to the reader, I have denied myself the pleasure of enlarging upon the archæology of the subject. Thus I have been content to print the texts (with three exceptions¹) in cursive only, without trying to represent the originals in facsimile, or in various alphabets of uncial type. For the original appearance of the marble concerns rather the professed epigraphist, than the historical student, to whom the inscription is merely one more historical document. At the same time, no pains have been spared to secure the accuracy of the texts. Whenever the original was out of my reach, the copies only of the most recent and most careful editors have been followed. Sometimes I have had access to unpublished copies or impressions, through the kindness of friends. Nearly all of my texts have been edited before; nevertheless, whenever possible, I have verified the published texts by a reference to the marbles. The result is, that whenever my texts differ from the copies already published, it is because I have to offer a better and completer text. Whenever the size of the page allowed it, the lines of text are printed just as they stand on the marble, so as the better to show at a glance what portions of the stone are mutilated. When the text is printed consecutively, as in ordinary Greek prose, the original division of the lines is marked by vertical strokes (e.g. $\rho\theta\theta|\rho\theta$).

In the notes and explanations nothing has been admitted which did not strictly belong to the matter in hand. Words, however curious, which have found a place in Liddell and Scott's Lexicon, are passed over without remark. And legal and constitutional terms are not dwelt upon, when any reader can refer for explanation to Smith's Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities, or Pauly's Real-encyclopädie, or the admirable works of Schömann, Antiquitates Juris publici Græcorum and Griechische Alterthümer. Nothing, again, is more valuable to the student of Greek Dialects than the evidence of inscriptions—a subject which has been already dealt with in H. L. Ahrens' De dialectis, in Cauer's Delectus, and other works. Now, although many of my texts suggest points of dialectical and grammatical interest, these points will receive very little comment, since this selection was made with a very different purpose, and it was desirable to avoid wordiness.

There is an impression of unfamiliarity and strangeness about the style and expression of inscriptions, and there are many scholars to whom they are an unknown and uninviting region. I am, however, sufficiently sanguine to hope that this Manual may be the means of bringing some students face to face with the original marbles. Any one who has worked much at these will readily echo the confession of Böckh: 'However dry may seem the task of tracing the worn or broken characters upon the cold surface of the stone, yet the existing books on this subject sufficiently prove what a genuine enthusiasm many have felt for these time-honoured monuments of ancient civilization,—and I frankly own myself of their number¹.' With this hope, I have been glad, whenever it was possible, to include in this selection any monuments which are close at hand, either in the Ashmolean and the Marble Room at Oxford, or in the Library of Trinity College, Cambridge, or are almost equally accessible to the English student in the Department of Greek and Roman Antiquities at the British Museum. The Oxford reader e. g. is invited to work out carefully the printed texts, the originals of which are in the University Collection. If he will then, book in hand, consult the marbles word by word, he will in a few hours have learned more about Greek inscriptions than any written account could have taught him. If he wishes to proceed further into the subject, the best introduction is Franz's *Elementa Epigraphices Græcæ*¹.

An editor of inscriptions who desires to conciliate his reader's goodwill, must chiefly rely upon orderly arrangement of his materials—lucidus ordo. The arrangement of this volume is strictly chronological; and a date, more or less precise, is assigned to each document. The date of inscriptions has, in most cases, to be determined by internal and circumstantial evidence, the style of the characters being a principal indication. Neither is it always easy to connect an inscribed decree or treaty with known historical events. Though I do not share the scepticism of Professor Jowett, I hope I have used due caution, and have endeavoured in every case to draw a distinct line between what is fairly certain and what is as yet unverified hypothesis. The reader is throughout referred in the notes to sources where he will find the date and other details concerning the inscriptions fully reasoned out.

The divisions of the work follow the obvious periods into which Greek history seems to fall. It will be seen that the documents from Athens alone outnumber those from all the rest of Greece. This is partly owing to the greater historical importance of Attic inscriptions, requiring a larger proportion to be therefore included in an historical collection. But it is also true that no Greek government was so careful in inscribing² its public records as the Athenian; and moreover at Athens far more has been done than elsewhere in the way of excavation and the discovery of ancient monuments. It will be also noticed how at Athens (as elsewhere) the inscribed records became more numerous, and also more intolerably wordy, the later we proceed in the history. I have therefore spared the reader's patience by admitting very few of these later verbose decrees. Specimens, however, are given of various kinds, and examples have been selected as far as could be from every part of Greece. It is perhaps tedious and disappointing to examine the many hundreds of commonplace honorary decrees which are being turned up in every ancient site in Greece proper, in the islands, and in the Thracian and Asiatic colonies. And yet even these have a value. It is a fact of immense interest to the historical student to recognize the general resemblance of the formulas in which are cast the records of all the Greek-speaking race, from the time of Perikles onward. We are accustomed to dwell upon the isolation which prevailed among the Greek cities. We note how seas and mountains and diversities of race kept the Greeks asunder. The strange fact is that they should have been so sundered. For in truth the most rigid separation existed side by side with the closest resemblance and general unity. Their most divergent dialects were yet mutually intelligible. Their games, their religious centres, were bonds of unity. And though throughout the whole of that wide area every little town was a separate centre of corporate life, though the titles of their magistrates, and the names of their political and social institutions might differ, yet the type of civil government everywhere developed was the same with insignificant variations; or, if you looked more closely, you found but two types, the democratic and the oligarchic, and these admitted of very slight modifications.

It would have been possible to prolong the selection down to the times of Byzantine history. But it is evident that the political history of Greece as such comes to an end with the Roman Conquest. Accordingly, only a few documents have been included after the 'Liberation' decreed by Flamininus, B.C. 196. As we proceed later, although the Greek people still retained their own peculiar character, and their national existence was unaffected by conquest, yet their historical documents became less and less important; the centre of things has shifted to Rome. What the interests of the Greeks were under the Empire, can be read in the Orations (far from uninteresting) of Aristides or Dion Chrysostom. We need by no means endorse the slighting estimate of the Greeks given by Tacitus and Juvenal. It was impossible for the Romans to do justice to the Greeks; they inevitably came into contact with them at their worst. Although their historical inscriptions are of little interest after the Roman Conquest, yet some of the most valuable inscriptions relating to the religious customs and other more private institutions of Hellas belong to these later days. The Greek religion, and all that gathered round it, still survived: and the very absence of great political interests will alone account, not only for the exuberance of later Greek rhetoric, but also for that excessive and universal growth of agonistic contests and religious festivals which marked the days of Greek subjection.

I have kept closer to Grote than to Curtius in the preparation of the volume. It did not suit the design of the great German historian to discuss fully at every step the grounds of his conclusions, and give the evidence on which they rest. Although in his later volumes his references to documents become more frequent, yet it is clear that Curtius feels himself to be writing πρὸς εἰδώρας,—he is giving a brilliant representation of Greek national life, as the outcome of varied researches in which he himself has borne a distinguished part, and in which Böckh, Schömann, Kirchhoff, and Köhler may be taken as representative names. For most English students Grote's History is of paramount value. True that only in his later volumes does Grote awake to the importance of epigraphical evidence, and then he only cites it cautiously and at second hand. But from first to last the reader is brought face to face with the existing literary evidence. Herodotos, Thukydides, Xenophon, Demosthenes, acquire life and voice, and are made to tell us their own tale of what they themselves had seen and heard. Not only in its human and political interest does Grote's work possess a fascination for the reader, but it is a valuable intellectual discipline to be shown at every step the processes of historical enquiry, and to be made by the great historian not only a listener to his story, but a sharer in his investigations. There is therefore this practical reason for citing Grote so often in this volume, that the reader will there find all the references to ancient historians which bear upon the events under discussion. Worthy to compare with Grote for his patient sifting of ancient texts, comparable to Curtius in his archæological learning, is Droysen, who, in the last edition of his Hellenismus, has given a picture of Alexander's career, and of the terrible convulsions which followed his death. Certainly he has infused a new life and interest into a period which is of deep importance to the world's history, although most of us are repelled from it by the ghastly monotony of bloodshed and despotism, or are only attracted by a biographical rather than a historical interest.

Besides a continual reference to these principal modern historians, the reader will be in every instance informed where to find the various documents best edited and discussed. Since the publication of Böckh's Corpus Inscriptionum Græcarum, great numbers of inscriptions have been discovered; and an attempt has been made to edit a complete collection of those from Attika in Kirchhoff's Corpus Inscriptionum Atticarum, three volumes of which have appeared. But for the inscriptions from other parts of Greece, and for many of the Attic ones also, you have to search up and down the volumes of the Archäologische Zeitung, the Monatsberichte of the Berlin Academy, and the various German, French, and Greek periodicals; not to mention the numerous dissertations which issue from the foreign Universities. I have endeavoured to glean from all of these the most interesting results of epigraphical studies; but much may have been overlooked. The task did not allow much room for originality; but the views of others have not been adopted without weighing them, and where possible some improvement has been added.

The wants of English readers have been steadily kept in view,—readers such as are to be found in growing numbers especially among the students of our Universities, who are well acquainted with Greek literature, and with the best modern writers upon classical civilization, who have perhaps visited Greece and the Levant, and have conceived a lively interest in classical archæology. To such readers this volume is commended, as a humble attempt to further Hellenic studies. Perhaps some may wish the collection were more complete and comprehensive. At first I had thought of collecting into one chapter all the inscribed letters of kings, into another all inscribed laws, into another all known treaties, etc. But if that had been done, this volume would have assumed a very different shape, and would have included a great deal that is of little value. And, in fact, such an exhaustive collection of various kinds of documents did not fall within the scope of the book. Neither have I included the famous Parian Chronicle (C. I. G. 2374). For valuable as it is to the chronologer, we must not forget that it is merely a private document drawn up about the third century B. C., probably by some schoolmaster for the instruction of his pupils. It was with more regret that I forbore to include the whole series of Quota-lists from B. C. 454 to 420. But the fact is that however important these documents are (being no less than authentic lists of the Athenian Confederation), yet it is certain that all who wish to study them to advantage must go straight to Köhler's Urkunden (or to Böekh's Staatshaushaltung, vol. ii.), where not only the texts are exhibited at large, but all sorts of questions arising out of the texts are fully discussed. It would have done the reader little service to present him with the complete series of texts, without reproducing also a great part of Böekh's and Köhler's remarks. It seemed wiser therefore to insert four or five especially interesting specimens of the series, with suitable notes; and to refer the reader to previous writers for further information. For similar reasons I have not made any selections from the Athenian admiralty records, which occupy the third volume of Böckh's Staatshaushaltung.

I have received help from so many friends in the course of the work, that I must be content to make this general but not less sincere acknowledgment of their kindness. For the book, as it stands, I am alone responsible. I have endeavoured to be accurate; and those who have worked at such subjects the most will be the kindest critics of a task wherein the countless points of detail afford as many opportunities of error.

- KIRCHHOFF, Corpus Inscriptionum Atticarum: intended to include all known Attic inscriptions. Vol. i., 1873, by Kirchhoff; a Supplement to vol. i. was published by him in 1877: these give the inscriptions before Euklid's archonship. Vol. ii. part 1, 1877, by Kühler, gives the Decrees alone from Euklid down to Augustus. Vol. iii. part 1, 1878, by Dittenberger, gives all the more public inscriptions of the Roman period. I have cited this work as C. I. A.

KUMANUDES, Ἀττικῆς Ἐπιγραφῶν Ἐπιτύμβιοι, Athens, 1871. A complete collection of all known Attic funeral inscriptions, up to its date of publication. The preface gives curious information concerning the formulas of Attic epitaphs, and the character of Attic tombstones.

LE BAS, Voyage archéologique en Grèce et en Asie Mineure, with continuation by MM. Waddington and Foucart. It chiefly consists of inscriptions, comprising i, ii, iii, volumes of Texts, and 1, 2, 3, volumes of Commentary. Vols. i. and 1 (Attique) will not be completed, since they are superseded by Kirchhoff's Corpus Inscriptionum Græcarum. Vols. ii. and 2 (Péloponnèse et Grèce du Nord) are in course of completion. Vols. iii. and 3 (Asie Mineure) are practically complete, and of the highest value, especially to the student of Roman provincial administration.

RANGABÉ, Antiquités helléniques, 2 vols., 1842-1855. Chiefly Attic inscriptions; in great part superseded by Kirchhoff's Corpus, though the commentaries are generally valuable.

WOOD, Discoveries at Ephesus, 1877; with Appendix of Inscriptions.

NOTANDA.

Restorations between brackets. Words and letters supplied by conjecture are put within square brackets []. Words or letters omitted by the stonemason's mistake, and supplied to make good the sense, are put within curved brackets ().

Peculiarities of spelling. The reader will soon become accustomed to the frequent assimilation of the final consonant to the initial consonant of the following word: as, τὰλ λόγον for τὸν λόγον, ἐμ πόλει, etc. More peculiar are ἐ στήλην for ἐς στήλην, ἐ στήλη for ἐν στήλη, ἐς Σάμφ for ἐν Σάμφ. I have not noticed all these cases where they occur; nor have I followed recent German editors in running such words into one another, as τήμβουλήν. The Greeks of the fourth century B.C. appear to pronounce ΗΙ and ΕΙ so much alike, that ΕΙ frequently is substituted for ΗΙ in inscriptions. I have warned the reader of this from time to time, for though τῶι βουλεῖ explains itself, εἰήσατο for ἡήσατο is less obvious.

Attic numeral signs are easily remembered. Χ=1000 (χίλιοι), Η=100 (HEKATON), Δ=10 (δέκα), Γ=5 (πέντε). These numerals, when used of money, always refer to drachmas; unless other coins are specified, as Τ=1 talent, Σ=1 stater. A single drachma is denoted by Ϛ, an obol by Ϡ, and a half-obol by Ϙ. Certain combinations are employed, as Ϟ=5000, ϙ=500, Ϛ=50. Again Ξ=1000 talents, ϙ=500 talents, ϙ=50 talents, and so on. To take an example: ϠΤΧΧΧϙΗΗϙΔΔΔΓϚϚϠϠϠ on p. 97, means 11 talents, 3787 drachmas, 4½ obols.

Value of Attic money. The reader may be glad to be reminded that 6 obols=1 drachma; 6000 drachmas (or 60 minas)=1 talent. The value of a drachma was about 10d., or about a franc; an Attic talent was worth about £250.

The Quota-lists in Parts ii, iii, will require the reader to remember that the proportion of tribute payable to Athens was $\frac{1}{60}$, or μᾶ ἐπὶ ταλάντων. The quota therefore which is set down against the name of each state must be multiplied by 60, to get at the amount of tribute payable by the state.

The Attic civil year began with the month Hekatombæon (July), as did also the Olympian year. It was then that the Archons and other magistrates entered upon office, and public accounts were reckoned from this date. The year B.C. begins therefore six months before both the Attic civil year and the year of the Olympiad. In other words, the year B.C. comprises the last six months of one archonship and the first six months of another.

Prytanies. The Attic year was divided into ten periods (πρυτανείαι) of 35 or 36 days each. Each tribe 'prytanized' in turn (ἐπρυτάνευε) in an order determined by lot, in the person of its 50 βουλευταί. These 50 πρυτάνεις during their term lived in the πρυτανεῖον, and acted as the 'Government' or Cabinet for the time being. The addition of two tribes in B.C. 307 made the cycle of prytanies coincide with the twelve months. Soon after the archonship of Euklid it became the rule for the ἐπιστάτης, or daily foreman of the πρυτάνεις, to appoint by lot a πρόεδρος out of each of the tribal sections of the βουλή excepting the φωκὴ πρυτανεῖουσα. Among these nine πρόεδροι one was further appointed ἐπιστάτης, and thus to the πρόεδροι and their foreman were transferred the duties of presiding in the sittings of the βουλή and ἐκκλησία. The πρυτάνεις and their ἐπιστάτης retained only their more formal duties, such as the custody of the public seal, and the performance of the periodical sacrifices of the βουλή.

PART I.

BEFORE THE PERSIAN WAR.

B. C. 700-490.

THE date of the introduction of writing among the Greeks has been a matter of keen controversy, especially from the time of Wolf. It is now generally admitted that the Greeks had learned the art of writing from the Phœnicians as early as the 9th century, if not before. For a long time however it would only be employed for such limited and private uses as the writing of names on lots (κλήροι). Probably its more extended use began in the temples, where inscribed offerings (ἀναθήματα) and registers of priests and of sacrifices existed at an early date. The first public use of writing was perhaps in making official record of agreements between allied cities; and then by degrees it came to be generally employed for public documents. It is likely that the Greeks did not begin to inscribe upon marble, until they had experimented with the use of writing on leaves, metal, and wood. Certainly the cramped and awkward characters of the earliest extant marbles prove that writing must have been an unfamiliar art in Greece as late as the 7th century (see Franz, Elementa Epigr. Gr., Introd.; Bergk, Gr. Literaturgesch. i. 201 foll.).

The earliest recorded example of an inscribed offering is the Quoit of Iphitos, thus described by Pausanias (v. 20, 1; cp. 4, 4; Plut. Lycurg. 1): ἔστι δὲ ἐνταῦθα (in the Herseon at Olympia) καὶ ἄλλα ἀναθήματα καὶ ὁ Ἰφίτου δίσκος ὁ δὲ Ἰφίτου δίσκος τὴν ἐκεχειρίαν ἦν ἐπὶ τοῖς Ὀλυμπίοις ἐπαγγέλλουσιν Ἡλείοι, ταύτην οὐκ ἐς εὐθὺ ἔχει γεγραμμένην, ἀλλὰ ἐς κύκλου σχῆμα περιέεισιν ἐπὶ τῷ δίσκῳ τὰ γράμματα. It contained the formula for proclaiming the sacred armistice; Iphitos, with Lykurgos, being named upon it as the founder of the Olympian Festival. There is no reason to suspect this of being a late forgery; but it is very doubtful whether it was inscribed before the 1st Olympiad (B.C. 776), the date at which the definite chronology of Greece begins. Some very early inscribed fragments however have been recently discovered at Olympia; see Kirchhoff, Arch. Zeit. for 1879, 1880 passim. The Theban inscriptions which impressed Herodotos with their antiquity (v. 58 foll.) can hardly be earlier than the 7th cent. (Bergk, ibid. p. 205).

Of the other kind of sacred inscriptions, the temple-registers, or ἀναγραφαί, no original specimen has survived. They are often mentioned by ancient writers, though it is doubtful how many were really of high antiquity (see Böckh, C. I. G. i. p. 63; Müller, Dorians, Eng. Tr. i. p. 149; and Comm. on Thuk. ii. 2, and Preller, de Hellenico in his Ausgew. Aufsätze, p. 51, on the register of the Argive priestesses). But a very interesting transcript exists of one such Register, in an inscription from Halikarnassos (C. I. G. 2655), the opening of which is thus restored by Böckh:

 τοῦ Ἀ]ριστοκλέους μεταγράψαι [ἐκ τῆς ἀρχαίας σ]τήλης τῆς παρεστῶσης τοῖς ἀγ[λμασι τοῖς
 τ]οῦ Ποσειδῶνος τοῦ [Ἰ]σθμίου τοὺς γεγ[ενημέ]ους 5 ἀπὸ τῆς κτίσεως κατὰ γένος ἱερεῖς τοῦ Πο[σειδῶνος τοῦ κατιδρυθέντος ὑπὸ τῶν τὴν ἀποικί[αν ἐκ Τροίης] ἀγαγόντων Ποσειδῶνι καὶ Ἀπόλλω[νι.

Then follows a list of the priests, beginning with 'Telamon son of Poseidon' and other mythical names, but of course comprising also the true names and succession of historical priests. Böckh imagines this transcript to have been made not earlier than the 2nd cent. B.C. But the ancient original he assumes to have been inscribed about the time of the latest recorded priest, i. e. probably 691 B.C.

From Megara; now in the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris. The text from Böckh, C. I. G. 050; Kleine Schriften, iv. p. 173.

Ὀρρίππῳ Μεγαρήσ με δαίφρονι τῆδ' ἀρδὴλον μῶμα θέσαν, φάμα Δελφίδι πειθόμενοι· ὅς δὴ μακίστους μὲν ὄρους ἀπελύσατο πάτρα πολλὰν δυσμενέων γὰρ ἀποτεμνομένων, 5 πρᾶτος δ' Ἑλλάνων ἐν Ὀλυμπίᾳ ἔσταφανώθη γυμνός, ζωννυμένων τῶν πρὶν ἐνὶ σταδίῳ.

Epitaph on Orsippus, who won the foot-race at Olympia B.C. 720 (Ol. 15), and freed the Megarid from the encroachments of the Korinthians: composed probably by Simonides (B.C. 556–467 B.C.), when this tomb was erected by command of the oracle. The present inscription is not older than the 4th century A.D., but is clearly a copy of the old inscription, then wearing out. Pausanias (i. 44. 1) appears to have seen the original epitaph: Κοροίβου δὲ τέθαπται πλησίον Ὀρσιππος, ὃς περιεζωσμένων ἐν τοῖς ἀγῶσι κατὰ δῆ τι παλαιὸν ἔθος τῶν ἀθλητῶν ἐν Ὀλυμπίᾳ ἐνίκα στάδιον δραμῶν γυμνός. φασὶ δὲ καὶ στρατηγούντα ὕστερον τὸν Ὀρσιππον ἀποτεμέσθαι χώραν τῶν προσόλων. Cp. Scholiast and Comm. on Thuk. i. 6; Grote, pt. 2. ch. 9.

Early naval power of Korkyra, B. C. 600, or earlier.

Epitaph from Korkyra in memory of Arniadas, who had died in battle in the Ambrakian gulf. Ross, Archäol. Aufsätze, ii. Taf. 21, 22; Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 79 foll.

Σᾶμα τόδ' Ἀρνιάδα· χαροπὸς τόνδ' ὤλε|σεν Ἀρης
 βαρνώμενον παρὰ ναυσ|ἴν ἐπ' Ἀρ[ρ]άθθιοιο ρηοφαῖσι, πολλὰν ἀριστεύ[φ]οντα κατὰ στονόε[σ]σαν ἀφυ[τ]άν.

This could hardly be the 'earliest known sea-fight' recorded by Thukydides as having taken place B.C. 664 (i. 13); it appears to have rather been a fight on shore, at the mouth of the Arachthos. But the fight was very probably between Korkyræans and Korinthians; both Herodotos (iii. 49) and Thukydides (i.

25) mention the early struggle between Korkyra and her mother-city for the supremacy by sea, and for the monopoly of trade with the inhabitants of Epeiros and Illyria; cp. Grote, pt. 2. ch. 23. Riemann has recently published a new facsimile of the epitaph (Recherches arch. sur les Iles Ioniennes, i. Corfou, p. 42); he reads ἀριστεύοντα: and so Vischer in Rhein. Mus. ix. 383 foll.: τ must be a blunder of the stone-cutter.

Psammetichos II. and his Greek mercenaries, B. C. 594-589.

On the legs of one of the colossal statues before the great temple of Abusimbel in Nubia, C. I. G. 5126; Lepsius, Denkmäler aus Egypt. u. Aethiop. xii. Abth. vi. Bl. 99, Gr. 531, also 534, 536 and Bl. 98. Gr. 515-519, 528-530; Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 31 foll.; 'Αμοιβ. = δ' Ἀμ. and Οὐδ. = δ' Εὐδ. in α are suggested by Blass, Hermes, xiii. 381; Wiedemann, Rhein. Mus. 1880, p. 364 foll.

- (a) Βασιλέος ἐλθόντος ἐς Ἐλεφαντίαν Ψαματίχου, ταῦτα ἔγραψαν τοὶ σὺν Ψαματίχῳ τῷ Θεοκλ[έ]ως ἀνή, ἀλόγλωστος Δηχεποτάσμπτο Αἰγύπτιος δὲ Ἄμασις.

5 ἔγραφε δ' ἀμὲ Ἄρχων Ἀμοιβίχου καὶ Πέλεκος Οὐδάμου.
(b) Ἐλεσίβιος δ Τήϊος.
(c) Τήλεφός μ' ἔγραφε δ Ἰαλύσιος
(d) Πάβις (?) δ Φολοφώνιος σὺν Ψαμματ[ίχῳ].
(e) ὄκα βασιλεὺς ἤλασε τὸν στρατὸν τὸ πρῶτον.

It has been much doubted whether the king mentioned in (a) is Psammetichos I (B.C. 654-617), or Psammetichos II (called Psammis by Herodotos, but Psamatik in Egyptian monuments), who reigned B.C. 594-589. I follow A. Wiedemann (Rh. Mus. l.c.) in adopting the later date. It appears that certain Greek and other soldiers in the service of the Egyptian king had marched with him as far south as Elephantine. Here they took boats and explored the river ἐς δ ἀνή, 'as far as it let them go up it,' i.e. up to the second cataract. On their way back they wrote their names at Abusimbel, in memory of the exploit. Wiedemann makes Δηχεποτάσμπτο (or Δηχεπότας Ἴμπτου) a Karian (Herod. ii. 154), his name being neither Egyptian nor Semitic, nor resembling any known African dialect. He thinks Κέρκιος to be intended for Κέρτιος, Kerti in the Egyptian texts signifying the surface of water which broadens from the first cataract as far as Elephantine. In (a) we may take 'Psamatichos son of Theokles' to be the son of a Greek mercenary of Psammetichos I (Herod. ii. 152), who named his son after his master.

Kroisos and his gifts to the Ephesian Temple: about 550 B. C.

On five fragments of moulding (torus) from the bases of columns found by Mr. Wood in excavating the temple of Artemis at Ephesos: they manifestly belong to the old temple burnt down by Herostratos. They are now in the British Museum.

(a) [Βασιλεὺς] Κρ[οῖσος ἀνέ]θηκ[εν].

(b) Βα[σιλεὺς Κροῖσος] ἀνέ[θηκεν].

(c) [. ἀνέθηκ]εν.

My restored readings are highly probable, as the words of Herodotos prove (i. 92): Κροίσω δὲ ἔστι καὶ ἄλλα ἀναθήματα ἐν τῇ Ἑλλάδι πολλὰ . . . ἐν δὲ Ἐφέσῳ, αἱ τε βόες αἱ χρύσειαι καὶ τῶν κιόνων αἱ πολλαί.

The age of the Tyrants, 6th century B. C.

From the ruins of the temple of Apollo at Branchidæ ('on a fragment in the wall of a house on the Sacred Way'); Newton, Discoveries at Cnidus, Halicarnassus, etc. p. 787, N^o. 726; Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 14.

Ἴστια[ῖος | ἀνέθ]ηκε τῶ[πόλλω]νι.

It is inscribed βουστροφιδόρ, and is from the base of some offering dedicated at Didyma, perhaps by the famous Tyrant of Miletos. Grote, pt. 2. ch. 34.

The age of the Tyrants, 6th century B. C.

On the front of the chair of one of the seated figures from the Sacred Way at Branchidæ: Newton, Discoveries etc. 784, pl. xcvi.; Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 16; in the British Museum (Archaic Room).

Χάρης εἰμι ὁ Κλέσιος, Τειχιούσης ἀρχός, ἔγαλμα τοῦ Ἀπόλλωνος.

Inscribed βουστροφιδών: we may take Chares to have been one of the many 'tyrants' who flourished in the Greek cities of Asia under the Persian rule between 550 and 500 B.C. The statue was intended as a portrait of Chares; ἄγαλμα is 'an offering in honour of' the god (see Böckh, C. I. G. vol. i. p. 7).

The age of the Tyrants, 6th century B. C.

The famous Sigeon inscription; in the British Museum. Inscribed βουστροφιδών. On a pillar 7 ft. 7½ in. high, 1 ft. 7½ in. wide at foot, 1 ft. 6½ in. at top, 10½ in. thick. Böckh considered it an 'archaizing' forgery of the age of the Ptolemies: but its genuineness has been fully vindicated by Kirchhoff and others: Böckh, C. I. G. 8; Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 18.

(b) In Attic dialect and characters:—

The pillar supported a portrait-head of Phanodikos; the socket into which it fitted still remains. The monument thus resembled a terminal figure, or Hermes. Kirchhoff's view is that Phanodikos was tyrant of Prokonnesos in the sixth century, B.C. (like Metrodoros, Herod. iv. 138, i. e. B. C. 515). Being on good terms with the government of Sigeion, then in the hands of the Athenians under the Peisistratids (Herod. v. 94; Grote, pt. 2. ch. 30), he presented a bronze (?) krater and tripod-stand for it, together with a wine-strainer, for the use of the Sigeian pytaneum. He accompanied this gift with a pillar to commemorate himself, inscribed in his Ionic home by Prokonnesian workmen (inscription a). When the Sigeians erected the monument, they re-engraved the inscription in Attic lower down on the pillar, nearer the eye-line, with one or two improvements (inscription b). The bust of Phanodikos loquitur: 'And if I am receiving injury, take care of me, Sigeians. Now Æsopos made me, and his brethren.' Both a and b are βουστροφηδόν. Compare a similar twofold document from Kyzikos, discovered 1874: Hermes, xv. p. 92.

Treaty between Eleians and Herseans:

B. C. 550-500.

A bronze tablet brought from Olympia by Sir W. Gell in 1813; now in the British Museum. See facsimile in Böckh, C. I. G. 11; Franz, El. Ep. Gr. p. 64. Every letter is clear. The dialect is Æolic, which was spoken both by the Arkadians and Eleians (Strabo, 333): the date assigned is that of Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 102, cp. Arch. Zeit. 1880, p. 68; Grk. Inscr. in B. M. No. CLIV.

 ελέστα αἶτε δᾶμος, ἐν τ' ἐπίρρω κ' ἐπέχ-10 οῖτο τῷ ἑσταῦτ' ἐγραμένῳ.

Those who are curious about the dialect may consult Böckh, ad loc., and Ahrens, de Dial. i. 225. I append a version: 'Ἡ ῥήτρα τοῖς Ἠλείοις καὶ τοῖς Ἡραιεῦσι. συμμαχία ἂν εἴη ἑκατὸν ἔτη· ἄρχει δ' ἂν τὸδε· εἰ δέ τι δέοι, εἴτε ἔπος εἴτε ἔργον, συν-εἶεν ἂν ἀλλήλοις, τὰ τε ἄλλα καὶ περὶ πολέμου· εἰ δὲ μὴ συνείεν, τάλαντον ἂν ἀργυρίου ἀποτίνοιεν τῷ Διὶ Ὀλυμπίῳ οἱ καταδεδηλη-μένοι λατρευόμενον. εἰ δὲ τις τὰ γράμματα τάδε καταδηλοῖτο, εἴτε ἔτης εἴτε τελεστής εἴτε δῆμος, ἐν τῷ ἐφίερῳ ἂν ἐνέχοιτο τῷ ἐνταῦθα γεγραμμένῳ.

'The covenant between the Eleians and the Heraeans. There shall be alliance for a hundred years: and this (year) shall begin (it): and if either need help, whether of word or deed, they shall stand by one another, in all other affairs, and in respect of warfare: and if they stand not by each other, they who have so offended (Zeus) shall pay a talent of silver to Olympian Zeus, as reparation. And if any one shall injure this inscription, whether private man, or magistrate, or village, (the offender) shall be liable to the sacred fine herein written.'

The Eleians after a long struggle had dispossessed the Pisatans of the management of the Olympic temple and games (B.C. 580), which appear to have been in the hands of Elis at the time of this treaty (Grote, pt. 2. ch. 7 fin.). The Spartans, now masters of Messenia, and extending their conquests in the direction of Arkadia and Argolis, found it to their interest to play the part of protectors of Elis in its sacred prerogative (Grote, ibid.; E. Curtius, Gr. Gesch. i. p. 196). As for Arkadia, its several states, with no power of mutual cohesion, were either drawn into the Spartan alliance (as Tegea, Mantinea, Orchomenos), or formed other connections as fortune might dictate. This tablet shows us the Heraeans associating themselves with the now influential Eleians. It would be an anachronism to speak of Elis or Heraea, for neither was united into a city (συνουικισμός) until the fourth century, B.C. (Strabo, p. 337); till then they had dwelt κατὰ κομὰς: hence δῆμος in the treaty.

The Peisistratids : B. C. 527-510.

In 1877 there was dug up part of the cornice of the altar dedicated by Peisistratos son of Hippias, who had served the office of archon during his father's rule : it contains the inscription cited by Thukydides, vi. 54. For facsimile see C. I. A. Supplement to vol. i. p. 41 ; and Ἀθήναιον, vi. p. 149.

Μνήμα τόδε ἦς ἀρχῆς Πεισιστ[ρατος Ἰππίου] υἱός θῆκεν Ἀπόλλωνος Πυθ[ί]ου ἐν τεμένει.

The date falls between the death of Peisistratos the elder, B.C. 527, and the expulsion of Hippias in 510. Thukydides says that in his time the inscription was 'dimly legible' (ἀμυδροῖς γράμμασι) : but the letters are to this day as fresh as when first cut, so that he must refer to the fading of the colour with which the letters had been painted in.

Argive victory over the Korinthians : about B. C. 500.

On a bronze helmet from Olympia, discovered 1795 : in the British Museum. See Rose, Inscr. Græcæ, pl. viii ; Böckh, C. I. G. 29, and addend. p. 885 ; Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 73. The line is quasi-metrical, like many early inscriptions, and forms an irregular senarius.

Τὰργ[εῖ]οι ἀνεθεν τῷ Δίῳ τῶν Κορινθίων.

Perhaps the Argives had won this victory in alliance with Megara. Pausanias, vi. 19. 9, speaks of a primitive alliance of these two states against Korinth, but his chronology is unsound. Grote, pt. 2. ch. 9.

PART II.

FROM THE PERSIAN WAR TO THE PELOPONNESIAN WAR.

Simonides' Epitaph upon the Megarians who fell in the Persian War, at Artemision, Mykale, Salamis, Plataea.
Between 478-467.

The inscription is edited by Böckh, C. I. G. 1051, from a careless copy made by Fourmont. One whole pentameter and several words are restored by mere conjecture to make the sense clear. The public tomb in honour of the Megarian heroes of the Persian war is mentioned by Pausanias, i. 43. 2: Εἰσὶ δὲ τάφοι Μεγαρεῶσιν ἐν τῇ πόλει· καὶ τὸν μὲν τοῖς ἀποθανοῦσιν ἐποίησαν κατὰ τὴν ἐπιστρατείαν τοῦ Μήδου, τὸ δὲ κ.τ.λ. Our inscription however is not the original seen by Pausanias, but a restoration (as the heading declares) by Helladios the high-priest (of Apollo Pythios, C. I. G. No. 1065, cp. 1059, 1066) probably as late as the 4th cent. A. D. That Helladios restored the inscription from the decaying original monument, and not from a book, appears from various indications of antiquity which betray themselves amongst the barbarisms of a late time. There is little doubt that the epigram was composed by Simonides, who is known to have been partial to Megara (Schol. Theokrit. xii. 27, Σιμωνίδης ἐπαίνει τοὺς Μεγαρεῖς). I give the inscription as edited by Böckh, l. c. and Kleine Schriften, iv. p. 125. The marble seems to be lost.

Heading drawn up by the restorer.

Μέχρις ἐφ' ἡμῶν δὲ ἡ πόλις καὶ ταῦρον ἐνήγιζεν (sc. τοῖς ἥρωσι τούτοις).

Observe that θύειν is said of the gods, ἐναγίζειν of heroes: so Herod. ii. 144: Pausan. ii. 10. 1.

Inscription on the bronze stand of three intertwined serpents, which supported the gold tripod dedicated at Delphi by the Greeks after Plataea: about B. C. 475.

The golden portion was destroyed by the Phokians in the Sacred War (Paus. x. 13. 5); but the bronze serpent-pillar remained in situ, until Constantine removed it to his new capital, where it still remains. I give the text from the very full account of this monument in Déthier and Mordtmann's Epigraphik von Byzanzion (Wien, 1864), p. 3 foll. Cp. Gibbon, Rom. Emp. ch. xvii.; Kirchoff, Studien, p. 97. One of the serpent-heads still exists in the armoury of St. Irene.

Λακ[εδ]α[ί]μόν[ιοι] Ἀθ[α]ν[α]ῖ[οι]	12th coil.

10 Μεγαρήσ Ἐπιδαύριοι Ἐρχομένιοι	10th coil.

	Φλειάσιοι	9th coil.
	Τροζάνιοι

	Λεπρεᾶται.

The surface of the 13th coil has been flattened back from its due curve to receive the present inscription: here therefore it is supposed that Pausanias had inscribed his arrogant epigram:

Ἑλλάνων ἀρχαγὸς ἐπεὶ στρατὸν ὄλεσα Μήδων
 Πausanias Φοῖβῳ μνάμ' ἀνέθηκα τόδε.

(So in Anthol. i. 133. xliii; though Thukydidēs, i. 132, Plutarch, De Malig. Her. fin., Suidas, s.v. Πausanias, Demosthenes, In Neer. p. 1378, give it in κουή, and in the 3rd person, which is less characteristic.) At the ends of the 10th, 9th, 7th coils are what seem like remains of letters; but no names can be deciphered, and the marks are perhaps accidental. Omitting these, we get 31 names, including all the 27 names given by Pausanias, v. 23, as inscribed upon the corresponding monument at Olympia, with the addition of 4 omitted by him, viz. Θεσπιῆς, Ἐρετριῆς, Λευκάδιοι, Σίφνιοι (for these see Herod. vii. 202, 222, 226; ix. 28; viii. 46, 48). Observe that there is an uniform arrangement of the names, 3 on each coil; except on the 4th and 7th. Τήνιοι is inscribed more deeply than the rest and in Ionic, having probably been added afterwards by the Tenians themselves (by permission of Sparta) on account of their one ship's adventure (Herod. viii. 82); on the 4th Σίφνιοι was perhaps similarly inserted; the 3rd coil is smaller and has only space for 2 names. The whole monument is a striking confirmation of Herodotos (see Rawlinson, Note A on Bk. ix. 81).

Rise of Athens: Themistoklean walls, B. C. 478.

On two blocks of marble discovered in 1831 in building the house formerly occupied by King Otho, and still used as the Chamber of Deputies, in the NE of the city. The blocks were found amongst other masonry of the Themistoklean walls, and formed one of the private monuments which were seized upon for the hasty fortification of the city. Ross, *Arch. Rise of Athens: Themistoklean walls, B. C. 478.

A base of a funeral monument of white marble, which once had above it a figure in relief (comp. the Aristion gravestone, Rangabé, Ant. Hellen. i 21): found in June 1873, in the NE of the city, near the royal stables, among the massive remains of the ancient walls. Lüders in Hermes, vol. vii. p. 258; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 483.

This and the preceding verify the words of Thukydides (i. 93): τοῦτ᾽ ἐν τῷ τρόπῳ οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι τὴν πόλιν ἐτείχισαν ἐν ὀλίγῳ χρόνῳ· καὶ δῆλη ἡ οἰκοδομία ἐστὶ καὶ νῦν ἔστιν ὅτι κατὰ σπουδὴν ἐγένετο· οἱ γὰρ θεμέλιοι παντοίων λίθων ὑπόκεινται καὶ οὐ ξυνευρ-

The Sicilian cities—Hiero : B. C. 474.

On a bronze helmet now in the British Museum, discovered at Olympia in 1817 by Mr. Cartwright. For facsimile see Rose, Inscriptions Græcæ, pl. viii; Böckh, C. I. G. 16.

Ἰάρων ὁ Δεινομένεος
καὶ τοὶ Συρακόσιοι
τῶ Δι Τυράν' ἀπὸ Κύμας.

From the Etruscan spoils (τὰ Τυρράνά) dedicated by Hiero (Ἰάρων, Dorice) to Zeus at Olympia, after his victory over the Etruscans in the great sea fight before Kyrie, recorded by Diod. xi. 51, and celebrated by Pindar, Pyth. 1. The Tyrrhenum Mare owed its name to this early θαλαττοκρατία of the Etruscans. The inscription of Hiero, the professed 'tyrant,' is more modest than that of Pausanias upon the Platæan tripod (Thuk. i. 132).

The Ionians after Mykale : Teos, about B. C. 470.

One of several στῆλαι containing imprecations upon traitors and enemies of the state. The text is from Böckh, C. I. G. 3044, omitting some of his conjectures, which seem hazardous. Lines 42-53 were re-read by Le Bus, at Teos, the rest is now lost; Voyag. Arch. Pt. v. No. 59. Kirchhoff (Studien, p. 12) places the date soon after Mykale.

We know that the greater part of the population of Teos had sought a new home at Abdera, rather than submit to the Persian yoke in B.C. 546 (Herod. i. 168; Strabo, 644). After Mykale, no doubt, a good many returned home (Strabo, ibid.) to Teos; and their arrival would not tend to allay the disturbances which may well have arisen within the city upon the sudden overthrow of the Persian dominion. That there were disorders is shown by the appointment of an αἰσυμνήτης, an extraordinary magistrate resembling the Roman dictator (Dionys. Hal. v. 73), whose office is defined by Aristotle as αἰρετὴ τυραννίς (Pol. iii. 9, 5) during which the ordinary annual magistrates (τιμοῦχοι) were suspended. By the εἰθνός also we should understand an extraordinary magistrate, perhaps appointed to inquire into the management of public moneys. The mention of piracy shows that the Athenian ascendancy had not yet been fully established in the Ægean: by the βάρβαροι we understand the Persians, whose yoke had just been thrown off. Whatever was the nature of the disturbances at Teos, at all events upon the restoration of order, the government enjoins these public curses, part only of which remains. On the employment of public imprecations by the Greeks see Schömann's Griechische Alterthümer, ii. p. 254, and comp. the cursings uttered at Athens by the archon every year, and by the herald at the opening of every ἐκκλησία (Plut. Solon, 24; Isokr. Paneg. § 157).

In § 2 Böckh restores περιγ[ενομένους] λοι[μ]οῦ προδο[ίη], thinking that the crime is the desertion of plague-stricken persons who have been landed somewhere away from the city, and so survived. κιάλλης appears to be a land ληστής.

Revolt of the Helots: B. C. 464.

On the round base of the statue of Zeus mentioned by Pausan. v. 24. 1. Discovered in the recent excavations: Δαμαρῶ. ἐν Ολύμπῳ, Pl. xxxii. fig. 1; E. Curtius, in Arch. Zeit. 1877, p. 49.

[Δέξο Φάνα]ξ Κρονίδα [Ζ]εῦ Ὀλύμπιε καλὸν ἀγαλμα Ἰλήφ [θυ]μῶ τῷ Λακεδαιμονίῳ.

Pausanias (l. c.) has not given the inscription quite accurately :
 τοῦ ναοῦ δέ ἐστιν ἐν δεξιᾷ τοῦ μεγάλου Ζεὺς πρὸς ἀνατολᾶς ἤλιου, μέγεθος μὲν δωδέκα ποδῶν, ἀνάθημα δὲ λέγουσιν εἶναι Λακεδαιμονίων, ἠνίκα ἀποστᾶσι Μεσσηνίοις δεύτερα τότε ἐς πόλεμον κατέ-στησαν. ἔπεστι δὲ καὶ ἐλεγείων ἐπ' αὐτῷ·

Δέξο ἄναξ Κρονίδα Ζεῦ Ὀλύμπιε καλὸν ἄγαλμα ἰλάω θυμῷ τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις.

This 'second revolt' was that mentioned by Thuk. i. 101-103 :
 the statue was dedicated at the beginning of the revolt (Curtius compares the Trojan perros, H. vi. 92), to secure the favour of Zeus to the Spartan side.

The Sicilian cities : Kamarina, B. C. 461.

A statue-base discovered at Olympia, 1876. E. Curtius, Arch. Zeit. 1877. p. 48 ;
 cp. 1878. p. 181 ; 1879. p. 43.

Πραξιτέλης ἀνέθηκε Συρακόσιος τόδ' ἄγαλμα

 Κρίνιος υἱὸς ἔταιεν ἐν Ἀρκαδίᾳ πολυμήλω
 ἑσλὸς ἐὼν, καὶ Φοι μῦθμα τόδ' ἐστ' ἀρετᾶς.

We may see in Praxiteles a noble Arkadian, who, not satisfied with the undistinguished career open to him in his native country, sought fame and fortune in foreign lands. Like Phormis of Mænalos (Pausan. v. 27. 1) and Agesias of Stymphalos (Pindar, Olymp. 6), so Praxiteles doubtless had been at Syracuse in the service of the tyrants, and saw the downfall of the Gelonian dynasty in B. C. 465 (see Grote, pt. 2. ch. 43). The exiles who returned after this revolution, and claimed their own again, produced serious disorders in all the Sicilian towns. The Geloans restored peace by providing for the banished friends of the fallen dynasty a home in the newly constituted city of Kamarina (461 B. C.), which henceforth began a new term of prosperity (καὶ αὖθις ὑπὸ Γέλωνος ἀνάστατος γενομένη τὸ τρίτον κατωκίσθη ὑπὸ Γελῶν, Thuk. vi. 5 ; cp. Diod. xi. 76 ; Grote, ibid.). Praxiteles shared the fortunes of new Kamarina for a while, but perhaps returned home at last to place this monument at Olympia.

Activity of Athens in Ægypt, Kypros, Ægina, Megara etc.
B.C. 460.

A large marble slab in the Museum of the Louvre: Böckh, C. I. G. 165; Rose, Inscr. Græcæ, plate xiv. p. 105; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 433. Evidently one of ten similar stelæ for each of the tribes: for the Athenians in battle were drawn up κατὰ φυλάς (Plut. Aristid. 5. Cim. 17; Lysias, Pro Mantikâ. 15; Theophrastos, Characters, θειλὸς §π.), and those who fell were buried κατὰ φυλάς (Thuk. ii. 34). It is almost certain also that each tribe furnished one of the regular strategi (Plut. Cim. 8). For the heading of the inscription see Thuk. i. 104, 105; Grote, pt. 2. ch. 45.

Naval victory of Athens, B. C. 459 (P).

On the stylobate of the portico erected by the Athenians at Delphi, lately discovered; see B. Hausoullier, Bulletin de Corresp. Hell. 1881, p. 1; Pausan. x. 11. 5: ἐφοδομησαν δὲ καὶ Ἀθηναῖοι στοὰν ἀπὸ χρημάτων ἃ ἐν τῷ πολέμῳ σφίσαν ἐγένετο ἀπὸ τε Πελοποννησίων καὶ ὅσοι Πελοποννησίοις ἦσαν τοῦ Ἑλληνικοῦ σύμμαχοι. Ἀνάκειται δὲ καὶ πλοίων τὰ ἄκρα κοσμήματα καὶ ἀσπίδες χαλκαῖαι κ.τ.λ.

Ἀθηναῖοι ἀνέθεσαν τὴν στοὰν καὶ τὰ δ[ι]π[λ]α[κ]αὶ τὰ κρωτήρια ἐλόντες τῶν πο[λ]εμ[ι]ῶν.

Pausanias connects the dedication with Phormio's successes in 429 B. C.; but the archaic writing suggests rather the victory at Kekryphaleia, etc., described by Thuk. i. 105. I append here—

A bronze plate from Dodona, broken into two pieces: (a) in Berlin Museum, purchased some time ago, as from Dodona; (b) published by C. Karapanos, Dodone et ses ruines, p. 47; see M. Fränkel, Arch. Zeit. 1878, p. 71.

Ἀθηναῖοι ἀπὸ Πελοποι[ν]: ἠσίῳν ναυμαχίᾳ νικήσαντες ἀ[νέθεσαν].

M. Fränkel connects this also with Kekryphaleia: but the characters belong rather to the days of Phormio's victories (Thuk. ii. 71.).

Halikarnassos in the time of Herodotos; Lygdamis:

B. C. 460-455.

A stele of white marble, cut in two down the middle, and somewhat imperfect at bottom; discovered by Mr. Newton at Halikarnassos. The inscription is published by him in his History of Discoveries, i. pl. 85; ii. pt. 2, p. 671; more accurately in Transactions of R. Soc. of Lit. Dec. 18, 1867; comp. Saupe, Nachrichten v. d. K. Gesellschaft d. Wissensch. d. Götting. 1863, p. 303; Kirchhoff, Studia, p. 4. I have collated the stone afresh in the British Museum and made some minor improvements.

Lygdamis, the grandson of Artemisia, was one of the dynasts of Asia Minor whose rule survived, for a time, the Persian overthrow. Suidas (s. v. Ἡρόδοτος) tells us that Lygdamis put to death Panyasis the Epic poet, and drove Herodotos the poet's nephew into exile. Subsequently a revolution took place at Halikarnassos, which ended in the expulsion of Lygdamis and the return of Herodotos. Afterwards the historian left his city the second time, and ultimately joined the Athenian colony to Thurii in B.C. 443. As Halikarnassos appears in the earliest 'Quota-list' B.C. 454 (No. 24), Lygdamis cannot have been expelled later than B.C. 455, nor can the change have taken place much earlier. We may conjecturally connect this document with the life of Herodotos by dating it somewhere about B.C. 460-455, in the very year in which the revolution took place, but before Lygdamis quitted the city. The exiles had returned, the struggle was over, and the republicans and the Lygdamis party had sworn an agreement with each other which was recorded in the temple of Apollo (§ 6, ὄρκια ἔταμον κ.τ.λ.). But the republicans wished to recover their lands and houses, which had been confiscated and held 'in chancery' in the hands of the yearly board called οἱ μνήμονες, 'Registrars' (Arist. Pol. vi. 5). Their claim is met by the present law.

§ 1. A meeting is called in the 'Sacred Agora' (its locality is unknown) where the citizens of Halikarnassos and Salmakis (an old Karian town practically absorbed into the Greek settlement) on the one hand, and Lygdamis on the other, take counsel. σύλλογος is an extraordinary gathering: if my conjecture [κ]οι-[νῆ] is right, it probably qualifies ἐβουλευσατο; it may however qualify πρωταεύοντος. § 2. It is decided that the board of μνήμονες just expiring shall not hand over any lands or houses to the incoming board. In other words, the returned exiles are to have them back. Lygdamis the father of Apollonides may be a kinsman of the tyrant: Panyatis is probably the uncle of Herodotos. § 3. If several claimants apply for the same property, their claim must be entered within 18 months of the passing of this law, and the μνήμονες are to swear in dikasts in the usual way, choosing their own time for the trial to take place so as to be final. ἄδος appears to be a subst. from ἀνδάνω: cp. E.M. s. v. ἄδων. The iota adscriptum in δρκῶσ[αι] is a mere blunder of the stone-cutter. § 4. If a claim is made after the prescribed time, the owner in possession is to take oath, in the presence of the claimant, that he is the rightful owner: such oath to be administered by a court of dikasts, who are to have $\frac{1}{2}$ of a stater for their trouble. In all cases, whoever is proved to have been in possession under the μνήμονες next after the passing of this law, he is to be regarded as the lawful owner—unless (of course) he has sold the property since. § 5. This law to be for ever binding and unalterable. § 6. No citizen to be deprived of the advantage of this law who abides by the covenant previously made between the contending factions. τ[ούτ]φ, sc. τῷ νόμῳ. The genitive Ἀλικαρ[ρην]σσεών is partitive after ὅστις: ἐλεύθερον is masculine. It is very observable that Halikarnassos, though a Dorian colony, had thus early become quite Ionicized—hence the Ionic of Herodotos. Hardly a trace of Doric appears in our inscription; as Ἀλικαρνατ[έω]ν and Π[α]ννάτιος.

Rise of Athens: Battle of Tanagra, B.C. 457.

Two fragments of marble: (a) given in Böckh, C. I. G. 166, and now existing somewhere in England, one would be glad to know where; (b) discovered of late years at Athens; see Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 441. Neither the characters nor the names are Attic, and Böckh ingeniously identified this with the tomb of the Kleomenes who marched with the Argives and assisted the Athenians at the battle of Tanagra. Pausanias saw this tomb in Kerameikos (i. 29. 5 and 7), ἐνταῦθα καὶ Κλεωναῖοι κείνται, μετὰ Ἀργείων ἐς τὴν Ἀττικὴν ἐλθόντες . . . μαλλούσης Ἀθηναίων ἐν Ταντάγρα γίνεσθαι πρὸς Βοιωτοὺς καὶ Λακεδαιμονίους μάχης ἀφίκεντο Ἀθηναῖοι Ἀργεῖοι βοηθοῦντες καὶ παραυτίκα μὲν ἔχοντας πλέον τοῦ Ἀργείων ἐξ ἐπελευθούσα ἀφαίετο τὸ σῶφίς τῆς νίκης, ἐς δὲ τὴν ὑστεραίαν ὑπῆρξε κρατῆσαι Λακεδαιμονίους, Θεσσαλῶν προδόντων Ἀθηναῖοι: cp. Thuk. i. 107. On the right of a is a fragment of a metrical epitaph.

Athens and her subject-allies : Constitution of Erythræ in Ionia, B. C. 455-450.

A large marble found near the Erechtheion, published by Böckh, C. I. G. 73^b (Addend. p. 890 ff.), but now apparently lost; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 9. Unfortunately the only copies existing are very inaccurate, so that much doubt hangs over the restoration of many particular words, although the general tenour is certain enough. Erythræ is named in the tribute-list for B.C. 450 (Köhler, Urkund. p. 15), but the date of its subjection is not known. Thasos was reduced B.C. 463, and all the allies, except Chios and Lesbos, had been reduced by the time of the Samian War B.C. 440. The reduction of Erythræ falls between 463 and 450, but the characters of our inscription are hardly earlier than 455. I give Kirchhoff's text.

I have omitted a few fragmentary expressions at the beginning, which seem to require the Erythræans to send sacrifices and a deputation to the Panathenaic festival. The ἐπισκοποὶ sent out by Athens to her subject cities answered to the Spartan ἀρμοσταί; their authority was purely civil, the garrison being commanded by a φρούραρχος. In constituting a government upon the Athenian model, the βουλή was the most important feature. For the ἐκκλησία included, without restriction, all who had the franchise; but the senate met daily, had the power of initiating (προβούλευμα), and through the πρωάνεις controlled the ἐκκλησία, and yet being elected by lot (κλαμεύσαι) was a thoroughly democratic institution. On the employment of oaths and imprecations in Greek politics see No. 16. For the whole inscription comp. No. 28.

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athens in the year

B. C. 454.

The inscriptions commonly spoken of as 'Tribute-lists' fall into two classes. (1) Decrees of new assessment: see No. 47; (2) The accounts of the quota of Tribute yearly dedicated to the goddess as an εὐαρχή or first-fruits, her share being $\frac{1}{10}$ th or μνᾶ ἀπὸ τοῦ ταλάντου (see C. I. A. i. 260). The lists of this latter sort were inscribed upon blocks and slabs of marble, many fragments of which have been found on the Akropolis, and have been pieced together by the successive labours of Rangabé (Antiq. Hellén. i. p. 236 foll.), Böckh (Statistik. ii. p. 369 foll.), Köhler (Urkunden und Untersuchungen zur Gesch. d. Delisch-Attisch. Bundes. Berl. 1870), and Kirchhoff (C. I. A. i. 226-272). Six of these marbles have been thus restored, which give the yearly accounts with scarcely any break from B.C. 454 (the year in which the Common funds were probably transferred from Delos to Athens) down to B.C. 421. The lists are a good deal broken in places, but as the same names recur, and often in a similar order, many of the lacunæ have been filled up with certainty. A peculiar interest attaches to the first list drawn up by the Hellenotamæ after the transfer to Athens, which is here sub-joined, from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 226; Köhler, Urk. p. 6; cp. Böckh, Statistik. ii. p. 422.

The series of documents of which this is a specimen is of great importance to the student of Greek history. Their results have been admirably drawn out first by Böckh in the 2nd volume of his Staatshaushaltung, and more completely by Köhler in his special work on the subject. Among other things, we recover (1) the list of Tributary states; (2) the precise years during which they each belonged to the Confederacy; (3) the amount of the yearly φόρος, which is arrived at in each case by multiplying the quota given by 60; (4) the various changes made in the tribute; and (5) the mode of its administration. As to the names in this list and Nos. 30, 35, 47, 48, the reader is referred to Böckh (l.c.) or Köhler's Urkunden above quoted, or to the map of the Athenian Confederacy in Kirchhoff's C. I. A. vol. i. Two or three interesting facts may however be mentioned here.

The earliest quota-list in B.C. 454 most likely marks the date of the transference from Delos to Athens. Until then probably a similar ἀπαρχή had been paid in to the Delian Apollo, which was now simply transferred to Athena.

In the first eight lists the tributary states are enumerated with little regard to geographical order. From the 9th year (B.C. 446) onwards, they are distributed into five Regions, Ἴωνικὸς φόρος, Ἑλλησπόντιος φ., Ἐπὶ (once ἀπὸ) Θράκης φ., Καρικὸς φ., Νησιωτικὸς φ. (see No. 30). After the new assessment made B.C. 437, the Ionian and Karian Regions are grouped under one head, first as 'Ionian' and afterwards as 'Karian;' the order being Ionian (or Karian), Islands, Hellespont, Thrace. This geographical grouping of the tributaries in B.C. 446-5 is probably to be connected with the negotiations preceding the Thirty Years' Truce in B.C. 445, when the treaty of peace certainly included a list of the confederate cities on both sides (Thuk. i. 40, ἀγράφων πόλεων, and 31, ἐσεγράψαντο ἐαυτούς). Traces of this distribution are found in the historians (see Thuk. ii. 9, Καρία . . 'Ιωρία, 'Ελλησποντος, τὰ ἐπὶ Θράκης, νῆσοι: cp. Plut. Per. 17).

Respecting the assessment of the tribute something will be said on No. 47, which is the only known example of the kind.

The number of the Tributaries named in the lists amounts to under 290: the only known estimate of their number is in Aristophanes (Wasps, 707, acted B.C. 422, εἰσὶν γε πόλεις χίλια, αὐτῶν τὸν φόρον ἡμῖν ἀπάγουσιν), where 1000 is manifestly an exaggeration, but yet not intended to be beyond the limits of credibility. Doubtless many of the towns named in the lists paid for themselves and for smaller places connected with them (συντελεῖς): this, with other considerations, is suggested by Böckh (Staatsk. ii. p. 660 foll.), who supposes that the sapient Bdelykleon reckoned that for every city down in the published lists there were three that really paid; and thus in round numbers 300×3 are set down as χίλια.

The total amount yearly received as assessed by Aristides (ὁ ἐπ' Ἀριστείδου φόρος, Thuk. i. 96; v. 18. § 5) was 460 talents. At the opening of the Peloponnesian War Perikles is made to estimate it (Thuk. ii. 13) at '600 talents upon the average.' These figures agree with the inscriptions: see the notes on No. 30.

The heading of the list before us should be compared with the shorter heading of No. 30. The board of 10 Hellenotamiæ having received the tribute, the Logistæ, 30 in number (see No. 37 A), appointed yearly by lot (οἱ τριάκοντα, ἡ ἀρχή), assisted by their secretary, calculated and paid over the quota to Athena, and drew up the documents of which this is a specimen.

The Sicilian Cities: Selinus (and Egesta?). About 452 B.C.

A broken block of tufa discovered among the ruins of the Temple of Apollo at Selinus, in March 1871. I give it from the copies of Gregorio Ugdalena (Sopra una iscrizione Selinuntina, 1871), and O. Benndorf (Die Metopen von Selinunt, 1873, p. 27 foll.).

The people of Selinus dedicate gold statues of certain deities, as a thankoffering for a victory, upon the conclusion of peace (line 7). The Italian editor is probably right in supposing the defeated enemies to be the Egestans, the two states having a standing feud respecting a strip of territory (Thuk. vi. 6). The writing is not later than 450 B.C. Diodoros (xi. 86) speaks of a war between Egesta and 'Lilybæon' in 452 B.C. Lilybæon was not founded till a century later, and Grote (pt. 2. ch. 57) suggests that the war was between Egesta and Selinus. In this Benndorf agrees, and believes this to be the war alluded to in the inscription. (This opinion is not to be set aside by the suggestion of Kühler in the Mittheilungen d. arch. Institut. 1879, p. 30, where he publishes a fragment of an Attic decree about an embassy from Egesta which mentions the [Ἄλι]κναίους: these he would substitute for the Lilybæans in Diod. l.c.) In B.C. 450 Selinus was at the height of her prosperity (Curtius, Gr. Gesch. ii. p. 515). Μαλοφόρος καὶ Πασικράτεια are Demeter and Persephone (Pausan. i. 44. 4—Selinus was a Megarian colony). Φόβος represents Ἄρης (cp. Plut. Cleom. 8; Thes. 27), who is unnamed as being the consort of Aphrodite the patron-goddess of Egesta and Eryx. Artemis also is omitted, perhaps for similar reasons. For Ζεὺς ἀγοραῖος at Selinus see Herod. v. 46. The syntax of lines 8–10 is irregular.

Athenian defeat at Koroneia (†): B.C. 447.

Two fragments of Pentelic marble, the one discovered on the Akropolis in 1864, the other in 1876: Foucart, Bullet. de Corresp. Hellénique, i. p. 303; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. Suppl. to vol. i. p. 9.

The date of the document is fixed by the characters. We may take these men of Thespiæ to be persons who stood faithful to Athens after the defeat of Koroneia, and were exiled from Bœotia for their pains. The name of the fourth betrays the Athenian sympathies of his family. The friendship of Thespiæ for Athens was strengthened by a jealousy of Thebes (cp. Herod. vii. 222; Thuk. iv. 133; vi. 95).

Athenian conquest of Eubœa, B.C. 445.

A base of white marble, broken on right and left, was discovered on the Akropolis and described with a facsimile in Monatber. d. Berl. Akad. 1869, p. 406 foll. It contains the following inscription (cp. C.I.A. i. 334) :—

 ΕΝΑΙΟΝΕΡΑΜ / (The inscription was in two lines, ΠΡΟΣΔΕΙ ^ each containing a distich.)
 (vacant)

This is part of the base which supported the bronze chariot dedicated out of the spoils of the victory over the Bœotians and Chalkidians about B.C. 509–505, just after the expulsion of the Pisistratids. Herod. v. 77, Καὶ τῶν λύτρων τὴν δεκάτην ἀρέθηκαρ, ποιησόμενοι τέθριππον χάλκεον· τὸ δὲ ἀριστερῆς χειρὸς ἔστηκε πρῶτον ἐσιότι ἐς τὰ προπύλαια τὰ ἐν τῇ ἀκροπόλει, ἐπιγέγραπται δὲ οἱ τάδε·

Ἔθνεα Βοιωτῶν καὶ Χαλκιδέων δαμάσαντες παῖδες Ἀθηναίων ἐργασίω ἐν πολέμῳ, δεσμῶ ἐν ἀχλυόεντι σιδηρέῳ ἔσβεσαν ὕβρω
 τῶν ἑπτασους δεκάτην Παλλάδι τάσδ' ἔθεσαν.

Comp. Pausan. i. 28. 2, καὶ ἄρμα κείται χαλκοῦν ἀπὸ Βοιωτῶν δεκάτη καὶ Χαλκιδέων τῶν ἐν Εὐβοίᾳ. The characters however of the inscription are not older than Perikles' time. Therefore it was he who employed the tithe, previously dedicated, for the purposes of this monument; he did so probably upon the conquest of Eubœa in B.C. 445, thus connecting his own victory with the victory of 60 years before. In that year, 445, Perikles would leave no means untried to reanimate the failing hopes of his countrymen (Grote, pt. 2. ch. 45).

Athenian conquest of Eubœa: Settlement of Chalkis.

B. C. 445.

An entire slab, discovered on the Akropolis in 1876: the appearance of the stone reveals that a companion stèle originally was attached to it on the left, both being surmounted by one pediment, on which probably was the name of the γραμματεὺς, whose omission is otherwise peculiar. Published by Kumanudes, 'Αθήναιος, τ. p. 76 ff.; Foucart in Revue archéologique 1877, i. p. 242; C. I. A. Suppl. to vol. i. p. 10. The lost stèle contained the ψήφισμα alluded to in § 3. The inscription dates from immediately after the reduction of Eubœa, of which Chalkis was the key; this is not part of the δμολογία mentioned by Thuk. i. 114, but gives rather certain modifications of that δμολογία, conceded by the Athenians upon the petition of the Chalkidians.

Ὀρκος.

Line 4: the Athenian βουλή is not to deal with Chalkis as it had just dealt with Hestizæa (Thuk. i. 114), and as it had with Chalkis itself in B.C. 509-4 (Herod. v. 77). Line 6: this applies rather to the Athenian dikasts, when trying a case brought to them from Chalkis; ἀρίστου οὐδενός is to be understood with all these verbs. Line 8: unfair sentence of death and confiscation is meant. The ultimate sovereign power is reserved for the omnipotent δῆμος. Line 10: this applies to members of the βουλή, who are to act like Sokrates when they are πρωτάνεις, and not put to the vote an unfair ψήφισμα. Line 11: compare the sweeping decree against the Mytileneans (Thuk. iii. 36). Line 12: envoys with petitions from subject states or others could only be introduced to the δῆμος by the πρωτάνεις, who were not always above suspicion of abusing their power by taking bribes, or by repelling unpopular applicants (Arist. Peace, 905; Theom. 936; [Xenophon], Resp. Ath. iii. 3); the words κατὰ τὸ δυνατόν show that sometimes an embassy could not be introduced, owing to urgent business, or to the occurrence of a national holiday (ἐκεχειρία, Arist. Peace, ibid.). Line 20: this was the usual form of the 3rd pers. pl. imp. pres. pass. at this date (see Kirchhoff, C. I. A. suppl. to vol. i. p. 12). Line 27: this shows that the subject cities could and did appeal against unfair assessment of φόρος (cp. No. 47). Line 30: a contingent from Chalkis served with the Athenians in Sicily (Thuk. vii. 57). Line 40: this is probably the same Antikles who commanded in the Samian war (Thuk. i. 117). Line 41: Kirchhoff concludes, from the use of the present tense, that Antikles' object was to repeat the oath at stated intervals, and that this had been ordered in the lost πρῆψισμα concerning Eretria. Lines 43, 44: from this expression, and αὐτίκα μάλα below, we gather that the δμολογία had only just been concluded with Eubœa (Thuk. i. 114). Line 46: as all the adult population of Chalkis had to swear, the five extra commissioners would be needed. Line 53 foll.: the sentence will not construe: either the stonemason, or the MS. from which he worked, was at fault. Kirchhoff suggests τοὺς ἐν Χαλκίδι οἰκοῦντας, ὅσοι μὴ τέλουσιν Ἀθήνας (i. e. κληροῦχοι at Chalkis, who, as citizens of Athens, paid no tribute; see Ælian, Var. H. vi. 1) καὶ εἴ τῃ . . . ἀτέλεια, [ἀτελεῖς εἶναι], τοὺς δὲ ἄλλους κ.τ.λ. Each subject state paid its φόρος in a lump sum to Athens; the local authorities raised it by an individual assessment. Line 64 foll.: for Hierokles and his χρησμοί see Arist. Peace, 1043 foll.; perhaps he had received a grant of land at Oreos as a reward, upon the fulfilment of his predictions of success in the Eubœan expedition: cp. the prophesyings about the Sicilian expedition (Thuk. viii. 1). That such μάντεις accompanied the Athenian armies we know from No. 19. Thukydides speaks slightingly (ii. 21) of these floating χρησμοί, but they were believed in by the people, and this psephisma shows that they were recognised by the state. Line 80: here the formula of the oath was rehearsed in the MS. draft, but the stonecutter does not repeat it, as it has already occurred as part of Diognetos' motion.

Athenian Colonies in Thrace; Brea, B.C. 444-440.

Two fragments of Pentelic marble, found 1833, 1847, in the Erechtheion: published 1853, by Böckh, Monatsh. d. Berl. Akad. p. 147, and by Sauppe, Transactions of Sar. Lit. Society, 1853, p. 33. I follow Kirchhoff's revised text, C. I. A. i. No. 31. See E. Curtius, Gr. Gesch. ii. p. 228, 'noch heute ist uns auf aller Steinwunde der Volkbeschluss erhalten, in Folge dessen der Stadt Brea im Lande der Bistaller, in der wasserreichen Berggegend, nördlich von der Chalkidike und südlich vom Strymon, zum Wohnsitz einer Attischen Bürgergemeinde eingerichtet worden ist.'

This decree, concerning an almost forgotten event (see Hesych. and Steph. Byz. s. v. Βρέα), is the only known inscription relating to Greek colonization. The ἀποικία, a colony planted amongst barbarians on foreign soil, is to be distinguished from κληρουχία, a settlement of Athenian citizens in the city and lands of an expelled Greek population, as at Hestiae and Chalkis (see preceding), Samos, Myrina, etc. Observe that the connection with the mother city is to be maintained by θεωραὶ and contributions to the great Athenian festivals (cp. No. 23); and in the division of the land at Brea certain lands are to be reserved (ἐξηρημένα) for the endowment of temples (τεμένη). Further, it appears from B that by this colonization Perikles had in view not only the strengthening of Athens in the neighbourhood of Thrace, but also the relief of the poorer citizens (Plut. Per. 11). A. Line 2: certain imports had just been prohibited. Lines 4, 5: this word, if rightly restored, means the leaders of the ἀποικισμός. Line 15: the cities of the Athenian confederacy are to defend Brea: the covenant referred to is lost. Line 27: Athenians on military service may give in their names as colonists, but are not to make this a mere pretext for leaving service, without going to Brea. Line 30: this is the ἐφόδιον, or grant of money from the home government for the establishment of the colony: see Intro. to Demosth. Cherson.; though that concerns a κληρουχία. B. The prytaneis of Erechtheis, which was probably the next to follow, were to introduce Phantokles to the βουλή: see note on preceding, line 12.

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athena in the year B. C. 443.

Inscribed on the 1st of the blocks mentioned on No. 24. The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 237, after Köhler, Urkunden, etc. p. 33; cp. Böckh, Staatsk. ii. p. 456, 462.

Of the series of documents to which this belongs, something has been said on No. 24. The present list has a special interest for two reasons. First, we recognize the poet Sophokles in the last line as the chairman of the Hellenotamiæ, so that his command in the Samian expedition, B. C. 440, was not his first public appointment (Strabo, p. 638), nor his last, if we may believe Plutarch's story (Nic. 15).

In connection with Perikles this inscription has a further interest. The ostracism of Thukydidēs son of Melesias, this very year, B. C. 443, left Perikles supreme. His policy at once begins to leave its marks in the inscriptions. At home he proceeded to carry out the great works of building upon the Akropolis (see Nos. 33, 34, 36), while abroad his policy aimed at consolidating the Athenian confederacy and preparing for the inevitable struggle for supremacy between Athens and Sparta. Both his home and foreign administration depended upon finance (see Thukydidēs ii. 13; cp. i. 141), and the existing Quota-lists, though they do not mention his name, bear witness to his policy. The Covenant between Ceanthia and Chaleion in the Korinthian gulf: about B. C. 440.

A bronze tablet, inscribed on both sides, A and B, found at Galaxidi (Ceanthia). The tablet itself is entire, but it may be only a supplement to a lost treaty between the two towns. The text from Rangabé, Ant. Hell. 356 b, facsimile; cp. Ross, Alte Lokr. Inschrift von Chaleion, Leipz. 1854; and esp. Kirchhoff, Studien, p. 92. From the Woodhouse Collection, now missing.

The main object of these provisions is to prevent either state from injuring foreign merchants who visited the other's port; and we have here an instance of that kind of treaty called by the Greeks τὰ σύμβολα, and suits tried as here provided were δίκαι ἀπὸ συμβόλων. The translation below will clear up most points. Αἱ τι συλῶ is for αἱ τις συλῶη, line 2; and θῶῖστω in line 9 for θῶῖ ἔστω. To understand lines 3-6, bear in mind the meaning of σῦλα δίδοναι in Greek international law, as spoken of by Demosthenes in Lacritum, p. 927, 931 (cp. arg. of the speech in Timocr. p. 695), and explained by Böckh, Staatsk. i. 194. When one state declared war with another, it gave its own citizens the right of seizing the cargo of any vessel belonging to the citizens of the other ('letters of marque'); so Thuk. v. 115: καὶ Λακεδαιμόνιοι δι' αὐτὸ τὰς μὲν σπονδὰς οὐδ' ὡς ἀφέντες ἐπολέμουν αὐτοῖς, ἐκήρυξαν δὲ εἰς τις βούλεται παρὰ σφῶν Ἀθηναίους ληΐζεσθαι. A merchant therefore bound for Æanthia might, if from a city at enmity with Chalcion, be liable to seizure by freebooters from Chalcion; and vice versa. This freedom is limited by the present convention. A court was provided, both at Chalcion and Æanthia, before which a foreigner who had unjustly suffered seizure might get redress: certain rules for this court are given in lines 4-9. The ξενοδίκαι (line 10) are the assessors of this court. The dialect is Æolo-Dorian; the aspirate is often dropped, though inserted in ἄγεν and ἔχθος = ἔκτος. Kirchhoff warns us not to date this treaty too early: the style of speech is rude, but is characteristic of the manners of the people. The people of these regions were born freebooters: Thuk. i. 5; Polyb. xvii. 4-5.

Translation. A. 'No Æanthian shall rob a foreign merchant on Chalcian soil, nor a Chalcian rob a merchant on Æanthian soil; nor shall either Æanthian or Chalcian seize a merchant's cargo within the territory of the other city. Whoso makes such seizure, and seizes a stranger's cargo on the sea, he shall be allowed to carry off his seizure, without attack from the other city; only not from the actual harbour of the other city. If he make unlawful seizure, four dr. be the penalty; and if he retain the goods so seized beyond ten days, let him be fined to the value of half the goods (besides restoring all). If a Chalcian sojourn over a month in Æanthia, or an Æanthian in Chalcion, he must (as if a μέτοικος) sue and be sued in the courts of the city of his sojourn. If his proxenos, in performing his duties as such, perverts the truth deliberately, let his fine be doubled.'

B. 'If the assessors are divided in opinion, let the plaintiff, if he be a foreigner, choose additional jurors out of the highest class of citizens, (only not the proxenos of his own city, nor his own private proxenos), fifteen for claims of a mina or more, nine for less. If a citizen of one of the two towns sue a citizen of the other, then, according to the existing agreement between them, the magistrates shall swear by the five gods and choose the jurors from the highest class, and the jurors shall take the same oath, and a majority of their votes shall be final.'

Thurii and Tarentum: B. C. 440-430.

On the founding of Thurii see Grote, pt. 2. ch. 47, and Curtius, Gr. Gesch. ii. 229 f. It was in the spring of B. C. 443. The first few years were occupied in a struggle with Tarentum, the Thurians claiming possession of all the land northward as far as, and inclusive of, the river and town of Siris, cp. Herod. viii. 62. The struggle lasted about ten years, and ended in a compromise, which showed that Tarentum had rather the advantage in the war: Strabo, p. 264, φησὶ δ' Ἀντίοχος τοὺς Ταραντίνους Θουρίους καὶ Κλεανδρίδῃ τῷ στρατηγῷ φυγάδι ἐκ Λακεδαιμόνος πολεμοῦντας περὶ τῆς Σιρίτιδος συμβῆναι, καὶ συνοικῆσαι μὲν κοινῇ, τὴν δ' ἀποικίαν κριθῆναι Ταραντίνων. We may conjecture that this image was the chryselephantine statue of Athena sculptured by Pheidias B.C. 438. The sacredness of the work will account for the solemn invocation with which the account begins. The funds were no doubt supplied from the ταμίαι τῆς θεοῦ (see the next).

The beginning is lost, but the tenour of it may be restored from similar documents: viz. Τάδε ἔλαβον καὶ ἀνήλωσαν οἱ δέειναι ἐπιστάται. The existing fragment proceeds thus:—

There are strong reasons (for which see Kirchhoff, l. c.) for connecting this document also with the statue of Athena. The ἐπιστάται or commissioners for the execution of the work receive more than 34 talents, 2858 drachmas, 2 obols in one year for the purchase of gold (and silver?): of this no less than 34 talents, and 1300 (? or 2200) drachmas, appears to have gone for the purchase of gold. Line 17: probably mistake for Δίονυς.

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athena in the year B. C. 436.

The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. vol. i. 244.

A comparison of the various lists seems to show that Perikles aimed at increasing the total of Tribute, by allowing no abatements (as a rule) to individual cities as more members joined the alliance: on the contrary, in some cases an additional payment (ἐπιφορά) is levied. The reader is referred to the notes on Nos. 24 and 30, and is invited to compare the sums enumerated in the several lists. In the present list the order of regions is altered, and Ionia and Karia are grouped together (see note on No. 24). The last two headings in the list are explained by reference to the mode of making the reassessments, as described in No. 47 (see notes). Πόλεις αὐταὶ ταξάμεναι are cities which appealed against their assessment, and secured the reduction which they claimed; cp. No. 28, line 26 foll. Πόλεις, ἅς οἱ ἰδιῶται ἐνέγραψαν φόρον φέρειν are those whose assessment was fixed at the suggestion, not of the τακταί nor members of the βουλή, but of private Athenian citizens who volunteered advice to the βουλή (cp. Andok. de Myst. 84 and note on No. 47).

Building of the Propylæa: B. C. 437-433.

On a statue-base found in situ during the excavation of the Propylæa: cp. Rom. Arch. Aufs. i. 188; Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. 335.

Ἀθηναῖοι τῇ Ἀθηναίῳ τῇ Ἰγυείῳ.
Πύρρος ἐποίησεν Ἀθηναῖος.

Plutarch shall tell us the current story of this statue (Pericl. 13): τὰ δὲ Προπύλαια τῆς ἀκροπόλεως ἐξεργάσθη μὲν ἐν πενταετίῳ

Administration of Perikles: two Financial Decrees of, B. C. 435.

A slab inscribed on both sides; now in the Louvre. The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. i. No. 32; comp. Böckh, Staatsverzeich. ii. 49 full. The palæography of the documents proves that, though the decrees belong to B. C. 435, they were not inscribed until some fifteen years later.

As the Treasure-lists (see No. 50) began in B. C. 434, Kirchhoff convincingly argues that these decrees must have been passed the year before, viz. in B. C. 435: see his Bemerkungen zu d. Urkunden d. Schatzmeister der anderen Götter (Abhandlungen d. Berl. Akad. 1864). The policy of Perikles was based upon careful finance. In B. C. 438 the Parthenon was finished, itself a magnificent ἀνάθημα to Athena, and intended to be both the centre of the national festival, and the Treasury of the state. The treasures belonging to Athena had been for some time managed by ten ταμίαι elected yearly, one from each tribe, each great Panathenaic festival (the third year of each Olympiad) marking the end of a financial period (see on No. 50, and B. § 5). Upon the completion of the Parthenon, Athena's treasures were deposited there, the money-treasure in the Opisthodomos (a chamber behind the ναός or cella), the treasures in kind in the Pronaos, Parthenon proper, and Hekatompedos (see No. 50). The lists of the Treasurers of Athena begin in 434, and present an almost perfect series for thirty years.

In the decrees before us we perceive the mind of Perikles, bent on investigating and reorganizing all the property of the state, and making all her resources available for national purposes. It appears that, during the military efforts of the last few years, large sums had been borrowed from the treasuries of the 'Other Gods.' In 445, however, peace had been purchased by the 'Thirty years' truce;' and, in spite of the Samian expedition in B.C. 440, a period of comparative repose had increased the Athenian resources. It is decided in the first of these decrees (A. § 2) to repay at once the sums due to the 'Other Gods,' 3000 talents having now accumulated in the treasury of Athena; ἐς πόλιν = the Akropolis (Thuk. ii. 15; No. 28, l. 60; No. 29, l. 18). § 3. The repayment is to be made out of φόρος now in hand, or just coming into hand, and from the tenth of the spoils of war paid to Athena. § 4. Of the λογισταί we have heard in No. 24. For the βουλή comp. Andok. de Myst. 15; αὐτοκράτωρ = 'without consulting the ἐκκλησία.' § 5. Search is to be made for all receipts and accounts, and the priests and curators of each temple are to give all information. § 6. A board of Treasurers (probably five in number) are to be appointed yearly, to take charge of the treasures belonging to the 'Other Gods,' like the Treasurers of Athena: see on No. 50. These treasures consisted chiefly of gold and silver, coined or bullion, and gold and silver vessels; they were henceforward to be kept in the Opisthodomos (B. § 4), and carefully registered year by year (A. § 7, § 8). Lastly, in § 9 it is provided that what is over of the sums specified in § 3, after payment of the debts, shall be spent on the docks and the fortifications.

The opening of B is mutilated: it was a decree of the same year, but a little later; and deals with the 'Treasures of Athena only. In § 1 certain sums seem to be voted for the beautifying of the Akropolis and the furnishing of the Panathenæa. § 2. Henceforward the Treasures of Athena are to accumulate, and no sum above 10,000 drachmas may be voted even for this purpose, without a bill of indemnity. This resembles the later enactment of B.C. 431 (Thuk. ii. 24; cp. viii. 15) respecting the reserve fund of 1000 talents. § 3. If Kirchhoff's restoration is right, it is ordered that the surplus of the yearly φόρος shall be deposited among the treasures of Athena. It should be remembered that in the Athenian mind there was no distinction between Church and State. Athena's treasures were available for national purposes, and the national surplus is regarded as part of Athena's treasure (cp. Thuk. ii. 13; Böckh, Staatsk. i. 579). § 4 has been already explained, and § 5 is plain enough. Whatever treasures of Athena are still unweighed, are to be weighed, not only by the present ταμίαι, but by all the former ταμίαι who are living and present in Athens: ἀεί is important for the sense, and more certainly right than some other of Kirchhoff's restorations, which however I have reproduced, as giving the probable drift of the decree.

Athenian administration of the Delian Temple.

B. C. 434, 433.

The text is given from Böckh (Abhandl. d. Berl. Akad. 1834), Erklärung einer Attischen Urkunde über das Vermögen des Apollinischen Heiligthums auf Delos; C. I. A. i. 283. The marble remains at Athens.

The first six lines are sadly broken, but they seem to contain proper names, Διόφ[αυτος] or Διοφ[άνης], [N]εάνθης or [Κλ]εάνθης, Βουλακλῆς (?), Δημοθάλης, Ἀναξίδημος. These may be the Athenian board (elsewhere styled Ἀμφικτυόνες) who were a kind of Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the management of the property of the Delian temple. The temple was more or less under Attic influence from the foundation of the Athenian alliance (B.C. 477): but the direct control of it was undertaken by them in B.C. 426, when the Athenians 'purified' Delos and re-established the Delian festival (Thuk. iii. 104). In B.C. 422 they expelled the Delians and occupied the island with Κτερυχῆς; but the next year they restored their lands (Thuk. v. 1. 32), and retained only the Temple. After the defeat at Ægospotamoi of course the Delians claimed their own temple once more (see Nos. 61 and 82); and this document (which was not inscribed before the archonship of Euklid) may have been inscribed at Athens at this time as documentary evidence of the Athenian right to the temple. The date of the original is fixed by the Athenian archons Krates and Apseudes. The inscription goes on—

§ 2 refers partly to the measuring and marking the boundary of certain sacred lands and properties; and the lending of moneys. A few figures will prove Böckh's restorations true. Capital lent 9 tal. 20 dr. = 54020 dr.; which at $\frac{1}{10}$ th interest, ἐπιδεκ[άτοις τόκοις] (= 10 p. c.) yields 5402 dr. yearly. For five years this equals 27010 dr.: add capital, and you get 81030 dr. = 13 tal., 3030 dr.

§ 3. Lines 16–20. [Τὴν γῆν τὴν ἐν Δήλῳ τὴν | ἱερὰν ἐμισθωσαν καὶ τοὺς κήπους καὶ τὰς οἰκίας καὶ [. . . δέκα ἔτη. χρόνος ἄρ-| χ]ει Ποσιδηῶν μῆν Ἀθήνησι ἄρχοντος Κράτητος, ἐ[ν Δήλῳ δὲ Ποσιδηῶν(?) μ.ῆ]ν ἄρχοντος Εὐπτέρους, ὥστε ἀποδιδόναι τὴμ μίσθωσ[ιν ἀπάντων τούτων τοὺς με'μ]ισθωμένους κατὰ τὰς συγγραφάς. μισθώσεως κεφ[άλαιον τοῦ μὲν πρώτου ἔτους] | ΠΗΗΔΓΓ, τῶν δὲ ἄλλων ἔτων ΠΗΗΗ . . .

In § 3 the leases of temple lands in Delos are recorded, in § 4 the lease of temple lands in Rheneia. The 'Holy' Month would be that in which the birthday of Apollo and Artemis was celebrated at Delos, and this is known to answer to the Attic Thargelion or May.

§ 5. Lines 24–25. Τὴν θάλατταν τὴν πο . . . | . . . τὴν ἐν Ῥηνεῖα ἐμισθωσαν δέκα [ἔτη . . .].

This is the lease of a fishery belonging to the Temple: so Strabo speaks (p. 642) of the fisheries of the Ephesian Artemis; cp. Pausanias (i. 38. 1) about the salt streams called 'Πεῖτοί' sacred to the Eleusinian deities.

From the identity of the names of the mover etc. it follows that this and the following Treaty were concluded on the same day. See Thuk. iii. 86, who speaks of the first interference of Athens in Sicilian affairs B.C. 427: οἱ γὰρ Συρακόσιοι καὶ Λεοντῖνοι ἐς πόλεμον ἀλλήλοις καθέστασαν. ξύμμαχοι δὲ τοῖς Λεοντῖνοις . . . Ῥηγίνοι κατὰ τὸ ξυγγενὲς Λεοντίνων. ἐς οὖν τὰς Ἀθήνας πέμψαντες οἱ τῶν Λεοντίνων ξύμμαχοι κατὰ τε παλαιὰν ξυμμαχίαν καὶ ὅτι Ἴωνες ἦσαν πείθουσι τοὺς Ἀθηναίους πέμψαι σφίσι ναῦς κ.τ.λ. Gorgias of Leontini was one of the envoys on that occasion. Our inscription probably gives the ‘old standing treaty’ referred to by Thukydides (see Grote, ch. 57).

This expedition is described by Thukyd. i. 45. 51. The arrival of the reinforcements in the nick of time just prevented a disaster. The story is misrepresented by Plutarch (Pericl. 29). Perikles would doubtless have sent a larger fleet at first, but he desired to avoid an appearance of aggression. Thukydides names Andokides the orator as if he were Glaukon's only colleague. The marble names Glaukon, [Metag]enes, and Drakonti[des]. Either Thukydides makes a slip, or Andokides was unofficially attached to the expedition. Drakontides may be the same who figures afterwards as one of the 'Thirty tyrants' (Xen. Hell. ii. 3. § 2): the leaders of this expedition seem all to belong to the oligarchical party.

Athenian victory before Potidæa: B. C. 432.

The marble is in the Brit. Museum: Grk. Inscr. in the B. Museum, xxxvii; Kirchhoff. (I. A. 442. The first three lines of the poem are past restoration: the λ in l. 7 is quite certain, and I owe the restoration ἐλθεῖν] = ἐλύθησαν to the kindness of Dr. Otto Benndorf. Originally the marble was surmounted with a relief representing a battle scene. Since Fauvel first copied the inscription, several letters have been lost, which are here given in brackets in lines 2, 3.

The restorations are from the earlier editors, and are pretty certain. The poem is in three separate portions, and it closely accords with the narrative of Thukyd. i. 63: ἐπειδὴ δὲ διὰ τάχους ἡ νίκη τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἐγίγνετο πάλιν ἐπανεχώρουν ἐς τὸ τείχος μετὰ δὲ τὴν μάχην τροπαίον ἔστησαν οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι, καὶ τοὺς νεκροὺς ὑποσπόνδους ἀπέδοσαν τοῖς Ποτειδαίαισι· ἀπέθανον δὲ Ποτειδαιατῶν μὲν καὶ τῶν συμμαχῶν ὀλίγω ἐλάσσους τριακοσίωι, Ἀθηναίων δὲ αὐτῶν πεντήκοιτα καὶ ἑκατὸν καὶ Καλλίας ὁ στρατηγός.

This inscription is earlier than B.C. 416, when Melos was destroyed by the Athenians (Thuk. v. 116); for the Melians are mentioned in B as contributing to the Lakedæmonian war-funds. Probably this is a list of contributions towards the opening of the Peloponnesian War. The Spartans had amassed no treasure (Thuk. i. 80, 141), and when they engaged in war they appealed to their allies and to their own citizens for contributions in money and kind (Thuk. ii. 7, 10; iii. 16; vii. 18): but they had no regular taxation of their citizens, nor of their allies. The laws of Lykurgos forbade the possession of gold and silver money: but the state must have had such money in hand for the payment of war expenses abroad, etc., although, even after the wealth brought to Sparta by Lysander, private citizens were not allowed to accumulate money (Müller's Dorians, Bk. iii. 10. § 10, 11). Two individuals are named in the list, Λυκείδα υἱός and Μόλο[β]ρος. The contribution of the first is probably in kind: the latter is perhaps the father of Epitades, who commanded the force against Pylos B.C. 425 (Thuk. iv. 8), and his possession of money was illegal (but see Athen. 233 F): Böckh takes ἐφέστιοι to mean μέτοικοι.

Methone and King Perdikkas: B. C. 428—426.

On a large slab of marble, broken at the bottom, and surmounted by a (broken) relief; a man seated in a dignified attitude extends his hand to a man standing in humble garb, followed by a hound. The group doubtless represents the Athenian εἰμω befriending the Methonians who are pledged to obedient fidelity. The text is from C. I. A. i. 40; cp. Böckh, Statistik ii. 748; Kirchhoff, Abhandl. Berl. Akad. 1861, p. 555 foll.; Köhler, Ibid. 1869, i. p. 138.

Third Decree: B. C. 426 (passed in the second prytany).

ει τῆ] βουλῆ καὶ τῷ δήμῳ. Κεκροπὶς ἐπρυ[τάνευε], .

.]ης ἐγραμμάτε[υ]ε, [Ἰ]εροκλείδης ἐ[πεστάτει . . .

60] εἶπε· ἐπειδὴ . . . (the rest is lost).

A fourth Decree must have originally come at the end, passed while Φαίλιππος ἐγραμμάτευε (see heading), i. e. B. C. 423 (decree in Thuk. iv. 118), when all these four documents were ordered to be inscribed together.

Methone remained faithful to Athens throughout the Peloponnesian war (Thuk. iv. 129; vi. 7): after Ægospotainoi the alliance was suspended for a time, but in the days of Timotheos and Kallistratos (B. C. 378) Methone once more joined Athens (Dinarch. in Dem. § 14), until in 353 it was forced to yield to the siege of Philip (Grote, ch. 87). Doubtless it was to the advantage of Methone to secure freedom of movement by land and sea by alliance with the maritime power of Athens; to Athens also Methone was a position of the greatest importance, as commanding the Thermaic Gulf.

The first Decree refers to the new assessment made in the previous year, probably B. C. 429 (cp. Köhler, Urkunden, p. 138), and proposes for the Methonæans (in § 1) to pay no tribute, but only the $\frac{1}{8}$ th due as ἀπαρχή (see No. 24). In § 2 their arrears of φόρος are excused, and a special arrangement (τάξις) is to be made about them. In § 3 envoys are to be sent to Perdikkas, requesting him to give the Methonæans freedom to pursue their traffic in any direction they please by land or sea, and not to set them limits on the coast (δρῖσασθαι), whether N. or S. of Methone, which they might not pass.

§ 4. If he declines this suggestion, Perdikkas and the Methonæans are to send envoys to Athens by next Dionysia (= March 427) with full powers to settle their differences. If the Athenian forces now at Poseidion report favourably of Perdikkas' behaviour in these respects, he will earn the good-will of Athens.

§ 5. The proposed relief is voted to the Methonæans.

Second Decree: B. C. 426. § 1. The Methonæans are permitted to import corn from Byzantion, and the Athenian ἐπίσκοποι or φύλακες there (see No. 23) are to help them; and the ship they charter is not to be regarded as contraband.

§ 2. ἐν τεταγμένῳ ὄντων, 'let them stand to their post,' 'be in readiness,' cp. Xen. Cyrop. vi. 2. 37.

§ 3. Two sets of envoys had been sent to Perdikkas, and were expected back shortly: Leogoras may be the father of Andokides the orator.

§ 4. Who Hegesipolis was, and what the special circumstances alluded to, we know not. The Athenians promise immediate attention to the matter: but the βουλὴ just now was sitting down at the docks (Böckh, Stattsh. iii. p. 171 and 466) on business connected with the fleet; that ended, the prytanes will call the ἐκκλησίαι together, and this matter shall be the 'first order of the day.'

Repayment of moneys borrowed from the Temple-treasures :
B. C. 426-423.

On eight fragments found at different times on the Akropolis. The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. 273; cp. Rangabé, Antiq. Hell. 116-117, 373; Böckh, Kleine Schriften, vi. p. 72.

This document shows that during the four years B. C. 426-423 the war expenses were so heavy that the ordinary income of the state (from φόρος and the other sources of revenue) was not sufficient to meet them. Recourse was therefore had to the accumulating χρήματα τῆς Ἀθηναίας and also τῶν ἄλλων θεῶν. But it had been enacted B. C. 435 (No. 37 B) that these treasures should not be voted away for state-purposes without an indemnity-bill (ἀδεια); and moreover they were at least in form dedicated to the gods. Accordingly they are here 'borrowed' at a nominal interest. It will be remembered that Perikles (Thuk. ii. 13) speaks of the ἑρὰ χρήματα as all being available when necessary. In B. C. 422 the peace of Nikias brought relief to the Athenian exchequer, and about B. C. 420 the debt to the gods was repaid with the interest thereon, as here set forth. The interest is shown by Böckh to be calculated at the rate of $\frac{1}{300}$ of a drachma for every mina per diem. The normal rate of interest in Greece was τόκος ἐνὶ δραχμῇ, i. e. a drachma per mina per month, or twelve per cent. per annum. The formal interest payable to Athena was a tithe of this, or $\frac{1}{3}$ th per cent., i. e. $\frac{1}{900}$ of a drachma per month, or (reckoning thirty days to the month) $\frac{1}{300}$ of a drachma per diem. This is not the place to do more than refer the reader to the calculations of Rangabé, l. c. i. p. 179 foll., and Böckh in his essay (l. c.). I shall ask the reader to take for granted their accuracy, and we will merely dwell upon the historical interest of the document.

The interest repaid together with the capital is for four years, which contained respectively 355, 354, 384, 355 = 1448 days: deduct from this all the days of this quadriennium which had passed before the loan, together with the day on which the loan was received, and you get the number of days for which interest was calculated. The summer of B. C. 426 was a busy one for Athens. Laches was continuing the operations in Sicily (Thuk. iii. 86. 90): Demosthenes and Prokles (ibid. 91. 94) sailed round Peloponnese and attacked Ætolia: Nikias, with a fleet of thirty sail (ibid. 91), made descents upon Melos and Bœotia and Lokris, Hipponikos and Eurymedon marching at the same time on Tanagra: also Pythodoros is named (ibid. 115) as succeeding Laches in Sicily during the following winter. None of these στρατηγοί are named in our inscription: nor is Hippokrates, whom it does specify, named by Thukydides this year. But Thukydides (iv. 66) tells us that twice every year the Athenians invaded Megara, and that in B. C. 424 (ibid.) Hippokrates son of Aripbron was commanding there. Probably he did the same in 426, and, being near at hand, was the στρατηγός who (in the name of all the ten colleagues) signed the receipt for the Treasures of the goddess. As the Attic year began with Hekatombæon (= July), and the prytany contained thirty-five or thirty-six days, this payment was made towards the beginning of August, after the fleets for the Peloponnese and for Melos had sailed.

The total is $4\frac{1}{2}$ obols short: there was doubtless a reason why these were not reckoned in.

The payment was made in October, i.e. after the taking of Pylos: probably Demosthenes still kept cruising in the neighbourhood of the Peloponnese. Observe that he is not himself called στρατηγῶ: cp. Thuk. iv. 2, δντι ιδιώτη. The words ἐκ τοῦ Ὀπισθ. are to be understood in every payment throughout this inscription.

Second payment. Ἐτ[έ]ρα δόσις στρατηγοῖς [Νικία Νικηράτου Κυδα]ριπιδῆ καὶ ξυνάρχουσ[σιν ἐπὶ] τῆς Παιδιονίδος πρυτανείας ἐνάτης πρυτ[ανευούσης, πέμπτη καὶ] δεκάτη ἡμέρᾳ τῆς π[ρυταν]είας ἐσεληλυθίας. ΗΙ. τίκος τούτοις ἐγένε[το ΤΤΧΧΧ|ΠΗΗΗΗ].

There is little doubt about Nikias' name: see fourth payment in first year of Na. 53. The payment was made in the early summer of B. C. 424, apparently towards the cost of the expedition against Kythira (Thuk. iv. 53).

This year, the ninth of the war, was one of severe strain upon Athens, owing to the successes of Brasidas and the defection of the Thracian towns.

Then follows (1) a statement of a loan from the Treasury of Athena Nike, made in the last year of the quadriennium, amount unknown, the stone being broken; (2) fragmentary accounts of loans made in the same year from the treasures of 'The Other Gods.' We gather that B. C. 423 was a year which seriously taxed the Athenian resources.

Assessment of Tribute payable by the Athenian allies;

τάξις φόρου: B. C. 425.

Put together out of thirty fragments found at various times on the Akropolis. Köhler, Urkunden u. Untersuchungen zur Gesch. d. Delisch-Attisch. Bundes, p. 63 foll.; C. I. A. i. 37.

(a) Heading and Title: Θ[εολ.] Τά[ξι]ς [φ]ό[ρου]. Next followed two decrees of the Senate and People, concerning the assessment of Tribute, both passed in the prytany of the tribe Ægeis and in the archonship of Stratokles. At the end was a list of the Tributary States with the sums payable that year, beginning with the Islands (νησιωτικὸς φόρος) and ending with the Thracian allies (Θράκιος φόρος), between which there came (but in what order is doubtful) the Ionian-Karian and Hellenpontine tribute (Ἰωνικὸς φόρος, Καρικὸς, Ἑλλησπόντιος).

(b) First decree. Ἔδοξεν τῇ [βουλῇ καὶ τῷ δήμῳ. Αἰγιητῶ] ἐπρυτάνει,]ων ἐγρα[μμάτευε, ἐπε]στάται. Θούδι[ππος εἶπεν]

(d) The next few lines are hopelessly mutilated: ἄρκωτα[ι] are mentioned, who were to visit the allies and take their oath of adherence to this assessment. Cp. Xen. Hellen. vi. 5. 3; and No. 28.

(e) Penalties denounced against Prytanes who neglect to introduce before the assembly a probouleuma in accordance with this decree: (cp. No. 28, note). [ἐὰν δὲ οἱ πρυτάνεις μὴ ἐξερέγκω]σι ἐ[ς] τὸν δῆμον κ . . | [ἢ μὴ χρηματίσωσι ἐ]πὶ σφῶν αὐτῶν, ἀφ[εί-

(g) *Next came provisions for the summoning (προσκλησις) of backward states by means of δημόσιοι κλητήρες and κήρυκες (see Ar. Birds, 1422, κλητήρ νησιωτικός). This portion is hopelessly broken, but it ends by prescribing a salary to these officers: τοῖς δὲ

This document is the only extant example of its kind, and it is unfortunate that it is not entire. A comparison with the Quota-lists, Nos. 24, 30, 35, will show that this assessment largely increased the previous payments. The tribute from the Hellespont is nearly tripled; that of the Islands is about doubled. It is well known that Grote refused to believe in the duplication of the tribute, which is asserted by Æschines (F. L. p. 337), Andokides (de Pace, 9), Pseudo-Andokides (contr. Alcib. 11), and less strongly by Plutarch (Aristides, 24). Whether or no it should be ascribed to Alkibiades' influence may be questioned; but the fact of a large increase no longer need be doubted, nor that it was the result of that ambitious policy which misled Athens after Perikles' death (B. C. 429).

Observe the method of making the new assessments. The process closely resembled the method adopted by the Athenians in the revision of their laws, whether at the annual revision described by Demosthenes (adv. Timocr. 706 foll.), or at the extraordinary revision B. C. 403 (see Andok. de Myst. 83). In other words, the assessment of tribute was not managed by a ψήφισμα of the people, nor by a committee appointed by it, but was effected with the same solemnity as an alteration of the laws. First, the ἐκκλησία voted that a reassessment should be made. Next, the prytanes were bound, under penalty of fines (ε, f.) to prepare a προβούλευμα and bring the matter before the ἐκκλησία by a certain time. Thirdly, the ἐκκλησία had to appoint eight commissioners (τακταί, c.) who were to assist the βουλή in revising the payments of the several cities; and also 500 dikasts to form a special court for hearing and deciding on appeals against the assessment. Just as in the revision of the laws, any private citizen might offer his suggestions to the βουλή and the τακταί (see Andok. de Myst. 84, ἐξείναι δὲ καὶ ἰδιώτῃ τῷ βουλομένῳ εἰσιόντι εἰς τὴν βουλὴν συμβουλεύειν ὅτι ἂν ἀγαθὸν ἔχη περὶ τῶν νόμων). This explains the heading at the end of No. 35, πόλεις ἅς οἱ ἰδιῶται ἐνέγραψαν φόρον φέρειν. If a state appealed against the proposed assessment, the case was settled by the court specially provided; see the penultimate heading in No. 35. Where any states refused to pay the sum which was finally assessed, the εἰσαγωγεῖς (ἧ) were to proceed against them: this board is mentioned by Pollux, viii. 101, εἰσαγωγεῖς οἱ τὰς ἐμμήνους δίκας εἰσάγοντες ἦσαν δὲ προικός, ἔρανικαί, ἐμπορικαί.

List of the Quota of Tribute paid to Athens in the year B. C. 425.

The text is given from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. 259: cp. Köhler, p. 76.

This list must be earlier than B. C. 424, when many of the cities here named under the Θράκιος φόρος were seduced by Brasidas from alliance with Athens. The sums however show that they are calculated upon a larger scale; accordingly they may be the first list drawn up after the assessment of B. C. 425. In the later lists it seems that all the ten Hellenotamiae were named; in No. 30 only their foreman is named.

Capture of Pylos; Messenian hopes: B. C. 425.

On the base of the Nike of Præmios, one of the chief prizes that have rewarded the recent excavators: for a facsimile see Augrab. zu Olympia, Part I; E. Curtius. Arch. Zeit. 1876, p. 178; the date has been discussed by J. Schubring, Arch. Zeit. 1877, p. 59 foll.

Μεσσήνιοι καὶ Ναυπάκτιοι ἀπέθεν Διὶ

᾽Ολυμπίῳ δεκάταν ἀπὸ τῶμ πολέμιων.

Παιώνιος ἐποίησε Μενδαῖος

καὶ τὰ κρωτήρια ποιῶν ἐπὶ τὸν ναὸν ἐνίκα.

Pausanias (v. 26. 1) tells the story of the statue thus:—Μεσσηνίων δὲ τῶν Δωριέων οἱ Ναύπακτόν ποτε (B. C. 455, Thuk. i. 103) παρὰ Ἀθηναίων λαβόντες ἀγαλμα ἐν ᾽Ολυμπίῳ Νίκης ἐπὶ τῷ κίονι ἀπέθεσαν. τοῦτό ἐστιν ἔργον μὲν Μενδαίου Παιωνίου, πεποίηται δὲ “ἀπὸ ἀνδρῶν πολέμιων,” ὅτε Ἀκαρναῖσι καὶ Οἰνιάδαισι, ἔμοι δοκεῖν, ἐπολέμησαν. Μεσσηνιοὶ δὲ αὐτοὶ λέγουσι τὸ ἀνάθημά σφισιν ἀπὸ τοῦ ἔργου τοῦ ἐν τῇ Σφακτηρίᾳ νήσῳ μετὰ Ἀθηναίων, καὶ οὐκ ἐπιγράψαι τὸ ὄνομα τῶν πολέμιων σφᾶς τῷ ἀπὸ Λακεδαιμονίων δέματι, ἐπεὶ Οἰνιάδων γε καὶ Ἀκαρνανῶν οὐδένα ἔχειν φόβον. There was therefore a twofold tradition about its origin; and it is conceivable that it was dedicated after some of the operations in Akarnania (e.g. Thuk. ii. 102, 103; iii. 7, 94-98, 105, 114). But there is force in the Messenians' argument about the phrasing of the epigram, and, moreover, this splendid monument implies a splendid occasion. The capture of Pylos sent a thrill through Greece, and to the Messenians it was a moment of exultation. Thuk. iv. 41 speaks of the ravages made upon Spartan territory by the Messenians when established at Pylos; and this is the most probable date of the monument. The artist, in subscribing (as usual) his name, takes the opportunity of recording that he was the successful competitor in designing the ornamentation for the ridge of the temple-roof at Olympia (cp. also Pausan. v. 10. 2). On this same pedestal, nearly three centuries later, the Messenians recorded their peaceful victory over the Lakedæmonians in the arbitration of the Milesians: No. 200 infra.

Inventories of the Treasures in the Parthenon:

B. C. 422, 421, 420, 419.

The text from Kirchhoff, C. I. A. 170-173. In four fragments, three of which are at Athens; the first and longest fragment was once said (see Böckh, C. I. G. 139) to exist among the Elgin marbles; but it is not so, and the fragment is now lost.

I. Ol. 89, 3; B. C. 422.

In 438 B.C. the Parthenon was dedicated to serve as the central point of the national festival, and as the bank of the state. The ground-plan of the building comprised four main divisions. At the East you entered the Pronaos (προνάος), in which was stored a large collection of sacred objects, chiefly of silver. From the Pronaos a massive door opened into the Hekatompedos (or cella), so called from its length: here were kept a number of chaplets (στέφανοι) and other objects, chiefly golden. A portion of this Hekatompedos was railed off, and formed a separate compartment, termed the Parthenon proper; so named probably because it was here that the virgin goddess kept a quantity of articles employed at festival-time, e.g. over 150 φιάλαι ἀργυραὶ, chairs, weapons, musical instruments, etc. Lastly, balancing the Pronaos, there was the Opisthodomos at the West or rear of the temple, where the money treasure of the state was kept, and other more sacred funds (see No. 37). Herodotus (viii. 51) speaks of treasures being kept on the Akropolis by the ταμίαι τοῦ ἱεροῦ. And for some time before the Parthenon was dedicated in 438 B.C. there had been a board of ten ταμίαι τῶν ἱερῶν χρημάτων τῆς Ἀθηναίας elected yearly by lot (one from each tribe) from among the pentakosiomedimni. The Panathenæa were celebrated yearly on a small scale; but it was every fourth year (the third of each Olympiad) that the grand festival took place. Accordingly, the accounts of these Treasurers, although audited yearly, were inscribed for a πεντετηρίς at a time, ἐκ Παναθηναίων ἐς Παναθήναια. The blocks containing these inventories have been found at various times on the Akropolis, and they present an almost complete series from B. C. 434 down to the fall of Athens in 404 B. C. These accounts refer only to the treasures in kind in the Pronaos, Hekatompedos, and Parthenon, giving separate inventories of each collection year by year (see Kirchoff, C. I. A. i. 117 foll.). I have given specimens of each kind in Nos. 50, 51, and 54, of which the two last are in the British Museum. It is comparatively easy to restore the lacunæ in these inventories, since the same objects recur in each. Thukydides reveals his familiarity with the system by which the Athenian treasures were kept, in the words he puts into the mouth of Perikles (ii. 13). In that review of the resources of Athens, after the tribute and the coined money in the Opisthodomos, we hear of the ἀναθήματα in the Pronaos, Hekatompedos, and Parthenon: χωρίς δὲ χρυσίου ἀσήμου καὶ ἀργυρίου ἐν τε ἀναθήμασιν ἰδίοις καὶ δημοσίοις καὶ ὄσα ἱερὰ σκεύη περὶ τε τὰς πομπὰς καὶ τοὺς ἀγῶνας καὶ σκύλα Μηδικὰ καὶ εἴ τι τοιοῦτότροπον, οὐκ ἐλάσσονος ἢ πεντακοσίων ταλάντων. Next he alludes to the treasures of the 'other gods' (see No. 37): ἔτι δὲ καὶ τὰ ἐκ τῶν ἄλλων ἱερῶν προσετίθει χρήματα οὐκ ὀλίγα, οἷς χρῆσασθαι αὐτοῦς. Lastly, he mentions the gold plates which formed part of the chryselephantine statue itself: καὶ ἦν πάντῃ ἐξεργωνται πάντων, καὶ αὐτῆς τῆς θεοῦ τοῖς περικειμένοις χρυσοῖς κ.τ.λ. The statue is not included in the regular lists of the treasurers: Köhler (Mittheil. d. deutsch. Inst. in Athen, 1879, p. 89) proves that a separate inventory of the statue, at least from 385 B. C., was kept in the temple, and the treasurers contented themselves with certifying every year that the statue and its belongings were all safe κατὰ τὴν στήλην. The inventories, after the fall of Athens 404 B. C., reveal the losses which the treasuries had sustained; and it was reserved for the orator Lykurgos to endeavour to rearrange and make the best of the treasures still remaining.

Part of the original monument copied by Thukyd. v. 47. I have therefore given it in uncials only. In line 1 we recognise the end of the heading, probably [Ἀργείων, Μαντινέων, Ἡλιέων]. There are several slight discrepancies from Thukydidēs: in line 2 he omits πρὸς ἀλλήλους: in line 7 Thuk. inverts the order, giving Ἡλείους καὶ Μαντινέας, Ἀθήναζε, and similarly lines 8, 13. In line 24 the stone read [ἡ μεταπεμψαμένη τῇ στρατιᾷ χρήσθω ἡγεμονεύουσα]. This fragment does not afford sure ground for estimating the value of our present text of Thukydidēs. The copyists may well have been more conscientious in transcribing the text of the historian, than in the text of documents merely cited by him, or he may have copied the marble inaccurately himself.

Payments from the Treasures of Athens for public purposes: B. C. 418-415.

The text is mainly from Kirchoff, C. I. A. vol. i. 180-183; cp. Suppl. to vol. i. p. 32; Rangabé, Ant. Hell. 119-122; Böckh, Staatsk. ii. 26 foll.; Greek Inscr. in the B. M. No. xxiii.

FIRST YEAR: B. C. 418-7.

First payment. [Ἀθηναῖοι ἀνήλωσαν ἐπὶ Ἀντιφῶντος ἀρχοντος καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς βουλῆς, ἥ πρῶτος ἐγραμμάτευσεν. τ]α[μ]λαι | [ἱερῶν χρημάτων τῆς Ἀθηναίας, Πυθόδωρος Ἀλαιεὺς καὶ συνάρχοντες, οἷς Φορμίων Ἀριστίωνος Κυ]δαθηναίε[ι]ς ἐγραμμάτευσεν, παρέδωκεν Ἑλληνοταμίαις, Ἐργοκλείῳ Ἀριστείδου Βησαιεὺ καὶ ξυ]νάρχουσι, καὶ παρέδωκεν, | [Ἱεροκλείῳ Ἀρχεστράτου Ἀθμονεὶ καὶ συνάρχουσι, ἐπὶ τῆς . . ἴδος . . σ πρυτανεύουσας καὶ ἡμέρας δευτ]ι[έρ]α καὶ εἰκοστῆ τῆς πρυτανείας . . οὗτοι δὲ ἔδωκαν τοῖς ἐπὶ τὰς δπλαταγωγ]οῖς τοῖς μετὰ Δημοσθένους. Ἐ[. . . . ἀποδοῦναι τοὺς Ἑλληνοταμίαις καὶ τ]οῖς παρέδωκεν τοῖς ταμίαις τῆς θεοῦ, Πυθ[ο]δώρῳ Ἀλαιεὺ καὶ ξυνάρχουσι, καὶ τοὺς ταμ]λας τῆς θεοῦ πάλιν παραδοῦ[ναι τοῖς Ἑλληνοταμίαις κ]αὶ τοῖς παρέδ[ωκεν]. οὗτοι δὲ ἔδωκαν στρατηγοῖς ἐπὶ Θ]ράκης, Εὐθυδήμῳ Εὐδήμῳ. | . . .

Demosthenes was commissioned to remove the Athenian garrison from Epidaurus this year (Thuk. v. 80, cp. 75. 77), owing to the altered condition of things after the battle of Mantinea. He seems to have been delayed in starting: the grant was recalled, and then paid out again to Euthydemos and the forces in Thrace. For Euthydemus cp. Thuk. v. 19, 24; vii. 16, 69. The general sense of this clause is clear: see next payment. The πάρεδροι are 'assistants,' 'assessors.'

Second payment. [Ἐπὶ τῆς . . . ἰδος πρυτα]νείας δευτέρας [πρυτανευούσης Ἑλληνοταμίαις, Ἐρ]γοκλεῖ Ἀριστείδου Βησαιεῖ | [. . . . The portion containing most of the fourth year is in the British Museum. The payment was made partly in Kyzikene staters and partly in Attic money (the seven sigmas are interlined as an omission): then the total value (τιμὴ) was expressed in Attic money. Telephonos' command is unknown.

Loans from the treasure of Athena: First loan. Ἑλληνοταμίαις καὶ παρέδροις ἐδανείσα[μεν] Ἀριστοκράτει Εὐωνυμῆ καὶ ξυνάρχουσι, ΠΤΤΤΤ. οὗτοι δ' ἐδοσαν ἀθλοθέταις ἐς Παναθήναια, Ἀμέμππ [. . . καὶ] ξυνάρχουσι, ἐπὶ τῆς Ἐρεχθίδος δευτέρας πρυτανευούσ[η]ς εἰκοστῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῆς πρυτανείας.

This was to supplement the expenses of the (lesser) Panathenæa just celebrated in the first month, Hekatombæon.

Second loan. Ἐπὶ τῆς Κεκροπίδος τετάρτης πρυτανευούσης ἐ[κ]τῆ ἡμέρᾳ τῆς πρυτανείας Ἑλληνοταμίαις καὶ παρέδροις, Ἀριστοκράτει Εὐωνυμῆ καὶ ξυνάρχουσι, στρατιώταις ἐ[μ Μήλαφ ? .] ΔΔ.

The Hermokopids; their goods confiscated: B. C. 414-413.

Four fragments, relating to the same subject, but not all from one stone. The text is from C. I. A. i. 274-277 and Suppl. to vol. i. p. 35: comp. Kirchhoff in Jahn's Jahrbücher, 1860, p. 238 foll.; Monatsber. d. Berl. Ak. 1865, p. 545.

The panic about the mutilation of the Hermæ and the rumoured profanation of the mysteries took place B. C. 415 (Thuk. vi. 27 foll.). Many were arrested and imprisoned on suspicion: until Andokides turned 'Queen's evidence,' and gave what was then considered the true account (Thuk. vi. 60), naming himself and certain others as the perpetrators. He was himself rewarded with free pardon, but the others whom he named were put to death or outlawed, and their goods confiscated. Axiochos, Adimantos, Euphiletos, (Eonias, Panætios, Polystratos, Kephisodoros were among this number (see Andok. de Myst.): and here is part of the account given by the Poletæ of the sale of their property (δημιόπρατα, Ag. Wasps, 659). In all sales of real property, by auction or otherwise, one per cent. was payable to the state by the buyer as an ἐπώνιον (ἐκατοστή; see Böckh, Staatsk. i. 440; cp. the Roman centesima rerum venalium). This percentage is also set down in the account.

The murder of Phrynichos, one summer evening B. C. 411, hastened the downfall of the 400. Thukydides (viii. 92) does not name the assassin, but calls his confederate, who was caught and tortured, Ἀργεῖος ἄνθρωπος: they both belonged to the foreign soldiery in the pay of the oligarchs. Lysias (contra Agoratai. § 71 ff.) says: Φρυνίχῳ γάρ . . . κοιτῇ Θρασύβουλος τε ὁ Καλυδώνιος καὶ Ἀπολλόδωρος ὁ Μεγαρεὺς ἐπεβούλευσαν· ἐπειδὴ δὲ ἐπετυχέτην αὐτῷ βαδίζοντι, ὁ μὲν Θρασύβουλος τύπτει τὸν Φρυνίχον καὶ καταβάλλει πατάξας, ὁ δὲ Ἀπολλόδωρος οὐχ ἤψατο, ἀλλ' ἐν τούτῳ κραυγὴ γίνεται καὶ φέροντο φεύγοντες. He also cites the decree before us to prove that Agoratos had no share in the deed. Lykurgos (contra Leocr. § 112) speaks thus: Φρυνίχου γὰρ ἀποσφαγέντος νύκτωρ παρὰ τὴν κρήνην τὴν ἐν τοῖς οἰσίοις ὑπὸ Ἀπολλοδώρου καὶ Θρασυβούλου κ.τ.λ. Thukydides says it was done ἐν τῇ ἀγορᾷ πληθούσῃ, which is not to be understood as a note of time, but of place only, and so does not contradict νύκτωρ (Curtius, Gr. Gesch. ii. p. 659, and note 80).

And Apollodoros may have been a citizen both of Megara and of Argos. This decree was passed in the spring of B.C. 409, i.e. within the first few months of the restored democracy, in the eighth prytany of Hippothontis: see Böckh, Staatsk. ii. 18.

In § 1, which is the probouleuma, it is proposed to honour Thrasybulos with a crown and public proclamation. The mover, Erasinides, was one of the commanders at Arginusæ, who was afterwards put to death (Xen. Hell. i. 5. 16; 6. 29; 7. 2). Why is not Apollodoros coupled here with Thrasybulos? Probably it had been originally proposed to reward both of them with citizenship and other honours: to this intention Andokides seems to refer (de Recl. suo, § 23): δρῶ δὲ ὑμᾶς πολλάκις καὶ δούλους ἀνθρώποις καὶ ξένους παντοδαποῖς πολιτεῖαν δίδοντας τε καὶ εἰς χρήματα μεγάλας δωρεάς, οἳ ἂν ὑμᾶς φαίνωνται ποιούντες τι ἀγαθόν. (Similarly Lysias, pro Polyst. § 19: καὶ εἰ μὲν ξένος τις ἐλλθῶν κ.τ.λ.) That proposal, Kirchhoff suggests, was hindered by a γραφὴ παρανόμων, but the objection was pressed only in the case of Apollodoros: so that here the probouleuma recommends Thrasybulos for reward.

§ 2 is proposed in the ἐκκλησία by Diokles, who is not likely to be the Diokles afterwards one of the Thirty (Xen. Hell. ii. 3. 2). Thrasybulos is to have the citizenship, and other honours; and a sort of judicial commission is to be appointed to determine what share of the sums, previously proposed for the reward of both Apollodoros and Thrasybulos, is to be awarded to Apollodoros. We know that he received a grant of land, though he seems to have been denied the citizenship (Lysias, Pro sacra Olea, § 4). The rest of the conspirators, of whom Agoratos is one, are to have the right of holding property in Athens.

§ 3. Eudikos proposes that the βουλὴ shall investigate the proceedings of that γραφὴ παρανόμων which hindered Apollodoros from receiving the reward originally voted him (ὁ ἐψηφίσθη). The dikasts are broadly accused of corrupt motives, and their prosecution is demanded. I have not been able to consult Gilbert, Beiträge zur inneren Gesch. Athens im Zeitalter d. Pel. Krieges, 1877, p. 346 foll., where this inscription is discussed.

Neopolis in Thrace commended for fidelity to the Athenian cause: B. C. 410.

On seven fragments, six of them recently discovered on the Akropolis: C. I. A. Supplement to vol. i. p. 16 foll.

§ 1. First Decree, passed in the winter of B. C. 410, in honour of Νεοπολιτῶν τῶμ παρὰ Θάσον, a city to be identified with what the Quota-lists (Nos. 24, 35) call N. ἐν Θράκη or παρ' Ἀντισόραν. It was on the coast just opposite Thasos, of which it was probably a colony.

The Thasians revolted B. C. 411 (Thuk. viii. 64), and were reduced afterwards by Thrasybulos in the winter of 408 (Xen. Hell. i. 4. 9; cp. i. 1. 32). Neopolis, their colony upon the opposite shore, remained faithful throughout that interval, and suffered in consequence. This decree in their honour dates from B. C. 410 (winter). Line 7 has been chiselled out, and inscribed again: the Neopolitans were not satisfied with the terms employed concerning them: and in § 4 we shall see that some time (perhaps a year or two) later, they procured a change in the wording.

§ 2. The next few lines are too fragmentary to be reproduced; they decreed honorary privileges to the Neopolitans.

§ 3. This decree to be set up at Athens and Neopolis.

I should imagine that this decree (moved by Axiochos the friend of Alkibiades) was passed soon after the reduction of Thasos, early in 407 B.C., in return for the assistance the Neopolitans had rendered Thrasybulos. They had sent envoys to ask (1) that certain expressions might be improved in the earlier decree, especially that they might not be styled 'a colony of Thasos : ' they had enjoyed independence during the three years that Thasos had been in revolt, and now that the island was Athenian again, they did not want to return to dependence. (2) They want to be allowed to pay the ἀπαρχή of the φόρος ($\frac{1}{80}$ th, see No. 24) not to Athena, but to their own Virgin Goddess. Perhaps, like the Methonæans in No 44, they had been already excused the payment of tribute, and only asked to pay the ὄθῳ : their request that the ὄθῳ may be paid to their own goddess seems another way of asking to be let off altogether. They are told to apply on this point to the ἐκκλησία (ἐν τῷ δήμῳ . . .).

§ 5. Rider to second Decree, giving the reply of the Athenian δήμος to the request about the ἀπαρχή.

[Ὁ δεῖνα εἶπε· τὰ μὲν ἄλλα
καθάπερ τῆ] βουλῆ· τῆ δὲ Παρθένῳ ἔξαιρε[.
. ὁ δ]ῆμος ε[ῦ]ξῆται.

The Athenians granted the request of the Neopolitans, which appears to have been grounded upon a vow made to their Πάροθενος.

Selymbria recovered by Alkibiades: B. C. 409.

The text is from C. I. A. Supplement to vol. i. 61 a, p. 18.

The capture of Selymbria was a brilliant exploit according to Plutarch, Alcib. 30; cp. Diod. xiii. 66. Xenophon (Hell. i. 3. 10) simply says: 'Αλκιβιάδης δὲ τοῖς ὄρκοις (the convention with Pharnabazos) οὐκ ἐτύγχανε παρών, ἀλλὰ περὶ Σηλυμβρίαν ἦν ἐκείνην δ' ἔλῳν πρὸς τὸ Βυζάντιον ἦκεν, κ.τ.λ. The present decree prescribes the conditions upon which Selymbria is restored to the Athenian alliance. The earlier lines are much broken; and the heading is lost. After other provisions, the document proceeds thus:—

§ 2. Sentences of confiscation, disfranchisement, and exile, cancelled: [καὶ] εἴ του χρήματα ἐδεδήμε[υτο] ὄφείλει, ἢ εἴ τις ἠτίμωτ[ο, ἐντιμον εἶναι. τοῖς δὲ] φασίγυσι Σηλυμβριανῶν | [κά- θοδον εἶναι? . . .]οῖς πολεμίους δὲ καὶ φίλους | [τοὺς αὐτοὺς ἔχειν?].

§ 3. Property of Athens or of the allies left at Selymbria, and lost or spent in the war, not to be required back again: [ὄσ]α δὲ ἀπώλετο ἐν τῷ πολέμῳ | [χρήματα Ἀθηναίων ἢ τῶν συμμάχων, ἢ εἴ τι ὄφειλ[ουτος ἢ παρακ]αταθήκην ἔχων τὸν ἐπραξα[ν οἱ ἄρ- χοντες,] μὴ εἶναι πράξω πλὴν γῆς καὶ αἰ[κίας].

§ 4. Private contracts not dissolved: [τὰ δὲ ἄ]λλα ξύμβολα [τ]ὰ προτοῦ ἐν τοῖς [διώταις πρὸς τοὺς αἰώτα[ς] ἢ ἰδιώτη πρὸς τὸ κ[οινὸν ἢ κοι]νῷ πρὸς ἰδιώτη[ν] ἢ ἑἴω . . . ἄ[λ]λο γίγ[ηται, δια]- λύειμ π[ρὸς ἀλλήλους] ὅτι δ' ἂν ἀμφισπ[η]τῶσι, δικά[ς] εἶναι ἀπὸ ξυμβόλων.

§ 5. These provisions to be inscribed: oaths interchanged: τὰς δὲ ξυθήκ[ας ἀναγράφ]αντας ἐς στήλην θεῖναι ἐς τὸ ἱερό[ν] τοῦ Ἀπόλλωνο[ς] (?). ὣ[μο]σαν Ἀθηναίων καὶ στρατηγοὶ | [καὶ οἱ τριήρ- αρχο]ι καὶ οἱ ὀπλίται καὶ εἴ τι[ς ἄλλων Ἀθηναίων π]αρήν, καὶ Σηλυμ[βρ]ιανοὶ π[αρήν].

§ 6. Decree of Alkibiades, confirming the above agreement, and adding certain provisions:

Compare No. 28. Alkibiades arrived at Athens B. C. 408, on the day of the Plynteria, twenty-fifth of Thargelion (June), and stayed until the Eleusinia were over (Sept.); within this time this decree was passed. I follow the chronology of Curtius, Gr. Gesch. ii. 680.

One of the measures which followed the restoration of the democracy, in the summer of B.C. 411, was a revision of the laws. This appears from Lysias (in Nicom. init.), who accuses Nikomachos, one of the ἀναγραφῆς of this decree (§ 1), of having been six years about the business (cp. Grote, ch. 66; and p. 79, infra). This revision was interrupted by the calamities which followed: but the work was revived upon the restoration under Thrasybulos, B.C. 403; see Andok. De Myst. 83,—Ἐδοξε πᾶσι ἡμέτεροις Τισαμενίδος εἶπε πολιτενεσθαι Ἀθηναίων κατὰ τὰ πάτρια. νόμοις δὲ χρῆσθαι τοῖς Σόλωνος, καὶ μέτροις καὶ σταθμοῖς, χρῆσθαι ἰε καὶ τοῖς Δράκοιτος θεσμοῖς, οἷσπερ ἐχρώμεθα ἐν τῷ πρόσθεν χρόνῳ, κ.τ.λ. The mover of our decree, Xenophanes, was probably one of the ἀναγραφῆς of B.C. 411; it authorizes the γραμματεῖς of the βουλή (who changed with every prytany) to give them a true copy of Draco's law, that it might be inscribed and set up in the usual place: cp. Harpokration, s. v. κύρβεις ἀναγράφαντες δὲ τοὺς νόμους εἰς τὰς κύρβεις, ἔστησαν ἐν τῇ στοᾷ τῇ βουλευτικῇ. On Draco's law on involuntary homicide see Meier and Schömann, Der All. Process, pp. 15 foll.; and on the peculiar number of the Ephetai, 51, which has been variously accounted for, see Schömann, Antiq. juris pub. Græc. p. 171. It is well known that Solon retained Draco's laws respecting homicide (Plutarch, Solon, 17).

Æginetans restored by Lysander: soon after B.C. 404.

A marble found on the site of the temple of Athena at Ægina, and now at Munich: Böckh, C. I. G. ii. 2139.

The writing is later than the archonship of Euklid, but not much later. In B.C. 431 Ægina was occupied by Athenian settlers (Thuk. ii. 27): in the winter of 405 Lysander restored it to the Æginetans (Xen. Hell. ii. 2. 9). How came this inventory to be drawn up by an Attic hand a year or two later? Böckh's explanation is this. During the Attic occupation, the temple was under Attic management. It was some time before the island became thoroughly Dorian once more; and this document is part of the inventory of temple furniture drawn up when the temple finally passed from Athenian to Æginetan hands.

The date is fixed by the kingship of Agis and Pausanias. Agis appears to have died B.C. 397 (Xen. Hell. iii. 3. 1). and Delos was in Athenian hands until Ægospotami. This document can hardly be anything else than a decree of the Lakedæmonians instating the Delians in the full possession of their own temples and temple treasures. After the two kings, the five ephors are named. On the relations between Athens and Delos see Nos. 38 and 82; and Mr. Jebb's paper on Delos in the Journal of Hellenic Studies, vol. i. p. 7, and esp. pp. 23, 58.

Ἀμύντωρ Ἀπημάντου occurs in a fragmentary decree (C. I. A. ii. 4) containing a list of names apparently of Thasians who had been exiled for their Athenian sympathies. The sons of Apemantos had probably been exiled from Thasos in the revolution of B. C. 411 (Thuk. viii. 64 supra No. 57), and had been rewarded by the Athenians with a decree of proxenia (comp. also Lysander's treatment of Thasos, Nepos, Lysand. 2; Grote, ch. 65). Eurypylos happening to be at Athens, discovers that this decree has been destroyed by the Thirty, and obtains permission to restore it. (Comp. Xen. Hell. i. 4. 9; Dem. Lept. 474.)

This is a law passed by the Opuntian Lokrians to regulate the precise relations which should exist between their colonists, who were leaving to settle at Naupaktos, and the old country at home. At the time of this enactment the Lokri Opuntii and Hypoknemidii (= Epikn.) formed one aggregate, composed of a number of separate cities, which regarded Opus as their μητρόπολις. The writing and style are rude, as might be expected from this region of Greece; but the dialect is certainly later than that of No. 31. It is therefore most probable that the colonists spoken of were sent to Naupaktos soon after the end of the Peloponnesian war, when the Messenians were ejected from Naupaktos by the Spartans: Pausan. x. 38. 5, τὰ δέ μοι Ναυπακτιῶν, ὡς τοῖς ἐς Ἰθώμην ἀποστᾶσω ὁμοῦ τῷ σεισμῷ τῷ ἐν Λακεδαίμονι Ἀθηναῖοι Ναύπακτον ἐνοικῆσαί σφισιν ἔδωσαν ἀφελόμενοι τοὺς Λοκρούς (Ozolian), καὶ ὡς τοῦ Ἀθηναίων ὑστερον πταίσματος τοῦ ἐν Αἰγύδῳ ποταμοῖς Λακεδαιμόνιοι τοὺς Μεσσηνίους ἐδίωξαν καὶ ἐκ τῆς Ναυπάκτου, τὰδε μὲν ἐπεξῆλθέ μοι καὶ ἐς πλέον ἢ Μεσσηνία συγγραφῆ (iv. 24. 3; 26. 2). ἐκλιπόντων δὲ ὑπὸ ἀνάγκης τῶν Μεσσηνίων, οὕτως οἱ Λοκροὶ συνελέχθησαν ἀθις ἐς τὴν Ναύπακτον (cp. Thuk. i. 103). Among the 'Lokrians who flocked back again to Naupaktos' there were, according to this inscription, some from Opuntian or E. Lokris.

The commencement seems wanting, for there is no date or heading: and κατόνδε is harsh for κατὰ τόνδε (τὸν νόμον). After the first paragraph, the rest are numbered in the original (A, B, Γ, etc.). We will adopt these divisions in the following notes.

§ 1. 'Terms of colonization to (ἐν=ἐς) Naupaktos. After a Lokrian has become a citizen of Naupaktos, he shall retain his home rights as if he were no more than a ξένος at Naupaktos, and may take part in all rightful (ἴσθια=sacra, which he has a right to as a Lokrian) sacrifices whatsoever (ἐπιτυχόντα = τὰ τυχόντα), if he wishes (=βούληται), himself and his family for ever;—sacrifices, whether of the people or of brotherhoods (in κοινᾶνες the reference is to the sacra of the gens or of the tribe etc. κῆ=καὶ ἔ for ἐκ.). The colonists not to pay taxes to E. Lokris, unless they return and become E. Lokrians again. If a colonist returns, leaving an adult son or brother in his place, he may be enrolled on the E. Lokrian registers without entrance-fee (εἰσιτήρια), at whatsoever town (ἄνω=ὀπόθεν) in E. Lokris he came from. Similarly if the colonists are ever ejected by enemies. They are to pay taxes only as citizens of W. Lokris, (i.e. not to pay any μετοίκιον at Naupaktos, but to be full citizens).'

§ A. 'The colonists to swear to remain for ever allied with E. Lokris: and thirty years from this swearing, the Opuntians may call upon one hundred Lokrians of Naupaktos to swear the oath for the colonists again, and the Naupaktian Lokrians may likewise call upon the Opuntians.'

§ B. 'A colonist who returns from Naupaktos in debt to the colony, not to be received into E. Lokrians again, until the debts be paid.'

§ Γ. 'If a colonist dies, and leaves no issue to succeed him at Naupaktos (ἐχεπάμων=ἐπιπάμων=ἐπικληρος), then his next of kin in his native town of E. Lokris may go in person and claim the estate, within three months of his death: otherwise the property must fall under the usual Naupaktian laws for such cases.'

§ Δ. 'A colonist returning from Naupaktos must notify the fact by the herald in the agora of Naupaktos, and in the town to which he belongs in E. Lokris' (ᾷ = δθεν).

§ Ε. This refers to two gentes (?) of E. Lokris whose names are peculiar: Περροθαρίαι suggests περικάρημα, and Μυσαχέες μύσος-ἀκείσθαι. It is evident that these two gentes or tribes stood in some respects on a different footing from the other E. Lokrians, but whether the difference lay in special privileges or in certain disqualifications, does not appear. Whatever their peculiar position was, it was not to follow them to Naupaktos: it had to do with the possession and inheritance of property.

§ Ζ. 'If a colonist at Naupaktos leave brothers in E. Lokris, and one of his brothers dies, the colonist-brother is to take possession of the property—i.e. his share of it.'

§ Ζ. 'In law-suits between a colonist and an E. Lokrian, the colonists are to bring the case before the courts at Opus within one year from the day of the offence: and they are to have their case heard before others (προδικία: ἀρέσται = ἐλέσθαι: cp. λαμβάνειν δίκας Hdt. v. 83). Such colonists of E. Lokrians as are magistrates for the year are to appoint προστάται in the respective countries, an E. Lokrian προστάτης for the colonists who may be staying in Lokris, and a Naupaktian προστάτης for the E. Lokrians who may visit Naupaktos.'

§ Θ. 'These statutes (ἐφεδηκότα, pf. from ἀνδάνω) under no pretext to be broken, under the heaviest penalties (παματοφαγείσθαι clearly = δημοσιεύεσθαι). Anyone charging another with breach of them is to have immediate hearing. The "party" accusing (τὸ μέρος) to swear that he is telling truth with imprecations upon himself and his household. The dikasts to give their vote by ballot. The above regulations with regard to colonists from E. Lokris are to hold good mutatis mutandis for colonists from Chaleion under Antiphates.'

This free translation will explain most of the difficulties. It seems as if both at Naupaktos and in E. Lokris the chief legislative power lay with a kind of limited ἐκκλησία of one thousand citizens (χιλίων πλήθα), reminding one of the 'five thousand' at Athens under the oligarchy (Thuk. viii. 72 etc.).

Honours to the Samian Demos for their fidelity: B.C. 403.

Found at Athens. The text is from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. pp. 393 foll.

In B. C. 404 Lysander took Samos by siege, expelled the δήμος and established an oligarchy (Xen. Hell. ii. 3. 6). The Samian δήμος had all along stood faithful to Athens (Thuk. viii. 21; Xen. Hell. ii. 2. 6: εὐθύς δὲ καὶ ἡ ἄλλη Ἑλλάς ἀφεισθηκεῖ Ἀθηναίων μετὰ τὴν ναυμαχίαν πλὴν Σαμίων), and now upon the restoration of the democracy at Athens and at Samos, they send envoys to Athens and are voted honours as follows.

Of the first decree only a few syllables remain.

Second decree, § 1. [*Ἔδοξεν τῇ βουλῇ καὶ τῷ δήμῳ Πανδίουρις ἐπρωτάνευε, Ἀγύβριος Κ[ολλυτεὺς | ἐγραμμάτευε, Εὐκλείδης ἦρχε, Κα]λλίας Ὡαθεν ἐπεστάτει. The lacunæ are easily restored, as the formulæ are well known. For the history see Xen. Hell. iii. 5. 3-16; Lysias, pro Mantikh. § 13: πρῶτον μὲν γάρ, ὅτε τὴν συμμαχίαν ἐποιήσασθε πρὸς τοὺς Βοιωτοὺς καὶ εἰς 'Αλιάρτον ἐδει βοηθεῖν, κ.τ.λ. The decree was proposed by Thrasybulos (see Grote, ch. 74). Observe that the 'Bœotians' are spoken of throughout, for at this time Thebes was supreme in Bœotia: after the peace of Antalkidas the Bœotian towns were declared independent (Xen. Hell. v. 1. 32 foll., cp. vi. 3. 18 foll.).

Xenophon, in his catalogue of the forces on the side of Athens in the Korinthian war, says: καὶ μὴν ἐξ Εὐβοίας ἀπάσης οὐκ ἐλάττους τρισχιλίων (Hell. iv. 2. 17). So Diod. xiv. 82: εὐθὺς γὰρ αὐτοῖς ἢ τε Εὐβοία ἅπασα προσέθετο, κ.τ.λ. This fragment is assigned to this date chiefly from the style of the writing.

The Opuntian Lokrians are meant, who are termed Λοκροί without further qualification by Herod. (vii. 132) and Thuk. (ii. 9). The Korinthian war arose out of a quarrel between Lokris and Phokis concerning χώρας ἀμφισβητήσιμου (Xen. Hell. iii. 5. 3), the Lokrians being supported by Thebes, the Phokians by Sparta; the underlying cause being the Theban reaction against Lakedæmonian supremacy. See Xen. Hell. iv. 3. 15 and 2. 17. It is probable that the treaty before us was concluded before the battle of Haliartos, at the same time with the preceding. See Grote, ch. 74.

Battle of Korinth and Battle of Koroneia:

July, August, B.C. 394.

On a handsome funeral monument found in Keramikos: Kumanudou, Ἐπιγραφαὶ ἐπιτύμβια, No. 13.

Οἶδε ἰππεὺς ἀπέθανον ἐν Κορίνθφ· | φύλαρχος 'Αντιφάνης, | Με-

Alluded to by Pausanias, i. 29. 8: κεῖνται δὲ (on the road from the Dipylon to the Akademy) καὶ οἱ περὶ Κόρυθον πεσόντες ἐδήλωσε δὲ οὐχ ἥκιστα (so he moralizes) ὁ θεὸς ἐνταῦθα καὶ αὐτοῖς ἐν Λεύκτροις τοὺς ὑπὸ Ἑλλήνων καλουμένους ἀνδρείους τὸ μηδὲν ἀνευ τύχης εἶναι κ.τ.λ. Xenophon (Hell. iv. 2. 17) says that the Athenian cavalry at Korinth numbered six hundred; he does not give the number at Koroneia (ibid. 3. 15). In both battles, especially in the latter, the hard fighting was between the foot-soldiers; the cavalry were scarcely engaged. See the next inscription.

Battle of Korinth: B.C. 394.

A beautiful stela, discovered in 1863, just outside the Dipylon. Above the inscription is a fine relief: a youthful horseman is striking his fallen foe with a spear. Figured in Dyer's Athens, p. 497; Kumanudes, Ἐπιγρ. ἐπιτύμβ. No. 540.

ἐγ Κορίνθῳ τῶν πέντε ἱππέων.

Among the thousands of Attic tombs we know of, this one alone bears a date. Dexileos, named also in the preceding monument, was born in B.C. 414 when Tisander was archon (wrongly called Πείσανδρος by Diod. xiii. 7). As eleven horsemen fell at Korinth, the expression τῶν πέντε ἱππέων must be referred to some unrecorded episode of the expedition.

This exactly accords with Xen. Hellen. iv. 8. 1-2: Pharnabazos and Konon, after the victory of Knidos, went on a cruise round the islands and the maritime cities, expelling the Lakonian harmosts, and assuring the cities that their citadels should not be garrisoned nor their liberty interfered with: οἱ δ' ἀκούσαντες ταῦτα ἠδοντό τε καὶ ἐπήρουν κ.τ.λ. So Diod. xiv. 84.

 very early in B.C. 398.

A stèle found in the Dionysiac theatre, broken at the bottom and right, surmounted by a relief; Athena, with her shield and serpent, gives her hand to a woman holding a sceptre or torch, who represents Sicily. Köhler in Hermes, iii. 157; C. I. A. ii. 8.

The proposer is Kinesias the dithyrambic poet, whose lean figure and profligate life made him the favourite butt of Aristophanes and the comedians: the 6th prytany would be about the time of the Lenæa (Gamelion). Dionysios I. was all along an ally, not very active, of Sparta (Grote, ch. 83; Xen. Hellen. v. 1. 26, 28; vi. 2. 4, 33). But after the victory of Knidos (midsummer 394), when Κωνων sailed with Pharnabazos to the Saronic Gulf early in 393 (~~see~~ Xen. Hellen. iv. 8. 7 foll.), so fast were Athenian hopes expanding, that Konon caused an Athenian embassy to be despatched to Dionysios at Syracuse, with the view of detaching him from Sparta, and allying him with Athens (Grote, ch. 75 init.). Lysias the orator, and two others, were sent (Lysias, xix. de iunio Ar. 19 foll.). Perhaps they carried with them the ψήφισμα before us: it is moved by a poet, who would probably be known to Dionysios, and certainly to Philoxenos the famous ditheambic poet, who is here named amongst the tyrant's household (see Nos. 84, 88).

The formulæ are easily restored. Evagoras materially helped Konon at the battle of Κυζιῶς, and received honours upon Konon's arrival at Athens: Isokrates, Evag. 54-57; cp. Pausan. i. 3. 1; Lysias, xix. de bonis Ar. 20; Demosth. p. 161.

No archon is named in § 1, but the date is soon after the battle of Knidos. It was then that Chios expelled the Spartan garrison and rejoined the Athenian alliance (Diod. xiv. 84), with Mitylene, Ephesos, and Erythræ. It was Chios that had introduced Phaselis into the Delian confederacy in Kimon's days (Plut. Kim. 12); and now again the two states act together. Phaselis, though a Dorian colony, remained one of the most faithful of the allies of Athens. It was the furthest member of the league to the East, and, lying on the highroad to Egypt and Phœnicia, enjoyed a prosperous trade, as its assessment at ten talents shows (Plut. l. c.; cp. Thuk. ii. 69). It was likely that suits would arise between merchants of Phaselis and of Athens: treaties providing for such cases between the citizens of two towns were common enough (σύμβολα), and suits conducted in accordance with such provisions were δίκαι ἀπὸ συμβόλων. Usually the case was heard in the defendant's city: but it is ruled in § 2 that all cases were to be heard at Athens before the archon polemarch, at least all cases περὶ συμβόλαια, or business-contracts. § 3. δίκαι ἀπὸ συμβόλων about other subjects are to be heard in accordance with the provisions already made in the treaty with Chios. § 4. This treaty in no way concerns disputes between Phaselites and non-Athenians τῶν ἀλλαχοῦ. It refers to cases between Athenians and citizens of the allied states. Only these were to be heard at Athens, and of these perhaps only the important ones. § 5. Fine threatened if the archon disobeys. The limitation was an important one for the allied city, as it limited the supremacy of Athens.

The restorations are chiefly from Sauppe. Line 1 foll. the variation between Ἐρρίδαῖος and Ἀρρίδαῖος is singular. The dialect is on the whole Ionic (cp. No. 98). εἰν in A l. 3, B ll. 5 and 7, must be intended for εἶναι. The authorities for Amyntas' reign are Diod. xiv. 89. 92; xv. 19; Xen. Hellen. v. 2-3; Isokrates, Or. iv. (Paneg.) 126; vi. (Archid.) 46. Grote gives a spirited account of the rise and fall of the Olynthian confederation (ch. 76), but we must follow the chronology of Droysen, Hellen. i. 1. 78. The reign of Amyntas III. was chequered with vicissitudes which show how far Macedon then was from being a secure or important power. His accession was in B. C. 390. After one year's reign he was driven by Illyrian invaders from his kingdom, and shortly afterwards restored by the Thessalians. Again the same enemies forced him to fly, and upon the ruins of Macedonia the Olynthian confederation (τὸ κοινὸν τῶν Χαλκιδέων) soon grew into importance. Amyntas' only hope was from the Greek cities. In 382 B. C. he was helped back to his throne by Athens and Sparta (see No. 77); but he was not safe until the downfall of the confederation in 379 B. C. It was in 383 B. C. that Akanthos and Apollonia, refusing to join the Olynthian league, applied to Sparta for help; and Sparta, together with Amyntas, finally broke up the league in 379 B. C. Amyntas died in 370-69 B. C. Sauppe is probably right in referring our treaty to the early years of his reign: at no later date would he be in league with the Olynthians, nor the Olynthians be at enmity with Mende or Amphipolis. The article of the treaty about timber, etc. reminds us that Southern Macedonia, the Chalkidic peninsula, and Amphipolis were the chief sources whence Athens (c. g.) derived the timber for her dockyards (cp. the following passages, Xen. Hell. v. 2. 16, ξύλα ναυπηγήσιμα ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ χώρᾳ ἐστὶ, i. e. within the territory of the league; Thuk. iv. 108: when Macedon became mistress of these regions the Athenians were at a loss for timber, see Diod. xx. 46; Plut. Demetr. 10; Böckh, Staatsk. i. 97. 351. 543). This treaty appears to be chiefly to the commercial advantage of the league. Probably however Amyntas would want to import more timber, etc. from Chalkidike, than the league would from Macedonia. Amyntas gains the right to import as much timber (except pine) as he wants, unless the league have present need of it. The league are permitted similarly to import from Macedonia, and even pine-timber upon giving prior notice to Amyntas. And also as the Olynthian league, as long as it lasted, was a powerful check upon Macedonia, by the possession of the chief ports and avenues of trade between Macedonia and the rest of Greece, it was a gain to Amyntas to secure a safe export, import, and transport of all goods through the Chalkidic ports (ἐξαγωγῶν καὶ δια[γ]αγωγῶν).

Böckh was inclined to refer this inscription to the time of the battle of Naxos, B.C. 376; but Kirchhoff observes that the writing is not later than B.C. 390–380. The incident here recorded was something of this kind. The Athenian admirals had offered a reward (τὸ ἀργύριον τὸ εἰρημένον, l. 18) 'for information which would lead to the capture of the enemy's ships.' Phanokritos gave information, which was not acted upon. He claims the reward, but the admirals refuse it. He goes to Athens and appeals to the βουλή. The senate frame a probouleuma proposing honours to Phanokritos as an εὐεργέτης, but not mentioning the reward, for fear of offending the generals. In the ἐκκλησία an amendment is moved by Kephalos (the famous orator?), ordering the reward to be paid, and censuring the admirals for not acting upon the intelligence received. The apodekte, or 'Receivers general,' are to pay the sum out of the ordinary revenues of the state, when they make the grants payable by law. As Phanokritos is of Parion on the Hellespont, Kirchhoff suggests that the admirals referred to may be Iphikrates and Thrasybulos or Agyrrhios, who at the date named above were serving in the Hellespontine waters. Rangabé, Antiq. Hell. 1164, publishes a dedication copied by M. Pittakys upon the Akropolis: ὁ δῆμος | Φανόκριτον Φαροκλείου | Π[αριανόν? ἀρε]τῆ[ς] ἔρεκεν. Lines 2, 6, 9, λιθίνει, βουλεῖ. HI and EI were frequently interchanged in the inscriptions of this period, and probably in pronunciation also.

Negotiations between Athens and Klazomenæ, just before the peace of Antalkidas: B.C. 387.

The text is from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. pp. 397 and 423.

[Θεόδοτος ἦρ]χε, Παράμυθος Φιλάγρου Ἐρχιεύς ἐγρ[αμμ]άτε[υ-
ε. Ἐδοξεν τῷ δήμῳ]φ. Θεόδοτος ἦρχε, Κεκροπίς ἐπρυτάνε[υε, Παράμυθος ἐγ]ραμμάτευε, Δαίφρων ἐπεστάτει, Πολι[. . . . εἶπεν· ἐπαιν]έσαι μὲν τὸν δῆμον τὸν Κλαζομενί-5 [ων ὅτι πρόθυμός ἐστι]ν ἐς τὴν πόλιν τὴν Ἀθηναίων κ[αί νῦν καὶ ἐν τῷ πρόσθεν] χρόνῳ, περὶ δὲ ὧλ λέγουσι Δε

The remainder of the two fragments is so much broken as to yield no continuous sense. It appears that provision was made in the treaty for the conveyance of corn to Klazomenæ (from the Hellespont?): -νοθεν σιταγωγούνται Κλαζομε[νι . .]. And the Athenians pledge themselves not to banish political opponents from the town: [τ]οὺς φεύγοντας κατάγειν ἄνευ τοῦ δήμου τοῦ Κλαζομε[νίων] μήτε τῶμ μενόντων μηδ[ένα] ξηαιρέιν]. Also the mention of [Κλαζομ]ένιοι τῶν ἀπὸ Χυτοῦ, and τοὺς ἐπὶ Χυτῷ, illustrates a passage from Ephoros cited by Steph. Byz. s.v. Χυτόν. χωρίον ἠπειρόν· Ἐφορος ἐννεακαίδεκάτῳ· Οἱ δ' ἐκ Κλαζομενῶν κατήκισαν τῆς ἠπειροῦ τὸ Χυτόν καλούμενον, and Arist. Pol. viii. (v). 3. 15, Στασιάδουσι δὲ ἐνίοτε αἱ πόλεις καὶ διὰ τοὺς τόπους, ὅταν μὴ εἰφνωῶς ἐχη ἡ χώρα πρὸς τὸ μίαν εἶναι πόλιν, οἷον ἐν Κλαζομεναῖς οἱ ἐπὶ τῷ Χύτρῳ (lege Χυτῷ) πρὸς τοὺς ἐν γήσῳ. It would seem then that Klazomenæ was negotiating an alliance with Athens,—one of the results probably of Iphikrates' successes at the Hellespont in 389 B.C. (Xen. Hell. iv. fin.). But these hopes were cut short by the 'peace of Antalkidas,' whereby the Asiatic Greek cities were summarily handed over to the Great King: Ἀραξίρξης βασιλεύς νομίζει δίκαιον τὰς μὲν ἐν τῇ Ἀσίᾳ πόλεις ἑαυτοῦ εἶναι καὶ τῶν νήσων Κλαζομενῶν καὶ Κύπρον (ib. v. 1. 31). Clinton, ad annum 387, places the promulgation early in Theodotos' year, 'about autumn.'

That Amyntas recovered his throne is stated by Isokrates, vi. Archid. 46; Diod. xiv. 92. He co-operated with Sparta against the Olynthian confederacy (Diod. xv. 19), and we can understand his receiving assistance from that quarter. The Schol. on Æschin. Fals. Leg. 26 affirms that the Athenians also helped to restore him: of this fact our inscription is witness. The date is probably B.C. 382. See Schäfer, Demosthenes und seine Zeit, ii. p. 7. The Alexander here named was the eldest son of Amyntas, who succeeded him. For an outline of Amyntas' reign see No. 74, his treaty with Chalkidians.

The date is a little earlier than No. 81 ; C. I. A. ii. 18 is a yet more fragmentary treaty of the same date with Mytilene (Diod. xv. 28. 29). Comp. Grote, ch. 77 ; Isokr. xiv. Plat. 27. 28. Some of the envoys are well known. Orthobulos was taxiarch of Akamantis at the battle of Haliartos (Lysias, xvi. pro Mant. 13). Pyrrhander is named in No. 81, § 7, as one of the envoys sent to Thebes : this is referred to by Æschines (in Ctes. 139), who says ἔτι καὶ νῦν ζῆ, in B.C. 330, so that he lived to a great age ; cp. No. 79, l. 7. Kydon the Byzantine is also known to us as one of those who contrived the surrender of Byzantium to Alkibiades and the Athenians in B.C. 408 (Xen. Hellen. i. 3. 18). When Lysander regained the town after Ægospotami, Kydon fled to Athens and received the citizenship (ib. ii. 2. 1). He must have returned to his native place after the restoration of the democracy there by Thrasybulos in 390 (ib. iv. 8. 27), and now undertakes this mission in the Athenian interest.

Compare the preceding inscription: the present is slightly later. See Diod. xv. 30, πρῶται δὲ καὶ προθυμώτατα συνεμάχησαν αἱ κατὰ τὴν Εὐβοίαν οἰκοῦσαι, χωρὶς Ἑστιάϊας. It is interesting to refer to the earlier settlement of Chalkis in B. C. 445: No. 28.

The Chians, ever since the peace of Antalkidas, had been very favourably disposed to Athens, and were the first to join the new confederation, together with Mitylene and Byzantion. See Nos. 78, 79: and cp. Isokr. xiv. Plataic. 28; viii. de pace 16: φημι δ' οὖν χρῆναι ποιέσθαι τὴν εἰρήνην μὴ μόνον πρὸς Χίους καὶ Ῥοδίουσιν καὶ Βυζαντίουσιν ἀλλὰ πρὸς ἅπαντας ἀνθρώπους, καὶ χρῆσθαι ταῖς συνθήκαισιν μὴ ταύταισιν αἷσιν νῦν τιτὲς γεγράφασι, ἀλλὰ ταῖς γενομέναισιν μὲν πρὸς βασιλείαν καὶ Λακεδαιμονίους, προσταττούσαισιν δὲ τοὺς Ἕλληνας αὐτονόμους εἶναι κ.τ.λ. For a fuller treatment see Busolt, Das Zweite Athenische Bund; A. Schäfer, De sociis Atheniensium Chabrie et Timothei ætate, etc. Lips. 1856. But for the most part Diod. xv. 28–30, and Grote, ch. 77 will suffice. We will note a few minor points. § 1. The βάρβαροι οἱ ἐν [ἡπειρῷ ἐν]οικούντες are such as Alketas king of the Molossi, and his son Neoptolemos, who are named below: Neoptolemos succeeded his father, dividing the kingdom with his brother Arybbas (see No. 113), and his daughter Olympias was the mother of Alexander the Great. The provisions in § 2, directed against any approach to the system of κληρουχίαι, are well discussed by Grote, l. c. § 3. The alliance is defensive only. § 4. Observe the large powers given to the federal representatives; they may condemn an Attic citizen to banishment or to death as an ιερόταλος. § 5. The statue of Zeus Eleutherios was in the Keramikos; see Pausan. i. 3. 1, who mentions statues of Konon, Timotheos and Evagoras the Kyprian, at the same spot. Thirty drachmæ was the usual cost of inscribing a decree: but this is a long one, and names were to be added from time to time. On this reserve fund of ten talents see No. 87. § 6. The list is given below. § 7. For Pyrrhander see No. 78; Thrasybulos, namesake and comrade of the liberator, is mentioned by Xen. Hellen. v. 1. 26, as commanding the fleet, and by Dem. de Cor. p. 301, as an orator of mark; cp. Aristot. Rhet. ii. 23; Dem. adv. Timocr. 742. § 8. The list of confederates. From personal examination of the stone, Köhler says that the Chians, Mytileneans, Methymnæans, Rhodians, Byzantines, appear to be inscribed in the same hand with the preceding decree. This tallies with Diod. xv. 28: πρώτοι δὲ πρὸς τὴν ἀπόστασιν ὑπήκουσαν Χῖοι καὶ Βυζάντιοι, μετὰ τοὺτους Ῥόδιοι καὶ Μυτιληναῖοι, καὶ τῶν ἄλλων τινες νησιωτῶν. A second hand inscribed the Tenedians, Thebans, Chalkidians, Eretrians, Pœessians, Arethusians, Karystians. A third hand added the Perinthians, Peparethians, Skiathians, Maronitæ, Dieis, Ikians, Palæs. The rest were added afterwards, as the alliance extended. Thus Abdera joined after the battle of Nuxos (Diod.

xv. 36). Similarly Hestīæa comes low down in the list: see Diod. xv. 30. Also the three towns of Keos, Iulietæ, Karthæa, Koressos are separated from the fourth, viz. Ποιήσσιοι. Lastly, the δῆμος of Zakynthos, apparently established outside of the city in a Zakynthian village called Nellon, is enrolled as an ally of Athens, like the 'Samian δῆμος' of the old confederacy. Xen. Hellen. vi. 2. 2, and Diod. xv. 45, tell us of Timotheos' dealings with the Zakynthian factions: see Grote, ch. 77. Observe that no cities of Asia Minor are here enrolled: the 'peace of Antalkidas' had left them in the hands of the great king (§ 1), until Alexander freed them. Else one might have looked for Phaselis in the list (see No. 73). There are several names wanting which might be expected: e.g. Naxos. It is clear from this document that Diodoros' estimate is true enough (xv. 30): τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις εἰς συμμαχίαν συνέβησαν ἐβδομήκοντα πόλεις.

Accounts of the Athenian Commissioners of the Delian Temple funds, from B.C. 377 to B.C. 374.

The 'Sandwich marble,' in the Library of Trinity Coll., Cambridge: where I have re-read it. See Büchh, C. I. G. 158; Statth. ii. pp. 78 foll.

Some account has been given on No. 38 of the relations between Athens and Delos. The formation of the Delian confederacy under Athens, and the placing of the common funds in the temple, had tended to subordinate the religious interests of Delos to the political. The transfer of the treasury to Athens in 454 B.C. (No. 24) would still further diminish its prestige: so that amid the troubles of the Peloponnesian war, though the Athenians and the islanders still continued to send their θεοργίαι, in B.C. 426 the splendour of the festival had dwindled almost to nothing (see Thuk. iii. 104). In 426 the Athenians re-established the Delian festival, and the magnificent θεοργία of Nikias (Plut. Nic. 3) belonged to the second or third celebration. Henceforward the Athenians undertook the direct management of the temple and its treasures. If we are right in concluding from No. 61 that after Ægospotamoi the Athenians were for a time dispossessed, we may hazard the conjecture that their influence in Delos was restored (not without some opposition, as this inscription testifies) at the formation of the New Athenian Confederacy in B. C. 378. The Delian Commissioners were called Ἀμφικτύονες, because in theory they were the deputies of the Ἴώνων τε καὶ περικτιόνων νησιωτῶν (Thuk. l. c.) to whom the festival pertained from olden times. The great festival took place on the sixth and seventh of Thargelion (May) in the third year of each Olympiad: a lesser festival took place yearly. The financial term dated from one great festival to another, and this inscription accordingly gave the accounts of the four years in which Kalleas, Charisander, Hippodamas, and Sokratides were archons, i. e. B. C. 377-6 to 374-3 (see § 8). But it is observable that none of the payments are accounted for later than Thargelion in Hippodamas' year, i. e. B. C. 374. The following paraphrase will explain the heading § 1: 'In the name of the gods. Sums called in by the Athenian Amphiktyons (i. e. Delos-Commissioners) from Kalleas' archonship down to Thargelion in Hippodamas' year (—according to Attic reckoning, but in Delian reckoning, from Epigenes' archonship down to Thargelion in Hippias' year—) during the term for which each Amphiktyon held office (viz. one year each); their secretaries being Diodoros, son of Olympiodoros of Skambonidæ (third year of the πεντετηρίς),—Idiotes, son of Theogenes of Acharnæ, during Charisander's archonship (second year), down to the commencement in Hekatombæon of Hippodamas' archonship—Sosigenes, son of Sosiades of Xypetè (first year), during the year of Kalleas' archonship: (the Amphiktyons being) Epigenes, son of Metagenes of Koilè, Antimachos, son of Euthynomos of Marathon, Epikrates, son of Menestratos of Pallene.' From this heading we learn (1) that each Amphiktyon administered the temple for one year, beginning with the month Hekatombæon, the first month of the Attic civil year; (2) the receipts for the three first years only are here recorded, the fourth year's receipts being left for the accounts of the next quadriennium; so that (3) only three Amphiktyons are here named, and their three respective secretaries; (4) as these accounts could not be made up till the close of the third year, the secretary of the third year names himself first, as having drawn up the earlier portion of these accounts, § 1-4. The remainder, including the expenses of the festival in the fourth year, was drawn up by the fourth secretary: the account thus completed was then inscribed on this marble.

Μηνυθὲν is part of a confiscated estate which was concealed by the offender and afterwards claimed by the magistrates upon information given: see §§ 9, 10. Ἐρέχτρα are sums recovered by distraint from persons who have neglected to pay a debt proved in court; μισθώσεις are rents of houses (οἰκιῶν) or of lands belonging to the temple (τεμενῶν).

iii. 104 and Plut. Nicias, 3; κομιδή is 'cost of carriage': πεν-τηκοστή is export duty of two per cent.: the ξύλα were possibly to make a bridge (like Nikias' between Rheneia and Delos, the πέταλα were for gilding the horns of the oxen sacrificed.

In the second year of the quadrienmum, eight (?) Delians had been fined 10,000 dr. each (τίμημα), as is appended to their names (τὸ ἐπιγεγραμμένον, i. e. Μ.), and sentenced to perpetual banishment, for assaulting the Amphiktyons and dragging them out of the temple. One of the names is erased, leaving seven. Of these, two bear the names of the Delian archons of the first and fourth years, —Epigenes and Pyrrhæthos. Doubtless they are the selfsame men. But how could Pyrrhæthos be elected archon at Delos after the sentence of ἀειφυγία? Quite well: for Delos was not a part of Attic territory or of the confederation, to which alone the ἀειφυγία would refer; and what more likely than that the patriotic party at Delos should select as their champion a man who had even violently challenged the Athenian occupation of the temple? For the Delians resented it bitterly, and repeatedly claimed the restoration of their rights, as the Δηλιακοὶ λόγοι of several of the orators (written in defence of the Athenian occupation) prove (see Hyperides, Frag. xiii). How long after the time of Demosthenes the Delians remained deprived of their temple we do not know. Philip and Alexander cannot have refused the petition of the Delians against Athens. In 166 B.C. the Romans made over Delos again to Athens (Polyb. xxx. 18; xxxii. 17; Böckh, Staatsk. i. 541). Its devastation under Mithridates is recorded by Pausan. iii. 23, 2.

These are no doubt confiscated properties. Some of the names are the same as in § 9. Οἰκία is a dwelling-house, οἰκημα a building. Χαλκείου is a bronze foundry, for the Delian bronze was famous (Pliny, N. H. xxiv. 2).

This decree dates from the autumn of B.C. 375, immediately after Timotheos' visit to Korkyra (Xen. Hell. v. 4. 64). The result of this decree was that the names of Korkyra, Kephallenia, and Akarnania were inscribed upon the list (No. 81); and an alliance was made with them, of which the treaty with Korkyra is extant in a mutilated condition C. I. A. ii. pp. 399 foll. I give the form of the oaths, which can be restored without difficulty:—

The Akarnanians, after the alliance they concluded with Athens at the opening of the Peloponnesian war (Thuk. ii. 68), were among the staunchest of the Athenian allies, with the exception of one town (Thuk. ii. 102, Ολιιάδας ἀεί ποτε πολεμίους ὄντας μόνους Ἀκαρνάνων, cp. i. 111). Their personal affection for the Athenian general Phormio is testified by Thuk. ii. 81 foll., 102 foll.; iii. 7 (cp. No. 118). Not less cordial were their relations with Demosthenes (Thuk. iii. 94 foll., 107 foll.). So on the Athenian side in the Syrakusan expedition (Thuk. vii. 57), καὶ Ἀκαρνάνων τιwές ἅμα μὲν κέρδει. τὸ δὲ πλεον Δημοσθένους φιλικὰ καὶ Ἀθηναίων εὐνοία ξύμμαχοι ὄντες επεκουρησαν. Again they fought for Athens in the Korinthian War (Xen. Hell. iv. 2. 17; cp. iv. 6. 1 foll.). In B. C. 389 Agesilaos forced them into alliance with Sparta (Xen. Hell. iv. 7. 1; Ages. 2. 20). Our inscription records their return to their old allies, and Korkyra and Kephallenia with them.

The following epitaph, found in the Kerameikos, may refer to these negotiations (Kumanudes, Ἐπιγρ. Ἐπιτυμβ. 14; Arch. Zeit. 1871, p. 28).

Ἐνθάδε Θέρσανδρον καὶ Σιμίλον, ἄνδρε ποθεινὸν

Dionysios the elder had all along been a faithful, though not very active, ally of Sparta (see Lysias, xix. de bonis Ar. § 20; Xen. Hell. v. 1. 26-8; Diod. xv. 23. 47; Xen. Hell. vi. 2. 4. 33; Diod. xvi. 57). The attempt made by Athens in B.C. 394-3 (No. 71) to win Dionysios to their side had not been at all successful. But after the important congress of B.C. 371 (Xen. Hell. vi. 3), when Athens and Sparta became allied against Thebes, Dionysios was reconciled to Athens (Xen. Hell. vii. 1. 20. 28; Diod. xv. 70); and at the Lenæa B.C. 367 he gained the first prize for his Tragedy λύτρα Ἑκτορος, having previously stood second and third (Clinton, F. H. ad ann.). This decree and the next following make an important addition to our scanty knowledge of the transactions briefly spoken of by Xen. Hell. vii. 1. 27-28; Diod. xv. 70 (cp. Grote, ch. 79). The second expedition of Epaminondas into the Peloponnese took place in 369 B.C., when the Spartans received assistance not only from the Athenians but also from Dionysios. Probably the crown mentioned in l. 26 was voted at that time. The decree before us was passed in the early summer of B.C. 368. At this same season Ariobarzanes' envoy Philiskos, acting in the name of the great king, on the strength of the peace of Antalkidas, convened the congress at Delphi with a view to a general peace, perhaps at the suggestion of Athens (Grote, ibid.). Little or nothing came of it, as the Spartans stoutly demanded that they should have Messene restored to them. Xenophon names the Athenians and Spartans, and their allies, and the Thebans, as represented at the congress, but says nothing of Dionysios. It is clear however from this decree that he was an important agent in these proceedings. Without believing the statement of Ephoros (quoted by the Schol. on Aristides, Panath. 177. 20,—who confuses Dionysios I. and II.) that Dionysios was in league with the Persians against the liberties of Greece,—which represents the diplomatic gossip of the time,—we may yet believe that he was very willing to enlarge his own influence by acting with the Persians as a mediator between the contending Greek states.

The following points in the decree require comment. Line 5 foll.; Dionysios was sending envoys to the Delphian congress; he also sends envoys and a letter to Athens, recommending peace. The temple referred to is doubtless Delphi. Just as it was a foremost provision of the treaties of 423 and 421 B.C. (Thuk. iv. 118, v. 18) that the Delphian temple should be neutral, so here in the negotiations for a general peace, it seems to be suggested that each state shall contribute to some building now in hand at Delphi, as a pledge of bona fides in the movement for peace. Lines 9-16: the synod of the allies convened at Athens is to consider Dionysios' suggestions, and report thereon to the δημος. The βουλή further frames this προβούλευμα to be submitted to the δημος without delay, the deputies of the allies and the envoys of Dionysios being also invited to the ἐκκλησία. Lines 16 foll.: the Athenians praise Dionysios for his zeal in maintaining the provisions of the peace of Antalkidas (τῆ βασιλέως εἰρήτῃ), and grant him and his sons the freedom of their city (cp. Demosth. p. 161). The decree of the people, approving this προβούλευμα, is lost.

Mytilene was one of the first to join the new confederacy in B.C. 378 (see No. 81); the particular services referred to in the appended decree, § C, are not known, but probably Lesbian ships had helped Chabrias at the battle of Naxos in A.C. 376, and accompanied Timotheos in his Ægean cruise the following year. Doubtless Mytilene shared the growing hopes of further maritime supremacy for Athens (Grote, ch. 79): but more than this we cannot say towards connecting our inscription with the history of the time. Pape-Benseler cite the name Hieretas from coins of Mytilene. The σύνεδροι are the deputies of the cities in the league, sent to the synod at Athens. In § B the mover was perhaps near kinsman of his namesake the envoy.

The Leukadians were allied with Sparta in 373 B.C. in the expedition against Korkyra (Xen. Hell. vi. 2, 3, 26). No peace or treaty between the Athenians and Leukadians is mentioned by the Historians: but as Zakynthos and Kephallenia were already enrolled in the Athenian alliance (No. 81), possibly Leukas also followed them, especially when, after the battle of Leuktra (B.C. 371), the hopes of Athens rose higher than before (Grote, ch. 79).

The preamble of the decree, of which only a few words are preserved in lines 1-3, probably dealt with honours voted to Straton for his various services, and his kindness in helping forward the Athenian envoys, who had come to him at Sidon, in proceeding yet further to the Persian court (ὡς βασιλέα, line 3). In line 1 the Σ though probable is not quite certain, and the letter before it may be Λ or Α: also, as Straton is throughout called ὁ Σιδῶνος β., or ὁ Σιδωνίων β., I prefer construing ὡς βασιλέα in its usual sense, and make the subject of ἐπεμελήθη Straton himself. All we know of Straton is from a citation from Theopompos in Athen. 531: Οἷα γὰρ τοὺς Φαίακας Ὅμηρος ποιεῖν μεμυθολόγηκεν ἐφορᾶστας καὶ πίνοντας καὶ καθαροῦ καὶ ῥαψωδῶν ἀκροωμένους, τοιαῦτα καὶ ὁ Στράτων διετελεῖ ποιῶν πολλὸν χρόνον . . . ἔτι δὲ μᾶλλον πρὸς τὸν Νικοκλέα φιλοτιμούμενος (Nikokles, the son of Evagoras,—see Nos. 72, 136,—prince of Kypros) . . . οἶγε προῆλθον εἰς τοσαύτην ἀμύλλαν, ὡς ἡμεῖς ἀκούομεν, ὥστε πυνθανόμενοι παρὰ τῶν ἀφικνουμένων τὰς τε παρασκευὰς τῶν οἰκιῶν κ.τ.λ. ἐφιλονέικουν ὑπερβάλλεσθαι τοῖς τοιοῦτοις ἀλλήλους . . . οὐ μὴν περὶ γε τὴν τοῦ βίου τελευτὴν διητύχησαν, ἀλλ' ἀμφοτέρω βιαιῶς θανάτῳ διεφθάρησαν. Both Straton and Nikokles were of course only subject-kings under the Persian government (cp. Ælian, Var. Hist. vii. 2). By σύμβολα (in line 19) are meant merely 'tickets of admission' to public hospitality, which will secure the bearer the favour of the authorities. Kephisodotos (l. 30) is doubtless the well-known orator who is named by Xen. Hell. vi. 3. 2; vii. 1. 14; he was one of the σύνδικοι in the defence of Leptines. (See Comm. on Dem. adv. Lept., which will also explain the exemption from εἰσφορά and χορηγία, etc.) There must always have been a certain number of Sidonian merchants residing at Athens and the Peiræus: twelve tombstones of Sidonians are published in Kumanudes' Collection of Attic epitaphs. Curtius (iv. 1. 16) speaks of a Sidonian prince Straton who was deposed by Alexander upon his conquest of Phœnicia. It is quite possible that he is the same Straton; nor is this irreconcilable with Theopompos' statement that he died a violent death. In l. 16 the ταμίαι τοῦ θεοῦ are meant: see No. 81, § 5, where also we find ἐκ τῶν δέκα ταλαίτων. This must have been some special reserve fund for occasional expenses (see Köhler in Hermes, v. 12).

The restorations are easily made in accordance with usual formulas of treaties. With lines 30 foll., which prescribe the manner of taking the oaths on either side, compare the similar provisions in Thuk. v. 47. The restoration of the last few lines is pretty certain as to the general sense, though particular words may be doubtful. The relations between Dionysios and Athens have been described in Nos. 71, 84: this alliance with Athens (which is nowhere else recorded) was one of the last acts of his life, for he died towards the middle of B.C. 367.

An alliance between Athens and Sparta was concluded in B. C. 369 (see Xen. Hellen. vii. 1. 1-14; Grote, ch. 79). Köhler, C. I. A. ii. p. 402, gives conclusive reasons, quite apart from this inscription, to prove that we must supply [Ναυσιγέ]νοῦς as the archon (B. C. 368-7) and not [Ἀλκισθέ]νοῦς, B. C. 372-1. The tenth prytany (see Köhler, l. c.) would be about midsummer 367 or the last prytany in Nausigenes' year. The decree must therefore refer to some supplementary negotiations about the alliance.

For Timotheos' successes, and especially his conquest of Samos, see Isokrates, xv. (de permut.) 107 foll. In spite of the engagement so explicitly given in No. 81, the Athenians proceeded to send out Kleruchs: and though Samos was not a member of the Athenian league, but (since the peace of Antalkidas) had been gradually brought under Persian dominion, yet none the less the Samian κληρουχία gave great offence to Greece. The first colonists were doubtless sent at once in B. C. 365, and further detachments followed in 361 and 352 B. C. (Grote, ch. 79; Curtius, Gr. Gesch. iii. pp. 457, 791). The native Samians appear to have been entirely banished (see No. 135), and so large was the efflux from Athens to Samos, that Demades is quoted by Athen. p. 99 D as saying: τὴν μὲν Αἴγιναν εἶναι λήμην τοῦ Περραιῶς, τὴν δὲ Σάμον ἀποβρώγα τῆς πόλεως ('offset'). The father of Epikuros was one of these Samian colonists, and the childhood of the philosopher was spent there: he came to Athens at eighteen (Diog. Laert. x. 1. 1). The temple of Hera at Samos, a temple well known from Herodotos, was comparable with Delphi and Olympia for its collection of works of art. The list, of which I have given the heading only, enumerates the κόσμος τῆς θεοῦ ('her toilet') in three groups, viz. articles of clothing, articles in ivory or metal, drinking vessels (φιάλαι). The dialect is Attic with an Ionic admixture, e. g. κιθῶν (χιτῶν); the Attic treasurers retained the spelling of the previous Samian registers. The heading reveals to us how completely the κληρουχία was a microcosm of Athens itself: here are archon, prytanies, πρόεδροι, ταμίαι, and the other details of the Athenian system. It is evident that one of the ταμίαι for B. C. 346 has been omitted by accident. The inventory was taken during the first six months of the new ταμίαι who entered office in July 345. At Athens it would have been made in the presence of the Logistæ; but here it is before a special sitting of the βουλή in the Heræon itself. The list closely resembles the treasure-lists drawn up at Athens after the archonship of Euklid; especially those of Artemis Brauronia of the time of Lykurgos the orator. Ἐξαστις seems to mean 'a fringe of unravelled threads.'

Professor Kirchhoff remarks that this decree is dated about nine months before the battle of Mantinea, or shortly before the last march of Epaminondas into Peloponnese. Thebes was at this moment supreme in northern Greece, since the capture of Oropos from Athens in B.C. 366 (Xen. Hell. vii. 4. 1), the destruction of Orchomenos B.C. 364 (Diod. xv. 79), and the crushing defeat of Alexander of Phææ (Plut. Pelopid. 35). The Thebans, thus dominant, were not slow to make the Amphiktyonic council subserve their own political purposes, as afterwards in the Sacred War. But in Phokis there was a decided opposition to the supremacy of Thebes; and the Phokians declined to follow Epaminondas in his last expedition (Xen. Hell. vii. 5. 4). Therefore we may adopt Kirchhoff's plausible suggestion, that the persons here welcomed at Athens were citizens of Delphi who were friendly to Athens, and were the leaders of the anti-Theban opposition, and had accordingly been banished through Theban influence. Kratinos, who had probably moved the προβούλευμα, appears to have taken the opportunity of moving an amendment to it when brought before the ἐκκλησία.

Menelaos was half-brother of king Philip. He and Archelaos and Arrhidaios were sons of Amyntas III by his mistress Gygæa (Justin, vii. 4, 5, cp. Harpokr. s.v. Μενέλαος). Archelaos was slain by Philip early in his reign, as a probable pretender: Menelaos and the surviving brother fled, and are afterwards found at Olynthos, their presence there being made a pretext for war by Philip (see Justin, viii. 3, 10). It is not known at what time they first went to Olynthos (Grote, ch. 88), but this inscription proves that Menelaos was in the neighbourhood of Thrace, and co-operating with Timotheos in those successes in Chalkidike and the Macedonian coast which are described by Isokrates (xv. de permut. 111-113). At a later date (B.C. 352, Philipp. i. § 27), Demosthenes chides the Athenians for allowing Menelaos to fight their battles for them, i.e. against Philip in Thrace. We know that Timotheos' great difficulty was money to pay his troops (cp. Grote, ch. 79), so that it is interesting to find Menelaos assisting him with funds. Timotheos failed to take Amphipolis. It is true (l. 21) that Menelaos inherited a connexion with Athens: as for Amyntas I cp. Hdt. v. 94; for Amyntas III see No. 78. Menelaos is called Πελαγών perhaps from his having been appointed governor of that district by his father Amyntas (so Böhnecke, Demosthenes, Lykurgos, Hyperides und ihr Zeitalter, p. 232).

Keos had been among the first islands that joined the new Athenian league in 376-375 B. C. (see No. 81). It appears from § 1 that Chabrias had received the cities of Julis and Karthæa into alliance during his cruise with Phokion, and had restored to Julis certain Athenian partisans who till then were in exile. Plutarch, Phokion 7, speaks of this time, and names Aristophon the mover of this decree. The Athenians appear to have assisted the Julietæ with money, which now in 363 they are in want of, and require the Julietæ to pay by the month Skirophorion (June), the last month of Chariklides' year. Other islands in the league were backward in the payment of loans and συντάξεις, as appears from the mention of the commissioners in § 1.

§ 2 orders the re-erection at Julia of the terms of agreement settled by Chabrias when he reorganized the town: the stelæ containing them having been lately destroyed. These συνθήκαι and ἔρκοι are appended in §§ 4-5.

§ 3 describes the counter-revolution which had been attempted in opposition to Athenian interests. We are certainly right in connecting that movement with the naval expedition of Epaminondas, B. C. 363, described by Diod. Sic. xv. 78-79, and well discussed by Grote, ch. 79, the object of which was to injure the Athenian maritime influence. On the meaning of ἐκκλητος πόλις in ll. 45-50 see No. 200.

§ 4 recites the covenant and oath entered into by Chabrias and Phokion (representing Athens and the allies) towards the towns of Keos.

§ 5 gives the corresponding engagement and oath of allegiance on the part of the town of Keos towards Athens and the league. For a commercial treaty with Keos see No. 108.

This is the peace concluded just before the battle of Mantinea, see Xen. Hell. vii. 5. 1-3. Xenophon does not name the Phliasians, but their position was, as hitherto, one of firm fidelity to the Spartan side; see Xenophon's chapter of praise, ibid. vii. 2. The Athenians sent a contingent of cavalry, which arrived just in time to save Mantinea from the grasp of Epaminondas: ibid. 5. 15-17. The terms of the vow show the deep anxiety of Athens and the rest of the anti-Theban alliance. Plutarch assigns the battle to the archonship of Chariklides (B. C. 363-2), see Clinton F. H. ad annum. It certainly took place at harvest-time: ἄλλως τε καὶ σίτου συγκομιδῆς οὔσης (Xen. ib. 5. 14). And this inscription proves it to have been early in the autumn of 362, soon after Molon's archonship began. This accords with Demosthenes, in Polycl. 1207.

Tachos King of Egypt shared in the general revolt of the Western Satrapies from Persia at the latter end of the reign of Artaxerxes II. When that revolt was crushed in 362 B.C. Tachos, in fear of Persia, called in the aid of mercenaries, and secured the assistance of the aged Agesilaos from Sparta (who died on his march homewards to Kyrene in the winter of 361-360 B.C.), and of Chabrias from Athens. See a good article in Smith's Dict. of Biog. s. v. Tachos; Xen. Ages. ii. 27 foll.; Plut. Ages. 36 foll. I follow the chronology of Clinton, F. H. ii, Appendix on the Kings of Sparta (Agesilaos).

Relic of Chabrias' Expedition to Egypt: B.C. 362-361 (P).

On a stone (now lost) found somewhere near Memphis: the text is from Böckh-Franz, C. I. G. vol. iii. N^o. 4702.

All that the inscription itself reveals is that it is a votive monument to an Egyptian deity, erected by Greek mercenaries some time in the 4th century B.C. The writing cannot be later. The editors are therefore justified in conjecturing that these were mercenaries in Chabrias' expedition in help of King Tachos (see No. 95). Strabo mentions a Χαβρίου χάραξ and a Χαβρίου κόμη in the Delta, which doubtless date from this campaign (Strab. pp. 760, 803). The metrical lines, of which only a fragment remains, are only restored verbi gratia: the οικοδομαί are the pyramids. Dr. Birch tells me that Τάπος is Ptah or Pthah (in hieroglyphs Ta-nen or Tatnen) the chief god of Memphis.

Alexander the tyrant of Pheræ (B.C. 368–358), a man of cruel and unscrupulous character, was intent upon enlarging his power at the expense of the autonomous Thessalian towns. The Thessalians accordingly applied to Thebes, and the Thebans in repeated campaigns succeeded in checking and finally curbing his ambition, until he was forced to restore the Thessalian towns and content himself within Pheræ, becoming a dependant ally of Thebes (Diod. xv. 80; Plut. Pelop. 26 foll.). He had previously enjoyed the alliance of Athens (Diod. xv. 71), as our inscription testifies. The death however of Epaminondas in 362 B.C. freed him from fear of Thebes, and he at once manned a fleet and proceeded to harass the maritime allies of Athens (Diod. xv. 95; Polyæn. vi. 2; Dem. in Polycl. 1207–8). These hostilities between Athens and Alexander continued for several years, and the Thessalians, whose freedom he was again assailing, apply to Athens for an alliance against their common enemy. The phrase εἶναι ἐν τῷ τεταγμένῳ (fin.) means 'he will be acting a proper part,' 'doing his duty' (cp. Nos. 44. l. 48, 111. l. 63).

What pretext Philip had for attacking Amphipolis in 358 B.C., after evacuating it in 359, we are not told. Probably during the interval there were two parties within the town, the one desiring a closer union with Athens as of old, the other leaning towards Philip: and he was ready enough to take advantage of the faction. At the commencement of his attack envoys were sent to Athens for help, who arrived just as the Athenians were returned from the Eubœan expedition (Dem. Olynth. i. p. 11), and their names were Hierax and Stratokles. Philon must have been another prominent friend of Athens; for upon the capture of the city Philip τούς μὲν ἀλλοτρίως πρὸς αὐτὸν διακειμένους ἐφυγάδευσε (Diod. xvi. 8). The dialect is Ionic: for Amphipolis, though an Athenian colony (Thuk. iv. 102: B. C. 437), was yet surrounded by Ionic neighbours, and from the first the Attic element in the town was comparatively small (Thuk. iv. 106). The influence of Sparta must have made it still smaller (Demosth. p. 164). The constitution of Amphipolis at this moment was not on the Athenian model: the προστάται suggest an oligarchical system.

Athenodoros, a citizen of Imbros (Plut. Phok. 18, etc.) and of Athens (Dem. p. 620, etc.), was one of those condottieri, like Charidemos of Oreos and others, whose adventures are a characteristic of Greek history in the 4th century. We hear of him as serving under the Persian satraps (Polyæn. v. 21), and later as the general and kinsman by marriage of Berisades, one of the claimants to the Thracian throne upon the death of Kotys in 360 B.C. (Dem. 624, etc.); in this position he assisted Athens to regain possession of the Thracian Chersonnese, B.C. 358 (Grote, ch. 80 fin.). Isokrates, in an oration 356 B.C. (de Pace, 164), speaks of Athenodoros as having 'founded a city' in Thrace. To the same period belongs his encounter with Charidemos narrated by Æneas, Poliork. 24. This was the zenith of his career, and our inscription is of this date: he was then strengthening his position by alliances with neighbouring states. M. Waddington compares the similar alliance (No. 100) between Hermias of Atarneus and the Erythræans. Later on we hear of Alexander imprisoning Athenodoros and others at Sardes, and releasing him at the request of Phokion (Plut. l. c.; Ælian V. H. i. 25). We may conjecture Konon (line 2) to have been the son of some admirer of the Athenian admiral, and so named after him.

Hermias, the eunuch-slave who succeeded to the petty sovereignty of Atarneus and maintained his independence of the Persian dominion, owes his fame to the friendship of Aristotle, whose unique ode to Virtue was composed in memory of Hermias his benefactor. The facts of his life will be found in any Dictionary: the fullest account is given by Böckh on this inscription (Kleine Schriften, vi. 185). His league with the Erythraeans may have been in view of the Social war which broke out in 357 B.C. The ἐταῖροι are 'comrades' of Hermias who commanded garrisons in towns belonging to his sway. The prospect of war explains the provision περὶ τοῦ ἐκτίθεσθαι—cp. the Hierapytna and Priansos treaty, No. 172: the phrase τὰ ἐκ τούτων γερόμερα, which answers to that in the Kretan treaty τούτων οἱ καρποί, must refer to the offspring of slaves or cattle so bestowed away. It appears that Erythræ was also independent of Persia: under Alexander and his successors it was equally favoured (see No. 164, Letter of Antiochos Soter).

Decrees of Mylasa concerning Maussollos, Satrap of Karia : B.C. 367, 361, 355.

Found at Mylasa; now in the Louvre: the text from Le Bas-Waddington, Voyage Archéol. Pt. V. 377-9; cp. Böckh, C. I. G. 2691 c, d, e, and vol. ii. p. 473. The three decrees are on one stone.

A. 391st year of Artaxerxes Mnemon (B.C. 367):—

C. 5th year of Artaxerxes Ochus (B.C. 355):—

 μηδένα· εἰ δέ τις ταῦτα παραβαίνοι, ἐξώλη γίνεσθαι καὶ αὐτὸν καὶ τοὺς ἐκεῖνου πάντας.

Ἐξαιθράπης is a more faithful transcription of the Persian title usually Græcized into σατράπης: Maussollos was only 'King' by courtesy (see No. 102). The τρεῖς φυλαί are explained by M. Waddington as the three oldest and original Tribes of Mylasa: they formed a sort of comitia curiata, with the formal right of approving the acts of the ἐκκλησία. Among the πρόγονοι of Maussollos (A, line 8) was Πιζώδαρος ὁ Μανσοῦλου named by Herod. v. 118. For the phrase ἐν χειρῶν νόμῳ (C, line 7) compare Herod. viii. 89: Manitas had resisted with armed force, and had died fighting. The people of Mylasa, who formed part of the Karian satrapy, though enjoying a certain form of independence, were evidently anxious to demonstrate their loyalty to Maussollos. At the same time the facts here recorded betray the existence of a violent and persistent party of opposition to his government.

Maussollos the satrap of Karia has been immortalized by the tomb reared in his honour by his widow Artemisia. The Mausoleum was discovered by Mr. Newton in 1857, and the most interesting remains of its sculpture are now in the British Museum, including a statue of Maussollos (see Newton, History of Discoveries at Halikarnassos, etc.; Travels and Discoveries in the Levant). Maussollos aimed at the subjugation of Ionia, and with that view made an attempt upon Miletos: Lucian, Diad. Infer. 24; Polyæn. Strateg. vi. 8. Our decree reveals that he had purchased the favour of Erythræ by some great benefits, doubtless with the same intent. The date is probably B. C. 357, when he was stirring up Rhodes, Chios, and Byzantium to revolt from Athens in the Social War: see Demosth. de Rhod. lib. 191, Diod. xvi. 7.

The decree is dated in the 9th prytany of Agathokles' year, i. e. about May 356. No wonder that early in the Social War Athens (with the approval of the synod of the league, κατὰ τὰ δόγματα τῶν συμμάχων,) had placed a garrison at Andros ; for Andros commanded the Kyklades and Eubœa. The difficulty was to maintain the garrison : they were demanding their arrears of pay, and were inclined to levy requisitions upon the Andrians. Following the ductus literarum, I have suggested ἀνατὶ ὧσι, i. e. ἀβλαβεῖς ὧσι. Archedemos, one of the ten generals, is selected to see that the garrison is paid out of the συντάξεις of the islands (see No. 93. § 1).

Eubœan cities: B.C. 357-356.

The text is from Köhler, in the Mittheilungen d. arch. Instit. 1877, pp. 209 foll., which is more complete than the text in C. I. A. ii. 64. The original is at Athens.

The beginning is lost: but the date is recovered by the mention of the Archon Agathokles. On the expedition itself see Diod. xvi. 7, and Grote, ch. 86, where all the references will be found. The expedition set forth in the archonship of Kephisodotos (358-7 B.C.), and this inscription implies that the Thebans had now been expelled from Eubœa, and envoys had been interchanged between Athens and Karystos, Eretria, Chalkis, Hestiazæ respecting the terms of re-entering the Athenian league. By σύνεδρος is meant a 'deputy' representing an allied city at the confederate synod. Menon was also a general in 361 B.C., see Demosth. in Polycl. 1210.

Neopolis in Thrace appeals for Athenian protection against Philip : B.C. 356-355.

The stone is at Athens : the text is from Köhler, Hermes, vii. 164 ; C. I. A. ii. 66 (cp. p. 406). The stele is broken at bottom, but surmounted by a relief (see Schöne's Griechischen Reliefs, p. 23, pl. vii. 48) ; Athena extending her right hand to a female figure, over whom is inscribed ΓΑΡΘΕΝΟΣ. This is doubtless the Virgin (Artemis) of the Thracian Neopolis, see supra, No. 57).

The Thracian Neopolis had at an earlier date shown loyalty to Athens, B.C. 410 (No. 57). Philip had captured Amphipolis in the first half of 357 ; in the following year Pydna and Potidæa shared the same fate. Already Philip was preparing to found the city named after himself, with an eye to the gold mines of that region. No wonder that Neopolis turned in despair to Athens (see Grote, ch. 86 ff.). Observe that the mover of this decree, Polyeuktos, was the well-known political ally of Demosthenes (Plut. Dem. 23 etc.). The decree is dated '9th prytany of Elpines' year,' i. e. early summer of 355 B. C.

The Olynthians break with Philip, and make overtures to Athens: B. C. 351.

It is a pity the document is not better preserved: but it is too interesting, even as it is, to be omitted. The Olynthians, and the Chalkidian cities in league with them, having been crushed, first by Sparta in 379 B. C., and afterwards by the Athenians under Timotheos in 364 (cp. No. 92), had enjoyed by the pleasure of Philip a certain measure of freedom from B. C. 355-4, until it suited Philip's convenience to make them in turn his vassals. In 352 they were so alarmed at his change of attitude, that they threw up his alliance and united themselves with Athens. This is described by Demosthenes in Aristocr. p. 656 (a speech delivered between Midsummer and November 352; see E. G. Weber's ed. p. ix. foll; and Grote, ch. 88). Our fragment is part of a decree for the swearing of the Olynthians and Chalkidians as allies. The only archon of the time whose name will fit the lacuna is Theëllōs, commonly named Thessalos by the historians (see Rangabé, Antiq. Hellén. ii. p. 543). The names of the ten commissioners who were to go and administer the oaths were enumerated at the head of the decree. Demosthenes (l.c.) speaks of the Olynthians in the autumn of 352 as already friends and promising to become allies of Athens. In the 1st Olynthiac (pp. 10-11) it is said that Philip's own conduct had forced them into alliance: this was probably spoken in B. C. 350, and to this alliance our inscription refers.

Honours to a citizen of Apollonia for public services:

B. C. 355-354.

The stone is now in the Museum at Palermo; it came from Athens. The text is from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 70; ep. Böckh, C. I. G. 90. It is surmounted by a relief, which is thought to represent Apollo seated, and Athena and the nymph Apollonia crowning Lachares.

Though the decree is not complete we may probably refer the services of Lachares to the first and second campaigns of the Social War B.C. 357-356. During the same time Philip was strengthening himself in Thrace. Philip did not indeed begin the siege of Methone (line 12) until 353 B.C.; but Amphipolis had been in his hands ever since 358, and this very year he became master of Pydna and Potidæa. In Dem. Philipp. iii. p. 117, § 26, Methone and Apollonia are named together as destroyed by Philip: "Ολυθον μὲν δὴ καὶ Μεθώνην καὶ Ἀπολλωνίαν καὶ δύο καὶ τριάκοντα πόλεις ἐπὶ Θράκης ἐῶ, ἃς ἀπάσας οὕτως ὠμῶς ἀνήρηκεν, ὥστε μηδ' εἰ πώποτ' ᾤκῆθησαν προσελθόντ' εἶναι ῥάδιον εἰπεῖν.

These were decrees of three of the towns of Keos, renewing and making more stringent than ever the existing treaty which forbade the export of red-ochre from Keos except only to Athens. The fourth town Ποιήεσσα is not named, and perhaps it had no mines. Μίλτος (rubrica, ruddle) was largely used at Athens, both as a drug, and as a pigment in statuary, architecture, painting, and writing. The μίλτος of Keos was the best, according to Theophrastus, de lap. 51-53. Perhaps also the monopoly in importing Keian vermilion enabled Athens to have a monopoly in exporting the various manufactured pigments of which this was an ingredient. Köhler's date, determined by the characters, may be trusted.

Alliance of Athens with the kings of Thrace, Pæonia, and Illyria against Philip: B.C. 356.

A broken stèle, recently discovered at Athens: the text is from Köhler, C. I. A. 11. pp. 405 foll.; cp. Kumanudes in Ἀθήναιον, 1876, p. 172.

Diodoros, xvi. 22, mentions the alliance of the three kings against the aggressions of Philip: κατὰ δὲ τὴν Μακεδουλίαν τρεῖς βασιλεῖς συνέστησαν ἐπὶ τὸν Φίλιππον, ὃ τε τῶν Θρακῶν καὶ Παιόνων καὶ Ἰλλυριῶν. οὗτοι γὰρ ὄντες ὁμοροὶ τοῖς Μακεδόσι, καὶ τὴν αὐξήσιω ὑφορώμενοι τοῦ Φιλίππου, καθ' ἑαυτοὺς μὲν οὐκ ἦσαν ἀξιόμαχοι προητημένοι, κοινῇ δὲ πολεμοῦντες ὑπέλαβον ῥαδίως αὐτοῦ περιέσεσθαι. διόπερ ἀθροίζοντων τὰς δυνάμεις, ἐπιφανεῖς ἀσυντάκτοις καὶ καταπληξαμένους ἠνάγκασε προσθέσθαι τοῖς Μακεδόσι. He does not give their names, nor mention their brothers, nor their alliance with Athens: for these facts we are indebted to the inscription. Coins however of king Lyppeos and Ketriporis are known: see Numismatic Chronicle, 1875, p. 20. Probably these kings, like Potidæa (Dem. Philip. i. p. 50), found Athens but a broken reed to trust to. The news of their submission to his general Parmenion reached Philip at the same time with the news of Alexander's birth, and the victory of his horse at Olympia (Plut. Alex. 3). This decree is dated July 356.

Relations of Leukon, ruler of Pantikapaëon, with the Arkadians: B. C. 393-353.

Found at Kerch: beautifully inscribed. Böckh, C. I. G. 2103e.

Ἔδοξεν τοῖς Ἀρκάσιον, Λεύκωνα
 [τὸν Σατ]ύρου Παρτικαπαίταν [στεφανῶσαι or some similar honour] κ.τ.λ.

Then, as now, a large part of Europe was fed by the harvests of the Crimea and South of Russia. Hence the importance of cities like Olbia and Pantikarpæon, and the kingdom of the (Kimmerian) Bosphoros, over which Leukon ruled B.C. 393-353. (Grote, ch. 98; Clinton's Fasti H. ii. Append. ch. 13, on the kings of Bosphoros.) His relations with Athens we shall elsewhere notice (see No. 111). Here the Arkadians, inland people as they were, vote honours to Leukon, doubtless for favouring them with corn-supplies, and their decree (in its native Æolic) is inscribed at Pantikarpæon, whether by command of Leukon, or by Arkadian mercenaries resident there. Cp. Dem. Leptin. pp. 466 foll.

Already, on No. 110, we have noticed the importance to the Greeks of the corn-supplies of the Crimea, and have referred to the accounts of the Kingdom of Bosporos in Clinton, F. H. ii. app. ch. 13; Grote, ch. 98; and above all Böckh, C. I. G. vol. ii. pp. 80 foll. The Kingdom, called by the Greeks Bosporos, had its capital at Pantikapæon (Kertch), and it extended on the W. to Theodosia, which remained independent until it was annexed by Leukon I. (Dem. Lept. 467), his father Satyros I. having died while besieging it. (Harpokr. s. v. Θεοδοσία.) Nymphaëon, once a tributary ally of Athens, situated between Bosporos and Theodosia, passed into the Bosporan dominion before the end of the Peloponnesian War, Gylon, the maternal grandfather of Demosthenes, being at the time a leading resident engaged in the corn trade (Æschin. in Ctes. 171). On the E. of the strait the Bosporan kings possessed towns like Phanagoria and Hermanassa, and held sway over the various barbarous tribes as far as the neighbourhood of Caucasus. Satyros, who succeeded his father Spartokos II., reigned 407-393 B.C. He was on very friendly terms with Athens (line 23; see Isokrates, Trapezit. 57); and this friendship was carried still further by his son Leukon, apparently the greatest ruler of the dynasty, 393-353 B.C. (cp. Strabo, p. 309, 310). His favours are mentioned by Dem. in Lept. 467, and also the honours he received at Athens, ibid. 466. The speech against Leptines was spoken B.C. 355. Our decree is dated in the early summer of 346, in the archonship of Themistokles, and repeatedly mentions the previous honours voted to Leukon. The mover is Androtion, against whom Demosthenes wrote a speech in B.C. 355. The 'sons of Leukon'

are Spartokos, Pærisades, Apollonios; the last being omitted by Androtion, and only included in the amendment (§ 2). Spartokos and Pærisades succeeded their father, reigning jointly, as this inscription proves. Diodoros, xvi. 52, says that Spartokos died after five years of sole reign (in 348), and was succeeded by his brother: this is refuted by our inscription, although we may concede that his reign was short, and that Pærisades soon became sole king. The ἀποδέκται (l. 43) are to advance the requisite money out of the military fund pro tem., the sum being considerable, 2000 dr., and more than the ταμίαι τοῦ δήμου had in hand. The name of one of the envoys (l. 50) is connected with the city Theodosia. It appears that the envoys of Spartokos and Pærisades had come to request payment of a sum the Athenians owed them, perhaps for corn (ll. 53 foll.), and to enlist at Athens sailors to man the king's ships (ὑπηρεστῆαι). The phrase εἶναι ἐν τῷ τεταγμένῳ is explained on No. 97. The third brother, Apollonios (ll. 66 foll.), is not otherwise known: it is clear that he was not associated in the government.

It is remarked by A. Schäfer (Demosth. und seine Zeit, i. 434 fol.) how neglectful the Athenians were,—in spite of the warnings of Demosthenes,—in maintaining their ascendancy in the Ægean and the islands. The coast of Asia Minor was of course in the hands of satraps or of native princes dependent on the Persians. Idrieus, brother and successor of Maussolos in Karia, had seized Chios, Kos, and Rhodes (Dem. de Pace, p. 63). Lesbos also, which had remained faithful to Athens during the Social War, and is named as an ally in B. C. 352 (Dem. in Aristocr. p. 667), was now in the hands of ‘tyrants,’ who were finally expelled by Alexander (No. 125), but whose existence meanwhile implied the suppression of the democracy and of the Athenian interest. Kammes of Mytilene is expressly called ‘enemy of Athens’ (Dem. adv. Bæot. p. 1019; a speech spoken in the very year of our inscription, B. C. 347, ἐπὶ Θεμιστοκλέους ἀρχοντος): Κάμμη τῷ τυραννοῦντι Μυτιλήνης . . . ὅς καὶ ὑμῖν κοινῇ καὶ ἐμοὶ ἰδίᾳ ἐχθρὸς ἐστίν. It seems that Phædros later in the year had expelled Kammes, upon which the restored democracy renew their friendship with Athens. Envoys came from Mytilene, supported by a letter from Phædros, and by the testimony of the ‘Treasurer of the Paralos.’ This last was an office of some distinction (Demosth. in Mid. p. 570), for, as the two state ships Salaminia and Paralos (like our Royal Yachts) were fitted out, not by the λειτουργία of individuals, but at the state expense, the ταμίαι had the management of the sums voted for the purpose.

(Underneath the three crowns is a fragment of relief, representing a four-horsed chariot, with a winged Victory alighting upon it).

Alketas king of the Molossi, who joined the new Athenian alliance in 378 B.C. (see No. 81), left two sons, Neoptolemos and Arybbas (see Pausan. i. 11, 1; Plut. Pyrrh. 1; Droysen, Hellenismus, table iii.). The mention of Neoptolemos' name in No. 81 together with his father's would show that he was the elder son, and associated already in the kingdom by his father. On the death of Alketas however the succession was disputed, and we find Arybbas and Neoptolemos dividing the kingdom between them, Arybbas being married to his brother's daughter Troas. Neoptolemos died early (certainly before 357 B.C.) leaving a son and daughter, Alexander and Olympias; these were brought up in the house of their uncle Arybbas, who now reigned alone. Anxious to extend his influence, Arybbas secured Philip of Macedon for his niece's hand, and so gave Philip an opportunity of aggression which he was not slow to use (Justin. vii. 6). First of all he insisted on taking the child Alexander under his own charge (Justin. viii. 6), an interference referred to by Demosthenes (Ol. i. p. 13, and Schol.),—and as soon as the youth was twenty years of age Arybbas was expelled and Alexander made king as Philip's puppet. This happened probably in 343 or 342 B.C. Arybbas fled with his two sons, Alketas and Œakides, the latter being afterwards the father of the famous king Pyrrhos. Our inscription shows that Arybbas was welcomed at Athens, on the strength of the friendship of Athens with his father Alketas (No. 81) and grandfather Tharypas. The exiled king takes the opportunity of recording at the foot of the slab his victories at the games. On the provision about the πρυτάρεις in l. 14 foll. see No. 28.

It was essential to the safety of Athens to retain her hold upon the Hellespont, and so secure her corn-supply from the Euxine. The Chersonnese had been an ancient possession of Athens from the days of Miltiades; and in 353 B.C., after the capture of Sestos by Chares, and again under Dioppeithes in 343 B.C., fresh Kleruchs were sent out (Grote, ch. 87 and 90; Schäfer, Dem. u. s. Zeit. i. 402; ii. 421). These are the Ἀθηναῖοι ἐν Χερρόνησῳ of our decree. We are told in the Argument of Dem. de Cherson. that all the towns in Chersonnese (except Kardia, which was in the hands of Philip) received the settlers with good grace—glad perhaps of any help against Macedon. As however Diopethes was not supported with money from Athens, and had to pay and feed his troops as he could, there might naturally be complaints made to Athens against him and his kleruchs. This decree enjoins that Chares shall take care that the interests of Elaius shall be respected in the same way as had been provided for the other towns of the Chersonnese. Chares was afterwards replaced by Phokion in the relief of Byzantion (Grote, ch. 90; Schäfer, ibid. ii. p. 475). On the circumstances connected with this decree see the speeches of Demosthenes, de Cherson., and Philippic iii.

The archonship of Theophrastos, B.C. 340-339, is memorable as the year in which Athens finally declared war with Philip, and, by following up with arms the successful diplomacy of Demosthenes, saved Byzantium and the Chersonnese. In this decree, mutilated as it is, we find the people of Tenedos, and Aratos (their general?), and also their deputy at the confederate synod (σύνεδρος), are crowned and praised for help given (βοήθεια) and money lent. Tenedos is to be exempt from tribute (σύνταξις) for the whole of next year, and her loan is to be repaid. Köhler is probably right in referring these services of the Tenedians to the defence of Byzantium. On the importance of Tenedos (i.e. Besika bay) in connexion with the corn-ships from the Euxine cp. Demosth. p. 217.

The restoration of these fragments is due to Kirchhoff, who got his clue from the following dedication upon a statue-base found on the Akropolis: Κεκροπίδος αἱ στρατευσάμενοι ἐπὶ Λυσιμαχῶδου ἄρχοντος | [κ]αὶ ὁ ταξίαρχος Βούλαρχ[ο]ς Ἀριστοβούλου Φλυέως Ἀθηναῖ (see Rangabé, Anl. Hell. 1160, 2368). On the ταξίαρχοι see No. 19. Bularchos had fought in those earlier engagements which preceded the decisive battle: Dem. de Cor. p. 300, δὲς τε συμπαραταξάμενοι τὰς πρώτας, τῆς τ' ἐπὶ τοῦ ποταμοῦ (Kephissos) καὶ τὴν χειμερινήν (the one in the winter) κ.τ.λ. This was about Feb. 338 B.C.; see Schäfer, Demosthenes, etc. ii. p. 528.

The fidelity of the Akarnanians to Athens has been described on No. 83: Livy (xxxiii. 16), speaks of the 'fides insita genti.' There is little doubt that the occasion referred to in the words βοηθήσαντες μετὰ δυνάμεως συγκατετάσσοντο μετὰ Ἀθηναίων was the battle of Chæronea, which was fought in August 338 B. C. The heading of our decree is partly restored from that of C. I. A. ii. 122: it is dated May 337. Diodorus, xvii. 3, speaks of τοὺς ἐξ Ἀκαρνανίας φυγάδας . . . διὰ Φιλίππου πείραν εἰληφότες τῆς φυγῆς, —Philip immediately after Chæronea having subdued Akarnania and banished the partisans of Athens. Among these were the brothers Karphinas and Phormion, whose grandfather Phormion had received the Athenian citizenship. When we remember the strong affection of the Akarnanians for the Athenian general Phormion in the Peloponnesian War (Thuk. iii. 7), we conclude with confidence that the great-grandfather of the brothers had become the guest-friend of the famous general, and had named his son after him.

Staatsalterth.* 1⁵. § 134, 11. Every year the nine archons, assisted by a secretary, selected by lot (from among all citizens who applied) 600 from each tribe, who were thereupon drafted into ten divisions of 500 each, the odd 1000 standing in reserve to fill up vacancies. Each received a tablet (πινάκιον) stamped with his name, with the number of his division (expressed by the letters A to I, so that the πινάκια were often called γράμματα), and with the owl or gorgoneion which served, so to speak, as the seal of the Athenian republic. This πινάκιον is not to be confused with the σύμβολον or voucher which the dikast received upon being impanelled to try a case, and which qualified him to receive his τριώβολον. Nor have the letters anything to do with the letters by which the various courts were marked. Dikasts of different divisions might be impanelled together to try the same case; and the number of dikasts impanelled varied greatly according to the nature of the case, only the number was generally an odd one. Of the three πινάκια printed above, the first two belonged to the third division, the last to the fifth. They were found in tombs; it was perhaps usual to bury a dikast's πινάκιον with him: and this lends a grim force to the jest in Arist. Plut. 277: 'Εν τῇ σορῶ νυτὶ λαχὼν τὸ γράμμα σου δικάζειν, | σὺ δ' οὐ βαδίζεις; ὁ δὲ Χάρων τὸ ζύμβολον δίδωσιν.

The date is early in 336; ἐκτῆς alone will fit the lacuna. The names of Chærestatos' father and deme are restored from other decrees of this date (cp. No. 121, and C. I. A. 125 foll.). It is probable that this stelè (the international importance of which is indicated by the nature of the relief) contained the grant of citizenship to Alkimachos and Antipater, Philip's generals, which was probably carried by Demades: see Harpokr. s. v. Ἄλκιμαχος: Ἄλκιμαχος Μακεδών, οὐ μνημονεύει Ὑπερείδης ἐν τῷ κατὰ Δημάδου σύτῳ· Ἄλκιμαχον καὶ Ἀντίπατρον Ἀθηναίους καὶ προξένους ἐποίησάμεθα.' Comp. A. Schäfer, Demosthenes, etc. iii. p. 30. Alkimachos was the brother of Lysimachos, see Droysen, Hellenismus, i. 1. p. 201.

With sufficient certainty the name of Demades is restored as the mover of the resolution, which grants προξενία to a Macedonian who had assisted Demades in negotiating the peace with Philip.

It is a pity the document is imperfect, as it might have cleared up our knowledge of the obscure history of the times referred to. In § 1 Aristomachos' father is said to have rendered service to an Athenian force sent into Argolis to help the Argives in resisting a common enemy. This no doubt refers to the Korinthian war B.C. 394 foll. (Xen. Hell. iv. 2, 17); to which period Curtius assigns the brilliant engagement at Cēnoe mentioned by Pausan. i. 15, 2; x. 10, 2 (τῆς νίκης ἦντινα ἐν Οἰνόῃ τῇ Ἀργείᾳ αὐτοὶ (i. e. Argives) τε καὶ Ἀθηναίων ἐπικούροι Λακεδαιμονίους ἐνίκησαν), a victory which made much noise at the time, though the philo-Lakonian Xenophon omits it (Curtius, Gr. Gesch. iii.⁴, 192). His father had also contributed to the rebuilding of the Athenian walls in 393 B.C., a work which was helped on not only by the crews of Pharnabazos but by the confederate cities (Xen. Hell. iv. 8, 10: καὶ Βοιωτοὶ καὶ ἄλλαι πόλεις ἐθελούσαι συνετέλχισαν).

§ 2. deals with Aristomachos himself. He had sympathised with those aspirations for liberty which were expressed at Athens, Argos, and elsewhere, upon Philip's death (Diodor. xvii. 3), or perhaps during Alexander's Illyrian expedition at the time of the Theban rising (ibid. 8). At the final conclusion of peace, when Alexander visited Korinth, Aristomachos had used all his influence and wealth on behalf of Athens.

This edict was issued by Alexander after the reduction of the Greek cities on the coast. Priene was among the cities which submitted without a blow, and therefore might expect some favours (cp. No. 124). Naulochon is named by Pliny, N. H. v. 29; it was a small port at the mouth of the Mæander (Le Bas-Waddington, Voyage Arch. Pt. 5, No. 186).

After the victory of Granikos, on his march southwards, Alexander seems to have spent some little time at Ephesos, where he found the Artemision (burned down on the night he was born) had nearly finished rebuilding. Strabo repeats a story (p. 641) that Ἀλέξανδρον δὴ τοῖς Ἐφεσίοις ὑποσχέσθαι τὰ γεγυότα καὶ τὰ μέλλοντα ἀναλώματα, ἐφ' ᾧ τε τὴν ἐπιγραφὴν αὐτὸν ἔχειν τοὺς δὲ μὴ ἐθελῆσαι . . . ἐπαυεῖ τε (Artemidoros) τὸν εἰπόμενον τῶν Ἐφεσίων πρὸς τὸν βασιλέα, ὡς οὐ πρόποι θεῶν θεοῖς ἀναθήματα κατασκευάζειν. We may suppose that Alexander visited Priene also, and found the Priemians less scrupulous or less wealthy (cp. Droysen, Hell. i. 1. 202).

Revolutions at Eresos : B.C. 333-301.

Fragments of a block of marble inscribed on three sides—A (front), B (side), and C (back). The upper parts of A and C are wanting. Published by Conze, Reise auf der Insel Lesbos, pp. 35 foll.; Sauppe, Commentatio de duabus inscr. Lesb.; Cauer, Delictus, No. 123; but far more accurately by Kirchhoff, in Droysen's Hellenismus, 1878, vol. ii. 2, pp. 363 foll. I have followed Kirchhoff, verifying his text, and in part improving it by help of a number of impressions made by Mr. Newton at Lesbos, where the marbles remain.

[§ 1. Inscribed upon the lost upper half of A was a 'Law against the Tyrants,'—νόμος κατὰ τῶν τυράννων,—often referred to in the following documents.]

[§ 2. Probably there was also here a record of the Judgment upon Eurysi(la)os,—κρίσις ὑπὲρ Εὐρυσι[λά]ω,—referred to in § 8, lines 130 foll.]

On the general political movements of this period,—the growth of oligarchies and tyrannies in the Ægean under the Persian influence, the factions fomented by Philip, the motive and the results of Alexander's edict recalling the exiles,—the reader is referred to the notes on Nos. 112, 126, and 131. As to Eresos, it joined the new Athenian Confederacy in 378 B. C. (No. 81), and no doubt remained democratic until the Social War in B. C. 357. Then followed a time during which, under Persian influence, Eresos was in the hands of 'tyrants.' We gather from lines 37, 38, and 138 that three of these earlier tyrants were brothers named Hermon, Heræos, and Apollodoros, who perhaps succeeded each other in power: for 'Απολλοδώρειων = υἰῶν τῶν 'Απολλοδώρου, and lines 37 foll. are equivalent to 'Ηρωίδα τοῦ Τερτικῶνος τοῦ 'Ηραίου καὶ 'Αγησιμένεος τοῦ 'Ερμησίδα ('Απολλοδώρειος, Τερτικῶνειος, 'Ηράειος being Æolic patronymics). That Apollodoros was tyrant last of the three explains the circumstance that his children are classed with grandchildren of the other two (lines 137-139): indeed they may have been too young in 324 B.C. to join personally in the application referred to in § 4, where they are not named; although they were virtually included in that application (line 138). It does not appear in what way this dynasty came to an end; probably by a revolution, in which perhaps Theophrastos the philosopher had a hand (see Plut. adv. Coloten: Θεοφράστῳ δις ἐλευθερῶσαι τυραννομένην, sc. τὴν πατρίδα; also Non posse suav. vivi sec. Ep.: Θεοφράστου καὶ Φειδίου τοὺς τῆς πατρίδος ἐκκοψάντων τυράννους). If however the democracy was for a time restored, another tyrant soon appeared in Eurysilaos (lines 130, 134), a man of a different family. Following Droysen's reconstruction of the history, we find that Eurysilaos must have been expelled and the democracy restored by the time of the battle of Granikos, 334 B.C. In the Demosthenic oration, De fœd. Alex. p. 213 (spoken B.C. 333), Alexander is taunted with his inconsistency in maintaining tyrants in Messenia, and expelling them from Eresos.

The liberation by Alexander in 334 B.C. was shortlived; for in 333 the Persian admiral Memnon (Arrian, ii. 1, 1) sailed against Lesbos to detach the towns from Alexander. Memnon's siege of Eresos is referred to in lines 1, 2. The subject of αὐτομόλησε, etc. is 'Αγώνικπος. This man seized the opportunity to escape to the Persian lines, and then by the help of Memnon made himself tyrant of Eresos. All this, and his other iniquities, form the subject of § 3. He was of course violently anti-Macedonian, and destroys an altar of Zeus Philippios, erected in honour of Alexander's father. After a short but cruel reign, he flies to Alexander with a lying version of his late proceedings. How he was received we are not told; but the Eresians formally declare him an outlaw (lines 1-32). The λαῖσταί or λησταί are the mercenary troops left behind by Memnon.

The date of § 4 is just after the recall of the exiles in B.C. 324. Heroidas and Agesimenes, grandsons of the former tyrants, Herakos and Hermon, had appealed to Alexander to be allowed the benefit of this edict. Many such applicants flocked to Alexander at Babylon (cp. Diod. xvii. 113). The Eresians, by permission of Alexander, refused them return,—though the decree is here broken off. It was moved by Hagnodamos (line 33).

§ 5 belongs to the same date as § 4. It records a second trial of Agonippos' case. He too had claimed restoration under the edict of recall. But Alexander had dealt with him as with other tyrants in a similar case: τοὺς τυράννους μὲν ἐκ τῶν πόλεων εἰς τὰς πόλεις πέμπει, χρῆσασθαι δ' ὅπως ἐθέλοιεν (Arrian, iii. 2, 7), and the Eresians, deciding this time not only by their native laws (line 28) but κατὰ τὰν διαγραφὰν τῷ βασιλέως Ἀλεξάνδρῳ καὶ τοὺς νόμοις (lines 37 foll.), re-affirm their condemnation of Agonippos.

§ 6 informs us that some of the exiles already named, after failing to obtain restoration under Alexander, applied in vain to his successor Philip Arrhidæos (B.C. 323-317) to reverse the previous decisions given above.

§ 7. The sons of Agonippos (who is now dead) being banished from Eresos, had applied to King Antigonos (B.C. 306-301), who had written a letter in their favour to the Eresians (lines 114 foll.). The Eresians had replied with a decree (line 116), which they had forwarded to Antigonos (lines 109 foll.). To their decree the king replies in this letter, in which no doubt he gives his consent to the perpetual banishment of the sons of Agonippos.

§ 8 is a final decree of the Eresian people, based on a προζούλευμα (line 123), reciting and re-affirming their previous decisions and enactments against 'the tyrants;' both those members of their families who had once lived in the city (οἰκηθέντων lines 149, 156), and their children who had always lived in exile. It should be remembered that restoration from exile meant not only recovery of political status, and return to native soil, but also the recovery of lands and property confiscated.

Line 5: 'that the erection of the statue was a protest against themselves.' Line 12: διαστολήν, 'specification;' cf. Polyb. xvi. 14; xxi. 1. Line 13: ἀρχιτέκτων, 'the contractor.'

§ 2. Additional resolution, moved by the same person, that the monthly treasures of the state-funds shall supply the commissioners of the market with money for the decoration of the statue:

The decline of Athenian influence in the Ægean, and the consequent extension of Persian dominion, favoured the growth of oligarchies and tyrannies in the islands (see Nos. 112, 125, 131). It has been remarked (see No. 131), that Philip impartially assisted any faction which promised to further Macedonian interests: and herein Alexander followed his example. The consequence was a perpetual series of revolutions throughout the cities of the Ægean, which supplied Aristotle with abundance of material for his political speculations, and explains at once the importance and the wisdom of Alexander's recall of the exiles in 334 B.C. As to Chios, we know that in 351-0 B.C. it was under an oligarchy (Dem. de Rhod. lib. p. 196). Then the government seems to have passed into the hands of a tyrant supported by Persia, like Agonippos at Eresos (No. 125). It is at this point in the succession of events that our inscription begins to afford us information. Aided probably by Philip, the δῆμος effected a revolution, the tyrant being assassinated by Philitos. Then, in 333 B.C., Memnon with the Persian fleet effects a counter-revolution and restores the oligarchs (Arrian, ii. 1. 1), who deface the statue of the tyrannicide. Lastly, in 332 B.C., the exiled δῆμος made a violent effort to return, in which they were effectually assisted by Hegelochos and Amphoteris, the Macedonian commanders. The Persian garrison was expelled, and the leaders of the oligarchy were banished to Egypt, to the island of Elephantine (Arrian, iii. 2, 3-7; Curtius, iii. 1. 3).

Found near the theatre at Athens. The text is from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. p. 412. Above the heading is a relief: a man approaches Athena, holding a patera; behind him are two horses (cp. Droysen, Hellen. i. 1, p. 392 n.).

The date is June 330 B.C., Alexander having defeated Darius at Arbela in October 331. Meanwhile the effect of his absence was seen in various movements in the direction of Greek liberty. (Æschin. in Ctes. 164 foll. describes the hopes of the anti-Macedonian party at that time.) The chief rising was under Agis in the Peloponnese in the spring of 330 B.C., which was promptly crushed by Antipater in one decisive battle in Arkadia. Antipater was however hampered in reaching Peloponnese by the critical state of N. Greece. In Thrace Memnon the Macedonian commander had revolted, and Zopyrion had rashly invaded Scythia and met with disaster. Our inscription shows that the Odrÿssæ shared in the movement, and were acting in concert with the rising in Greece proper. Seuthes sends his son Rebulas to Athens, and perhaps to other Greek states. Although welcomed at Athens, as this inscription proves, he was not able to effect anything. The Athenians took no part in the revolt, and Demosthenes himself, while warmly sympathising with the movement, did not counsel more decided action (Diod. xvii. 62, 63; Droysen, Hell. i. 1. 392; Q. Curtius, x. 1. 43, seems to refer to these events, but he is out in his chronology, see Schäfer, Demosth. iii. 183).

The financial administrations of Lykurgos began in mid-summer 338 B.C., and lasted for three πεντετηρίδες, i. e. twelve years, until midsummer 326. His public services are recounted by Plutarch, Vit. X. Oratt., Comp. No. 145. Of his public works the chief were the repair of the great Theatre, and the building of the Panathenaic Stadion. In l. 17, the stone-cutter ought to have written ποίησιν τοῦ θεάτρου καὶ τοῦ σταδίου τοῦ Παναθ. Ll. 15 foll.: ζεῦγος is a cart and pair, for the hauling of marble and the carting away of earth. Εἰς τὸν πόλεμον, l. 14, may surprise us: for what war were the Athenians likely to engage in? It was well known to Alexander however that Athens was only submissive to him under compulsion, and No. 127 significantly shows the feelings of the time. Two great works of Lykurgos himself were the rebuilding of the Athenian fortifications and the erection of an arsenal (σκευοθήκη). Line 29 foll.: his burthens, if he resided at Athens, were to be those of a citizen and not those of a metoek.

Dedication at Olympia by one of Alexander's quartermasters: B.C. 330-320.

A statue-base recently excavated at Olympia: the text is from Dittenberger, Archäol. Zeitung, 1879, p. 139. A fragment of a similar base is edited also ib. 1879, p. 209.

Βασιλέως Ἀλε[ξάνδρου]
 ἡμεροδρόμας καὶ

βηματιστῆς τῆς Ἀσίας Φιλωνίδης Ζώτου Κρής
 ἔ Χερσονάσιος ἀνέθηκε Διὶ Ὀλυμπίῳ.

This statue is mentioned by Pausanias, vi. 16, 4: ἔστηκεν καὶ Φιλωνίδης Ζώτου, γένος μὲν ἐκ Χερσονήσου τῆς Κρητῶν, Ἀλεξάνδρου δὲ ἡμεροδρόμος τοῦ Φιλίππου. I will transcribe the remarks of Droysen, Hellenismus, i. 2, p. 383, where, speaking of the materials anciently available for the history of Alexander, he says: 'We may say much the same (as of the log-book of Nearchos and the Ἐφημερίδες βασιλείας) of what is told us concerning Alexander's βηματισταὶ (steppers). There could not fail to be a full staff of quartermasters in Alexander's army, who had among other duties to arrange each day's march, to direct the route of the several columns, to mark out the place of encampment, etc. The memoranda drawn up by these officers in the execution of their duties yielded an exact information concerning the distances and routes traversed, which was of the highest importance to the geographical studies of the following time. We hear of Βαίτων ὁ Ἀλεξάνδρου βηματιστῆς ἐν τῷ ἐπιγραφομένῳ Σταθμοὶ τῆς Ἀλεξάνδρου πορείας (Athen. x. 442), or again, of 'Diognetus et Bæton itinerum ejus mensores' (Plin. N. H. vi. 21, 61), or else Ἀμύντας ἐν τοῖς σταθμοῖς, from whose First Book is cited a note about Syria, and from the Third a note upon Nineveh. Archelaos also, ὁ χωρογράφος τῆς ὑπ' Ἀλεξάνδρου πατθελείας γῆς (Diog. L. ii. § 17), may have served, though Diogenes does not say so, in Alexander's army. It is worth observing that Patrokles, governor of Babylon under Seleukos I, the explorer of the Caspian sea, asserted in his work on geography that Alexander's officers drew up a summary account (ἐπιδρομάδην) of the countries they traversed, which Alexander himself revised (ἀκριβῶσαι), and put into the most expert hands to be edited (Strabo, ii. 69).'

In the heading we should expect 'γνώμη πρυτάνεων,' but not all the men are πρυτάνεις, as some have appointed deputies in their place. Lines 20 foll.: κυκλίων τῇ πρώτῃ, sc. παρόδῳ.

Line 39 foll. [δι]ακοσιᾶν or [τρ]ιακοσιᾶν. At least 250 suits between citizens of Kalymna had been entered, and the authorities were at a loss how to deal with them. For such a state of things pointed to something within measurable distance of civil war, and the more urgent the need for a prompt decision, the more difficult it was to try the suits: for how could any dikastery command respect for its decisions, when the whole citizen body was rent into factions? Accordingly foreign dikasts are sent for, ξενικὸν δικαστήριον. This was an expedient often resorted to in such cases, as is proved by the numerous inscriptions similar in character and date to the present, which have been found in all parts of Greece and the Ægean. The document before us is an interesting specimen of a well-known class. Nearly all the disputes at Kalymna were successfully settled by compromise and arbitration (ll. 40 foll.); and the ten which were finally tried were settled without suspicion of guilty influence from the party who insisted on carrying the matter into court (ἀνερίθεντοι τῷ τὸ κρίναι ἐλομένῳ, if Böckh's restoration is correct). The basis of settlement adopted by the five dikasts was the 'edict of the king' and the standing laws of Kalymna (ll. 44 foll.): we cannot be wrong in taking the διάγραμμα to be Alexander's edict for the recall of the Exiles (see on No. 125).

45 [. . . ἐν στάλῃ λιθίνῃ στᾶσαι κ.τ.λ.]

The letters are beautifully inscribed στοιχηδόν. The restorations, which I have chiefly taken from Böckh, are merely suggestions as to the probable sequence of construction and meaning. The dialect is Æolic, but not purely so. Some forms are peculiar: l. 10 κατάγρευτον = καθαιρούντων, as ἀγρεθέντες l. 28 = αἰρεθέντες: δείγην l. 38 is ὀγειν. We may understand διαγραφά l. 15 of the Edict of Alexander (see No. 125, § 5), and διαλυσεσσι l. 23 refers to decisions which he had given in special cases of difficulty on which he had been consulted by envoys.

When Alexander sent Nikanor to Olympia, in July 324 B.C., to proclaim the restoration of all exiles throughout Greece, he was not influenced by a merely selfish policy. His father Philip had with much impartiality aided either or any faction in the Greek states which would help him in his policy of aggression; and therefore the first to benefit by Alexander's edict would be the banished enemies of Macedonian interests. Large numbers of them had enlisted in the Persian service; but now the victories of Alexander left them without home or object, and they were finding their way back to become a source of disquiet throughout Greece. The edict was therefore a wise exercise of despotic power, in the interests of peace. It was obeyed by all except the Ætolians (who feared the vengeance of the exiles of Cnidae), and the Athenians, who, having occupied Samos with cleruchs in 365-352 B.C., were loth to lose their possessions (see No. 90). How much excitement and disturbance was caused by the return of the exiles is shown by the crowd of envoys which hastened to Alexander at Babylon ἐξ ἀπάσης σχεδὸν τῆς οἰκουμένης (Diod. xvii. 113; Arrian, vii. 19). For the troubles at Kalymna and Eresos see Nos. 130 and 125. The present fragment shows us how matters gradually settled down at Mytilene: see Droysen, Hellen. i. 2. p. 291.

Concerning Gorgos and his brother see No. 135. The 'little sea' is the sinus Læius, a wild and gloomy inlet, which was probably valuable for its fishing: see Athen. p. 105 e: and Strabo, p. 658: 'Ἰασὸς ἐπὶ νήσῳ κείτῃ προσκειμένη τῇ ἠπείρῳ· ἔχει δὲ λιμένα, καὶ τὸ πλεῖστον τοῦ βίου τοῖς ἐνθάδε ἐκ θαλάττης. In line 9, ἐγγόνοις must be meant for ἐκγόνοις; but see No. 148.

As soon as Alexander's death was known for certain, Athens stood forth as the champion of Greek freedom, and the result was the Lamian war. It is hard to see what this inscription can be, except a list of the states which joined the Athenian league against Macedon, the numerals appended to the names indicating the number of votes each state was to have in the federal synod. No. 147 is in honour of Timosthenes the delegate of Karystos. See Diod. xviii. 11: Αἰτωλοὶ μὲν οὖν ἅπαντες πρῶτοι συνέθεντο τὴν συμμαχίαν, καθάπερ προεῖρηται· μετὰ δὲ τούτους Θετταλοὶ μὲν πάντες, πλὴν Πελονησίων· Οἰταῖοι δὲ, πλὴν Ἡρακλεωτῶν· Ἀχαιοὶ δὲ Φθιώται, πλὴν Θηβαίων· Μηλιαεῖς δὲ, πλὴν Λαμίων· ἐξῆς δὲ Δωριεῖς ἅπαντες, καὶ Λοκροὶ, καὶ Φωκεῖς· ἔτι καὶ δὲ Αἰνιᾶνες, Ἀλυζαῖοι, καὶ Δόλοπες· πρὸς δὲ τούτοις Ἀθάμαντες καὶ Λευκάδιοι, καὶ Μολοσσῶν οἱ περὶ Ἀρναπταίων. . . . τῶν τ' Ἰλλυριῶν καὶ Θρακῶν ὀλίγοι συνέ-

Two μέτοικοι, Nikander of Ilium Novum and Polyzelos of Ephesos, are honoured 'in the tenth prytany of Nikokles' = June 301, for their loyalty and munificence to Athens. (§ 1)

They had paid their tax duly for the building of the new docks and the marine arsenal, (§ 2) contributing towards 'the ten talent fund' from Themistokles' year to Kephisodoros (B.C. 347-323); and also (§ 3) in the Lamian war (called τοῦ Ἑλληνικοῦ πολέμου, as in Plut. Phocion. 23) they had assisted in the equipment of the fleet which under Euetion met with two defeats (Diod. xviii. 15; Droysen, Hellen. ii. 1. p. 69). The old docks had been destroyed by Lysander (Lysias, contra Agorat. xiii. 46; contra Nicom. xxx. 22). Their reconstruction began at the time of Demosthenes' first entrance into public life, and was finished under the administration of Lykurgos. The new arsenal for naval stores (σκευοθήκη, ὀπλοθήκη), built by the architect Philon for the same great administrator, was one of the most famous buildings of antiquity (Strabo, p. 395; Cic. de oratore i. 14): it was destroyed by Sulla (Plut. Sulla 14). One may doubt whether the 'ten talent fund' was a separate reserve fund like τὰ δέκα τάλαντα in Nos. 81, § 5 and 87; or whether it was a yearly sum of ten talents raised during those twenty-four years towards the erection of the arsenal and docks.

These two Iasians are rewarded for various services rendered to the Samians: cp. No. 132. Gorgos was in the service of Alexander as ὀπλοφύλαξ (Athen. p. 538 d), and was the author of a work on mines (Strabo, p. 700). He had (1) used his influence with Alexander to procure the restoration of the Samians; (2) he was at Babylon when so many envoys flocked thither, in the spring of 323 B.C., to thank Alexander for his edict of recall, and in the name of the Samians he too had presented a crown to the king; (3) he had bespoken the aid of the people of Iasos for the Samians on their return; (4) both Gorgos and his brother promise to continue their friendship for the future. See Droysen, Hellen. 2. p. 361, and reff. γένος, ἑκατοστῶν, χιλιαστῶν are groups of 10, 100, 1000 families respectively, and are subdivisions of the φυλή.

Among the various 'kings' who ruled at Salamis in Kypros, paying tribute to the Persian king, yet with independent authority, and claiming descent from the heroes Teukros, Telamon, and Æakos, the best known to us is Evagoras, the friend of Konon, see No. 72: and compare Grote, ch. 76. It was his son and successor Nikokles for whom Isokrates wrote the panegyric upon Evagoras (see on No. 87). Nikokles appears to have been succeeded by Pnytagoras, who may have been his son, and who was certainly in power in 350 B.C. (Diod. xvi. 46). His submission to Persia secured him in his principedom until Alexander's expedition, when all Kypros passed into Alexander's hands, and Pnytagoras assisted at the siege of Tyre. Pnytagoras seems to have died away from home, and his son Nikokreon succeeded him before 331 B.C. (Plut. Alex. 29). Later on Nikokreon cast in his lot with Ptolemy, and in return for his services was rewarded with the chief command of the island (Diod. xix. 59, 62, 79; and Droysen, Hellen. passim). To the Egyptian kings Kypros was especially valuable as supplying precisely what Egypt lacked, viz. wood and metal in abundance for shipbuilding. Copper takes its name from the island: μέταλλά τε χαλκοῦ ἔστιν ἐφθονα τὰ ἐν Ταμασσῶ (Strabo, p. 684). The Heræa or Hekatombea was a famous festival at Argos, at which the prize for the chief athlete was a shield: so that this victory was commonly styled τὴν ἐξ Ἄργους ἀσπίδα (νικᾶν); cp. Pindar, Olymp. vii. 83: ὄτ' ἐν Ἄργει χαλκὸς ἔγνω μιν.

Demades was put to death early in 318 B.C., and in the form of heading τῶν προέδρων ἐπεψήφισεν the addition καὶ συμπρόεδροι is not known to occur before 319 B.C. This would fix the date. These Athenian captives—sold into Krete and redeemed by Eurylochos—were probably fighting as mercenaries on the Persian side at Granikos. The fragment of a very similar decree occurs in C. I. A. ii. 194, where another benefactor is praised for his kindness in Asia [τοῖς στρατευ]ομένοις Ἀθηνα[ίων], and for redeeming and restoring Athenians captured at what is called [μάχη]ς τῆς ἐν Ἑλλη[σπόντῳ], i. e. Granikos: see Arrian, i. 29. A good many Athenians were taken captive, and envoys from Athens reached Alexander at Gordion, sent to negotiate their release: but Alexander retained them until after the battle of Issos, when a second embassy was more successful with him at Tyre (Arrian, iii. 6).

Nesos or Nasos was the largest of the group of islands between Lesbos and the coast called Ἐκατόνησοι, and is thus described by Strabo, p. 618: Κατὰ δὲ τὸν πορθμὸν τὸν μεταξὺ τῆς Ἀσίας καὶ τῆς Λέσβου νησιά ἐστὶ περὶ εἴκοσι, ὡς δὲ Τιμοσθένης φησὶ, τετταράκοντα· καλοῦνται δ' Ἐκατόνησοι πλησίον δὲ τούτων ἐστὶ καὶ ἡ Πορδοσελήμη, πόλις ὁμώνυμον ἔχουσα ἐν αὐτῇ· καὶ πρὸ τῆς πόλεως ταύτης ἄλλη Νῆσος (sic scrib. pro γῆσος πόλις) μείζων αὐτῆς, καὶ πόλις δμῶνυμος ἔρημος, ἱερὸν ἀγιον ἔχουσα Ἀπόλλωνος. Nesos was the largest of the group, and is named in No. 47, o, among the tributaries of Athens. Thersippos is honoured by the Nasiatæ for using his influence with the Macedonian court and princes on behalf of the city: and we may therefore identify him with the trusted envoy who conveyed Alexander's reply to Dareios after the battle of Issos (Arrian, ii. 14, 4). The decree was passed before B.C. 317, when Philip Arrhidæos was murdered by Olympias, for the two princes Arrhidæos and Alexander IV are spoken of all through as οἱ βασιλεῖς. § 1. The recital of Thersippos' services began with Alexander's lifetime, and went on in § 2 to speak of the troublous times that followed. § 3 deals with the time when Antipater and Krateros hastened to Asia and the Hellespont to oppose Perdikkas in 321 B.C.; Antipater claimed to be, and is here spoken of as, the true guardian of the royal princes, as against the treacherous Perdikkas. § 4. Kleitos the Macedonian admiral, whom Perdikkas had left with the fleet in charge of the Ægean in 321 B.C. (Justin, xiii. 6, 16), took the side of Antipater later in the year, and together with Antigonos vanquished Hagnon the Teian, Perdikkas' admiral, near Kypros: see Droysen, Hell. ii. 1. p. 135; and No. 166. § 5. This famine is not otherwise known; the supplies were obtained from 'the satraps' in the neighbourhood who had stores in reserve. § 6. ἐβαθὴ is impf. of βαθῆμι, Æol. for βοηθέω: so No. 125, ll. 27, 78. § 7. On the death of Antipater, Polysperchon was left as guardian of the princes, and sent an announcement of his authority to Asia. § 8. Arrhabæos is the 'Arrhidæos' of Diodoros and the historians, who was entrusted with the conveyance of Alexander's corpse to Egypt. The name is probably corrupted in the MSS. (Droysen, ibid. ii. 1. p. 13). In the partition of Triparadisos he was made satrap of Hellespontine Phrygia. § 9. ὄγκαρυσσέτω, Æol. for ἀνακηρ., like στροτάγοισι in § 2. § 10. What narrow escape is meant by σωθέντος we do not know. 'Marble from Therma' means Thessalian marble: Therma was merged, soon after this, in Kassander's new city Thessalonika. Pornopia is another name for the site of the temple of Apollo Smintheus in the island: the stelè is to be erected anywhere between the town and the temple (Strabo, pp. 613, 618).

The decree is from the deme Æxoneis, and therefore has less political significance than a decree of the state. The struggle between Polysperchon and Kassander which followed upon the death of the regent Antipater, B. C. 320, may be read in Grote's last volume (ch. 96) or Droysen's Hell. ii. 1. A garrison had held Munychia ever since the end of the Lamian war, which resulted in the exile of the democratic partisans. The garrison was now commanded by Nikanor in the interests of Kassander, and Polysperchon finding that at Athens and elsewhere the prevailing oligarchies were on the side of Kassander, proclaimed restoration to all exiles and return to democratic institutions. In 319 he sent his son Alexander to Athens to assist the restored democrats by force of arms; the result was the condemnation and death of Phokion. Demetrios Phalereus his colleague had meantime left the city, and probably took refuge with Nikanor, who in the meantime (not without the connivance of Phokion) had seized the Piræus also. Thus the upper city was all democratic, and the Piræus the rallying place of the oligarchy. To this bisection of the state the inscription refers, χωρισθέντων, etc. In 318 Kassander joined Nikanor in Piræus, and the result was an oligarchical reaction, and a compromise between the two parties described by Diod. xviii. 74; we learn from the inscription that Demetrios Phalereus was a chief agent in persuading the democrats to a reconciliation. But in truth they were glad on any terms to be reunited to the Piræus, without which Athens was not itself. And Athens was fed from imported corn (l. 9, σίτον εισηγάγε). The word used by Diodoros for Demetrios' office (ibid.) is ἐπιμελητής: Kassander stipulated καταστήσαι δ' ἐπιμελητὴν τῆς πόλεως ἕνα ἄνδρα Ἀθηναίων ὃν ἂν δόξῃ Κασσάνδρῳ· καὶ ἤρθε Δημήτριος ὁ Φαληρεὺς. Köhler restores either ἐπιστάτης (Strabo, p. 398) or προστάτης (Polyb. xii. 13, 9), either of which will just fill the lacuna: see Droysen, l. c. p. 234.

Agathon, father of this younger Asander, was brother of Asander satrap of Karia, and of Parmenion. In the autumn of 315 B.C., Kassander being master of Athens and most of Greece, and leagued with Ptolemy and Seleukos against Antigonos,—twenty Athenian ships under Aristoteles sailed into the Ægean and joining the fleet of Seleukos wrested Lemnos from Antigonos. Thereupon Dioskorides, the admiral of Antigonos, sailed to Lemnos and expelled Aristoteles, destroying most of his ships. It was at this juncture that young Asander was despatched by Seleukos to Athens, where the victorious fleet of Dioskorides might arrive at any moment in the Piræus (Diod. xix. 68).

Struggle between Kassander and Demetrios for the supremacy in Greece: B.C. 313–307.

Fragment found on the Akropolis: the text from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 266; comp. Hermes, v. 346.

This Πολεμαῖος is the Πτολεμαῖος of Diod. xix. 77, 78 (cp. xx. 19, 27), nephew of Antigonos, sent by him in 313 B.C., τοὺς Ἑλληνας ἐλευθερώσων. He succeeded in detaching Eubœa, Bœotia, and Phokis from Kassander: Chalkis had been Kassander's headquarters. Athens was 'liberated' by Demetrios in person B. C. 307. The invasion of Attika by Kassander was in 303 B. C.

Carthaginian Envoys at Athens: B. C. 310 (?).

These names are well known. Synalos was a Carthaginian commander in charge of Minoa in Sicily in 357 B. C. (Plut. Dion., 25). Bodmoakas (= Bod-melkarth) is the Βομῶκας, Βοαμῶκας, Βουμῶκας of Greek historians, or Bomilkar, who was executed in 308 B. C. for attempting to make himself tyrant of Carthage. The reader is referred to the 97th chapter of Grote's history for the story of Agathokles' career, and his expedition against Carthage from Aug. B. C. 310 to winter of 307. It is quite possible that Carthaginian envoys should have been sent to Athens in 310,—or even earlier, while this struggle with Agathokles was still going on in Sicily,—to secure Athenian help. The Cassandrian oligarchy which then ruled Athens receives the envoys with courtesy. It may have been to counterwork this movement that Agathokles secured in 308 the alliance of Ophellas of Kyrene, who, through his wife Euthydike, enlisted the Athenians on the other side: καὶ πρὸς μὲν Ἀθηναίους περὶ συμμαχίας διεπέμπετο, γεγαμηκῶς Εὐθυδικῆν τὴν Μιλτιάδου θυγατέρα . . . καὶ πολλοὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων προθύμως ὑπήκουσαν εἰς τὴν στρατείαν (Diod. xx. 40).

Oxythemis the courtier of Demetrios is well known from Diodoros xxi., and Athen. xiii. p. 578; xiv. 614; and vi. 253: διαβόητος δὲ ἐγένετο ἐπὶ κολακείᾳ καὶ ὁ Ἀθηναίων δῆμος. Δημοχάρης γοῦν ὁ Δημοσθένους τοῦ ῥήτορος ἀνεψιδὸς ἐν τῇ εἰκοστῇ τῶν ἱστοριῶν διηγούμενος περὶ ἧς ἐποιοῦντο οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι κολακείας πρὸς τὸν πολιορκητὴν Δημήτριον, καὶ οἱ τοῦτ' οὐκ ἦν ἐκεῖνῃ βοσλομένη, γράφει οὕτως 'ἐλύπει μὲν καὶ τούτων ἕνια αὐτόν, ὡς ἔοικε, οὐ μὴν
 ἀλλὰ καὶ ἄλλα γε παντελῶς αἰσχροῦ καὶ ταπεινά, Λεαίτης μὲν καὶ Λαμίας Ἀφροδίτης ἱερά, καὶ Βουρίχου καὶ Ἀδειμάντου καὶ Ὁξυ-θέμιδος τῶν κολάκων αὐτοῦ καὶ βωμοὶ καὶ ἡρῶα καὶ σπονδαὶ' κ.τ.λ.
 Our inscription is earlier than B. C. 301, when Antigonos was slain at Ipsos: this appears from the mention of τῶν βασιλεῶν.
 The captive ἱππεῖς may indicate a date very soon after the liberation of Athens B. C. 307, supposing them to have been captured during the siege of Munychia or Megara.

Megara was 'liberated' by Demetrios, like Athens, in 307 B.C. (Diod. xx. 46; Plut. Dem. 9). Neon is known from Diod. xx. 52 as commanding under Demetrios in the victory off Kypros.

Original of the famous Decree of Stratokles in honour of Lykurgos the Orator: B.C. 307.

Two fragments found at Athens: the text from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 240; cp. C. Curtius, Philologus, xxiv. pp. 83 foll.

Frag. A:

[Ἐπὶ Ἀναξικράτους ἄρχοντ]οσ ἔδοξεν τῷ δήμῳ· στρα-

The copy of this decree in Plutarch's Lives of the Ten Orators is found to be not exact, but abridged and paraphrased by the writer. The absence of the usual formulæ in the above heading makes it probable that we have here a duplicate of the official ψήφισμα. Between Frag. A and Frag. B there came the statement of the amount of public moneys administered by him. Some broken lines at the beginning of Frag. B seem to refer to the building of the docks (νεώσοικοι). Next, by the help of Plutarch's abridgement, we are able to restore as follows:

Lykurgos had been dead some seventeen years when he received these honours. Stratokles the mover was notorious for the excessive adulation he poured upon Demetrios as the 'liberator' of Athens. Liberty with Stratokles meant the forms of democracy surviving under the patronage of Macedonian conquerors; and it is painful to find these well-deserved honours to a great patriot of the last generation, made a means of indirect compliment to Demetrios. Comp. No. 128.

Demetrios appeared in the Piræus in June 307, and deposed the Kassandrian oligarchy, 'liberating Athens' during that summer. Early in 306 he defeated Ptolemy, and the title of 'King' was assumed by Antigonos, Lysimachos, Seleukos, and Ptolemy. Directly after the 'liberation,' Athenian envoys had been sent to Antigonos in Syria (Diod. xx. 46); and Droysen supposes the person here honoured to be Aristodemos the Milesian, the friend of Demetrios, who had accompanied the Athenian envoys to Antigonos (Hellenismus, ii. 2. p. 118).

After the battle of Krannon, B. C. 322, Perdikkas restored the Samians to their country, and expelled the Attic settlers (see Nos. 90, 136). During their long exile Demarchos had befriended them. After their restoration too he had used his influence in their favour. For Phila, the noble daughter of Antipater, having first been bestowed upon Krateros, in reward for his services in the Lamian war, had been married again, on her husband's death, to the young Demetrios (Poliorketes); and Demarchos the Lykian had been appointed her body-guard at the time of our inscription, and secured her favour for the Samians. Phila would not be styled βασίλισσα before 306, and the decree probably belongs to the years 304-3, when Demetrios was besieging Rhodes. At this time Phila seems to have resided in Kilikia (Diod. xx. 83; but see Droysen, Hellen. ii. 2. 258). The συναρχαί signified a committee of the magistrates of a town, which prepared measures for the βουλή and δῆμος (cp. Arist. Pol. iv. 14). By μετὰ τὰ βασιλικά is meant 'next after envoys from the kings (Demetrios and Antigonos).' On the Samian restoration see Diod. xviii. 18: ὁ δὲ Περδίκκας ἀποκαταστήσας τοῖς Σαμίους τὴν τε πόλιν καὶ χώραν, κατήγαγεν αὐτοὺς εἰς τὴν πατρίδα πεφευγότας ἔτη τρισὶ πλείω τῶν τεσσαράκοντα.

Rescripts of Antigonos concerning the Incorporation of the people of Lebedos with the Teians: B. C. 306-301.

On a tomb in the Turkish Cemetery at Teos: the text from Le Bas-Waddington, Voyage Archéol. pt. v. 86.

A. Letter of Antigonos to the Teians.

The beginning is lost, which perhaps gave the reasons and circumstances of this change. § 1. [. . . The restorations are mainly from Le Bas: but I have made some important changes of my own. There remain several difficulties which I cannot explain.

The date falls between B. C. 306, when Antigonos assumed the diadem, and the battle of Ipsos. History nowhere records this transfer of Lebedos to Teos, and we may suppose that the defeat of Ipsos cut short the plan, and prevented its execution. If so, it was these intended colonists from Lebedos to Teos whom Lysimachos in 295 B. C. incorporated (together with the Kolo-phonians) at Ephesos (Pausan. i. 9, 8). Lebedos was nearly depopulated: see Strabo, p. 643, and Horace Epistles, i. 11. 7, 'Scis Lebedus quid sit, etc.' The motive for such transfers of population was usually royal ambition, and we may detect in the present rescripts indications of unwillingness on the part of the subjects, and a desire to throw upon the monarch all the expense of the migration. A few notes are added on the meaning of the several paragraphs.

§ 1. The Lebedian delegate at the meeting of the Ionian league is to be treated in all respects as a Teian. § 2. Every Lebedian is to receive at Teos a building-site equal to the premises he has left behind him. Directions for the temporary housing of the new-comers, until they have built their own houses. Roofing is to be supplied them gratis. It will also appear, from §§ 13-14, that the Teians were to pay the Lebedians the valuation of the houses they had left. It is clear from the expressions in § 2 that great changes were contemplated in the laying out of Teos afresh. § 3. Provision for a burying-ground. § 4. Municipal debts of the town of Lebedos to be acknowledged by the newly constituted city of Teos. § 5. Similarly all grants of proxenia etc. made by Lebedos to be now transferred to Teos. § 6. Contracts and claims between Lebedians and Lebedians, or between Teians and Teians, to be decided within two years according to their laws, and the Directions (διάγραμμα, see Nos. 125, 130) of the king. Suits between Teians and Lebedians to be decided according to a covenant (συνθήκη = σύμβολοι) between the two populations, which shall regulate the procedure in such cases. If any demur to the terms of the συνθήκη, then the terms of the covenant shall be settled by an ἐκκλητος πάρις (cp. No. 200). § 7. Certain points which are not left to the discretion of the συνθηκογράφοι. As the debts have been long standing, and the accumulated interest is very large, no debtor who offers payment without incurring a suit is to be called upon to pay as interest more than twice the original capital; nor any debtor more than thrice. Creditors must claim their debts within a year, or they lapse. Absentee creditors may claim even after that time: they may summon their debtor from his home, if he refuses to appear (cp. Dem. in Timoth. 1190, προσκληθεὶς ἀπὸ τῆς οἰκίας, οὐ γὰρ ἦν φανερός), and, if the debtor be a magistrate, from his official residence. § 8. A new code of laws is to be drawn up by three commissioners (cp. No. 47, p. 79). In the meantime the laws of Kos are to be made the law of the land. § 9. Lebedians or Teians who have already served in liturgies are to be exempt in the new city. But all Lebedians are for three years to be exempt, until they have settled down: likewise Teians who intend to migrate and settle in 'the Chersonnese' are to be exempt for three years. This Chersonnese is the large peninsula in which Erythræ stands. Strabo, p. 644, says that the Teians had territory there; πρὶν δ' ἐλθεῖν ἐπὶ τὰς Ἐρυθράς, πρῶτον μὲν Ἐραι πολυχρονίον ἔστι Τητίων: the isthmus too was partly possessed by them, τὸ μὲν γὰρ νότιον τοῦ ἰσθμοῦ πλευρὸν ἔχουσι Τηῖοι τοὺς Καλκιδέας, τὸ δὲ πρόσβορρον

Κλαζομένιοι. § 10. παράθεσις is Polybios' word for 'storage of provisions:' ii. 15. 3; iii. 17. 11. The χρυσούς or gold stater = a little over fifteen shillings. The envoys as well of Lebedos as Teos request that a portion of the tribute may be reserved (ἐξαιρείσθαι), as a fund from which loans may be made to merchants, to encourage the import of corn. Antigonos grants the favour, but reluctantly: 'he has always discouraged this practice in his cities, not wishing to have them involved in debt to him for tribute, and so to feel themselves less free; personally it makes no difference to him: the vessel collecting his tribute was on the point of calling at Teos; and he thought they might rely on the neighbouring territory for sufficient supplies.' § 11. The custom-house is to be placed near the harbour, so that importers need not be obliged to bring their goods into the town, but might export them again at once, if they heard the market was bad. Probably the market was at a little distance from the harbour, and the custom-house is to be as near the harbour as possible. Agricultural produce is to pay export-duty. § 12. Appointment of Commissioners (ἐξετασταί?) to regulate the details of the migration.

B. Second letter of Antigonos to the Teians. § 13. The Teians are to pay the Lebedians the valuation of the houses they have left behind: the money to be furnished by the six hundred wealthiest citizens as registered for the payment of 'liturgies.' Τοῖς προεμπορίσασιν are Lebedians who have already been purchasing materials for building at Teos, out of their own capital. § 14. Valuers to be procured at once from Kos. The ἀποψήφισις is the 'abrogation' of the existing laws.

I take Arcestratos to have been a general of Demetrios, who at the time of Prepelaos' conquests, B.C. 302 (Diod. xx. 107), stood firm to the cause of Antigonos and Demetrios and did good service against Lysimachos and Prepelaos. Diodoros (ibid.) says that at this time two generals of Antigonos went over to Lysimachos, by name Dokimos and Phœnix: Arcestratos remained staunch. Diodoros adds that Prepelaos failed to capture Klazomenæ and Erythræ, because of ἐλθούσης κατὰ θάλατταν βοηθείας, and that he contented himself with ravaging their territory. Our inscription refers to the relief of Klazomenæ, effected by this very Arcestratos. He is also thanked for having protected the corn-vessels on their way to Ephesos. He was therefore in command of a fleet, and Ephesos was just then helpless, Prepelaos having burned their fleet in their harbour (ibid.). The decree was probably drawn up shortly before the battle of Ipsos, when Demetrios expelled from Ephesos the garrison of Prepelaos, perhaps being accompanied by this very Arcestratos (ibid. 111).

This relates to the sudden turn which the fortunes of Demetrios took, so soon after the defeat at Ipsos, when the hand of his daughter Stratonike was sought by Seleukos. This alliance was especially welcomed at Ephesos, which was all through these years a loyal supporter of Demetrios. (Plut. Dem. 31; Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. 238 foll.) Line 17: the Essenes, or chief priests of the Ephesian Artemis, are often named in this connexion.

I have improved on the text as deciphered by Chandler and by Röhl (Schedæ Epigr. 1876, p. 7): where the reading is doubtful, a mark (?) is added. The restorations, which partly differ from Böckh, are merely to represent my idea of the general context. The dispute here dealt with by Lysimachos is of considerable historical interest. From an early period Samos (like Rhodes, No. 181, notes,) had been possessed of a strip of territory on the mainland,—a Peræa—which was of value from its fertility. The Samians however were inclined to extend their Peræa by encroaching on the territory of Priene. The Prienians challenged their claim to three districts called Ἡ Βατυητῆς χώρα, τὸ φρούριον τὸ Κάριον καλούμενον, and the land round the fort called ἡ Δρυῦσσα. Our inscription mentions the earliest known episode in the quarrel: Lygdamis the tyrant of Naxos,—the friend of Peisistratos (Herod. i. 61, 64) and Polykrates (Polyæn. Strat. i. 23)—seems to have occupied the disputed region by force, (perhaps after assisting Polykrates in becoming tyrant of Samos,) and then to have reinstated the Prienians in possession. No Samian remained except as a μέτοικος, under the protection of Priene (? 532 B.C.). The next episode is related by Plutarch (Qu. Græc. 20) to explain the Prienian proverb ὁ παρὰ δρυὶ σκότος. The Samians (perhaps after Polykrates' death 522 B.C.) attacked the Prienians, and were defeated with the loss of 1000 men (cp. χιλίους of line 32). Seven years later (—does ἐξετῶν [σπονδῶν] in line 13 refer to this?—) the Milesians in alliance with Samos inflicted on Priene a bloody defeat παρὰ τὴν καλουμένην δρυὶν (cp. Δρυῦσσα named above). It was then that Bias the sage went as envoy to Samos and made favourable terms for his countrymen. In 440 B.C. Thukydides (i. 115) says Σαμίους καὶ Μιλησίους πόλεμος ἐγένετο περὶ Πριήνης κ.τ.λ., and the Milesians (who this time were allied with Priene) appealed to Athens. We may be sure that the origin of the quarrel was the same as before, and that Priene was again reinstated. A series of documents relating to the later history of the dispute was inscribed on the walls of the temple of Athena Polias at Priene: these are now in the British sum and will shortly be published all together. They are fully given by Böckh, C. I. G. 2905, and Le Bas-Wadton, Voyage Arch. Pt. V. 188-194. We find that Rhodes more than once was called in to arbitrate as an ἐκκλητος πόλις. Lysimachos II and Ptolemy Philadelphos both are named as judges made awards. Manlius the unscrupulous proconsul (No. 33, xxxviii. 35-39), who with ten commissioners had the management of the affairs of Asia after the Galatian war (B.C. 188), awarded the disputed land to Samos: but his award afterwards overruled by the senate upon an appeal from Rome. This letter of Lysimachos (B.C. 301-281) shows that after the victory at Ipsos (301 B.C.) had made him master of Asia Minor, the Samians had applied to him about their claims, and had received encouragement from him. Lysimachos was stern, but not unjust: and in this letter he appears politely to inform the Samians that, as the question has been decided (which he regrets), he is obliged to dismiss their claim as ατιμητος. Such disputes about territory were very common among the Greek cities: cf. Nos. 156, 200.

After the defeat of Ipsos, Demetrios lost for a while his ascendancy in Greece, and Kassander resumed his former influence. At Athens there set in a strong reaction against Demetrios, and a genuine disgust at the servility of which Stratokles had been the spokesman. A stand was made for real liberty (see Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. p. 240 foll.), and Kassander's menacing movements were repelled (Pausan. i. 26, 3): ἐσβαλόντος ἐς τὴν Ἀττικὴν Κασσάνδρου πλεῖστας Ὀλυμπιόδωρος ἐς Αἰτωλίαν βοηθεῖν Αἰγῶλους ἐπεισε καὶ τὸ συμμαχικὸν τοῦτο ἐγένετο Ἀθηναίοις αἴτιον μάλιστα διαφυγεῖν τὸν Κασσάνδρου πόλεμον. Our inscription probably relates to these events. Observe the name of the φυλὴ πρυτανεύουσα: in B.C. 307 two tribes, Antigonis and Demetrias, were added to the ten of Kleisthenes, the demes being redistributed. The change was a convenient one, as now in ordinary years the twelve prytanies corresponded to the twelve months. Thus here the 21st day of the second prytany coincides with the 21st of the second month: δεκάτη ὑστέρα = δεκάτη φθινοπότης (Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. 120). The τριτῆς was a division of the φυλή, one third: the officers of Poseidippos' tribe are to find the money for the inscription, out of the funds of the tribe.

On the relations of Demetrios with Athens at this time see note on Nos. 153, 160; and Droysen, Hellen. ii. 2. 254. The reaction against him had ripened into a 'four years' war,' which was now at an end: Lachares the tyrant had fled, and the Athenians were reduced to utter famine by Demetrios (Plut. Dem. 33-34): καὶ Λαχάρης ὁ τύραντος ἀπέδρα προέμενος τὴν πόλιν. Οἱ δὲ Ἀθηναῖοι, καίπερ ψηφισάμενοι θάνατον, εἰ μνησθείη τις εἰρήνης καὶ διαλλαγῆς πρὸς Δημήτριον, εὐθὺς ἀνεψῆγνυσαν τὰς ἐγγὺς πύλας καὶ πρέσβεις ἐπέμπευον κ.τ.λ. Herodorus of this inscription was one of these πρέσβεις.

Bithys is known to us from the gossip of Athenæos (pp. 246 and 614) as a retainer of Lysimachos. This decree must date either from the 'four years' war' against Demetrios, B. C. 298-295 (see No. 154); or between the expulsion of Demetrios' garrison from the Museion in 287 and Lysimachos' death in 281. I prefer the former date. During the war with Demetrios, the Athenians had been in correspondence with Lysimachos.

The circumstances of this arbitration are unknown: probably it concerned some dispute about frontier. One remembers that Oropos sometimes belonged to Boeotia and sometimes to Attika (Strabo, p. 399, Ὀρωπὸς ἐν ἀμφισβητησίμῳ γεγένηται πολλάκις ἴδρυνται γὰρ ἐν μεθορίῳ τῆς τε Ἀττικῆς καὶ τῆς Βοιωτίας: cp. pp.
65, 66). Examples of ἐκκλητοὶ πόλεις will be found in Nos. 149, § 6, and 200. The town of Lamia became memorable in the struggle of B.C. 323, see Nos. 133, 134.

On the relations between Athens and Demetrios see Nos. 153, 154, 160. In 288 B. C. Demetrios, not content with the possession of Macedonia, nor considering the dangerous power of Pyrrhos, made vast preparations for recovering the Asiatic kingdom of his father. The result was a coalition of Seleukos, Ptolemy, and Lysimachos against him. The Athenians seized the opportunity of rising against Demetrios' garrison, and under command of Olympiodoros they recovered the Museion (Pausan. i. 26): then, afraid of Demetrios' vengeance, τὸν Πύρρον ἐκ Μακεδονίας μετεπέμψοντο, μᾶλλον ἢ προσεδόκησαν ἰσχύοντα τὸν Δημήτριον ὀρώστες. Ὁ δὲ ὄργῃ μὲν ἐπέλθεν αὐτοῖς κ.τ.λ. (Plut. Dem. 46). They also secured the aid of Spartokos IV, king of Bosphoros. No. 159, and of Audoleon, king of Pæonia. It was Pyrrhos who saved them: in the summer of 287 B. C. he made a compact with Demetrios at Athens, whereby the upper city (τὸ ἄστυ) was declared free. Piræus still remained under Demetrios' garrison, but this also they are hoping to recover (line 32, συνεργῶν εἰς τε τῆς τοῦ Πειραιεύς κομιδῆν κ.τ.λ.): Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. 302.

Compare the decree in honour of king Audoleon, which refers to the same events: compare also Nos. 110, 111. The reader is again referred to the last chapter of Grote's History, for an account of the Bosphorian kingdom. Agyrrhios is no doubt the grandson of the well-known orator of that name: his father Kallimedon also, 'the crab,' was a well-known demagogue (see Schäfer, Dem. u. seine Zeit, iii. p. 335; and Athenæos, p. 340). On the statues at Athens to the ancestors of Spartokos see Demosth. Leptin. p. 466; Dinarchos, adv. Dem. 43.

The reaction at Athens against Demetrios (see Nos. 153 foll.) soon reached the point of open hostility, in what was styled the 'Four Years' War' against him, B. C. 298-295 (ὁ τετραετής πόλεμος, see the decree in honour of Demochares, in Plutarch's Lives of the X orators). This inscription is dated ἐπὶ Εὐθίου ἀρχοντος, who is later than the recognized lists carry us, but his year is fixed by help of other inscriptions (see Köhler, ad loc.). § 1. The person honoured is Philippides, a distinguished poet of the New Comedy, and a great friend of Lysimachos, with whom he made merry over Stratokles and the other Demetrios-worshippers at Athens (Plut. Demetr. 12, 26). § 2. On the procession with the peplos on the last day of the Panathenæa, 28th Hekatombæon, the reader is referred to Schömann, Gr. Alterth. ii. 447. This was the crowning feature of the festival, the peplos being spread upon a mast and yard-arm (ἱστός, κεράλα) like the sail of a ship. From both Lysimachos and Ptolemy Athens had received help in money also to resist Demetrios (see Plutarch, l. c.). § 3. A large proportion of the slain at Ipsos were Athenian followers of Demetrios; this furthered the reaction against him, in which both patriots like Demochares, and Macedonizers like Lachares, were united against the crest-fallen Stratokles. § 4. Antigonos Gonatas is meant. § 5. On the death of Kassander in 297 B. C. Lachares, till then in coalition with Demochares' party, sought opportunity for his own designs, and in 296 made himself tyrant. In the spring of 295 Demetrios entered Athens (No. 154), and restoring the democratic forms which had been discontinued by Lachares, placed a garrison in Piræus. An ineffectual attempt to expel that garrison in 293 B. C. led him to plant a second garrison on the Museion hill, thus tightening his grasp upon the upper city itself. From this moment it became the passionate ambition of Athens to expel the garrisons and restore 'liberty:' this was achieved in 287 B. C. (see Nos. 157 foll.). § 6. Isæos appears to have been archon the year before Euthias. On the historical references in this decree see Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. pp. 240-300.

The repulse of Brennos and the Gauls from Delphi in the early summer of 278 B. C. is one of the most interesting events of post-Alexandrian history. Their migratory hordes, having reached the western coasts of Europe, streamed back eastward and southward, and a century before this had swept away the Etruscan empire and deluged Rome itself. In time Italy became closed against them, and the battle of Sentinum, B. C. 295, gave a new direction to their course. Illyria, Pæonia, and the plain of the Danube now were inundated, and a horde under Brennos in 278 B. C., after ravaging Macedonia, forced, like Xerxes, the Pass of Thermopylæ, and proceeded to sack Delphi. In vain did Bœotia, Athens, Megara, the Phokians and Lokrians, and especially the Ætolians, send their best troops to oppose them;—Kydias, a young Athenian (the son probably of the mover of this decree), above all died bravely (Pausan. x. 21, 3) in this battle of the Pass. At Delphi a final check awaited them, which, though ascribed by the Greeks to the personal intervention of the gods, was due to their own fierce patriotism and the difficult nature of the locality. The Gauls, now a disordered multitude, retired northwards, and either passed into Asia, joining the hordes moving eastward under Leonnorios and Lutarios,—to be finally checked by the Pergamene kings, and to be known afterwards as the 'Galatians,'—or became mercenaries of the various kings in Asia and Europe. The date of our decree is after midsummer, 277 B. C. The reader is referred to Pausan. x. 20 foll.; Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. 340 foll.; Bishop Lightfoot's Galatians, introd.

The circumstances of this arbitration are unknown: probably it
concerned some dispute about frontier. One remembers that Oropos sometimes belonged to Boeotia and sometimes to Attika (Strabo, p. 399, Ὠρωπὸς ἐν ἀμφισβητησίμῳ γεγένηται πολλάκις·

struggle of B.C. 323, see Nos. 133, 134.

On the relations between Athens and Demetrios see Nos. 153, 154, 160. In 288 B. C. Demetrios, not content with the possession of Macedonia, nor considering the dangerous power of Pyrrhos, made vast preparations for recovering the Asiatic kingdom of his father. The result was a coalition of Seleukos, Ptolemy, and Lysimachos against him. The Athenians seized the opportunity of rising against Demetrios' garrison, and under command of Olympiodoros they recovered the Museion (Pausan. i. 26): then, afraid of Demetrios' vengeance, τὸν Πύρρον ἐκ Μακεδονίας μετεπέμποντο, μᾶλλον ἢ προσεδόκησαν ἰσχύοντα τὸν Δημήτριον ὀρῶντες. Ὁ δὲ ὀργῇ μὲν ἐπῆλθεν αὐτοῖς κ.τ.λ. (Plut. Dem. 46). They also secured the aid of Spartokos IV, king of Bosphoros. No. 159, and of Audoleon, king of Pæonia. It was Pyrrhos who saved them: in the summer of 287 B. C. he made a compact with Demetrios at Athens, whereby the upper city (τὸ ἄστυ) was declared free. Piræus still remained under Demetrios' garrison, but this also they are hoping to recover (line 32, συνεργῶν εἰς τὴν τοῦ Πειραιέως κομίδην κ.τ.λ.): Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. 302.

Compare the decree in honour of king Audoleon, which refers to the same events: compare also Nos. 110, 111. The reader is again referred to the last chapter of Grote's History, for an account of the Bosphorian kingdom. Agyrrhios is no doubt the grandson of the well-known orator of that name: his father Kallimedon also, 'the crab,' was a well-known demagogue (see Schäfer, Dem. u. seine Zeit, iii. p. 335; and Athenæos, p. 340). On the statues at Athens to the ancestors of Spartokos see Demosth. Leptin. p. 466; Dinarchos, adv. Dem. 43.

The reaction at Athens against Demetrios (see Nos. 153 foll.) soon reached the point of open hostility, in what was styled the 'Four Years' War' against him, B. C. 298-295 (ὁ τετραετής πόλεμος, see the decree in honour of Demochares, in Plutarch's Lives of the X orators). This inscription is dated ἐπὶ Εὐθίου ἀρχοντος, who is later than the recognized lists carry us, but his year is fixed by help of other inscriptions (see Köhler, ad loc.). § 1. The person honoured is Philippides, a distinguished poet of the New Comedy, and a great friend of Lysimachos, with whom he made merry over Stratokles and the other Demetrios-worshippers at Athens (Plut. Demetr. 12, 26). § 2. On the procession with the peplos on the last day of the Panathenæa, 28th Hekatombæon, the reader is referred to Schömann, Gr. Alterth. ii. 447. This was the crowning feature of the festival, the peplos being spread upon a mast and yard-arm (ἰστός, κεράλα) like the sail of a ship. From both Lysimachos and Ptolemy Athens had received help in money also to resist Demetrios (see Plutarch, l. c.). § 3. A large proportion of the slain at Ipsos were Athenian followers of Demetrios; this furthered the reaction against him, in which both patriots like Demochares, and Macedonizers like Lachares, were united against the crest-fallen Stratokles. § 4. Antigonos Gonatas is meant. § 5. On the death of Kassander in 297 B. C. Lachares, till then in coalition with Demochares' party, sought opportunity for his own designs, and in 296 made himself tyrant. In the spring of 295 Demetrios entered Athens (No. 154), and restoring the democratic forms which had been discontinued by Lachares, placed a garrison in Piræus. An ineffectual attempt to expel that garrison in 293 B. C. led him to plant a second garrison on the Museion hill, thus tightening his grasp upon the upper city itself. From this moment it became the passionate ambition of Athens to expel the garrisons and restore 'liberty:' this was achieved in 287 B. C. (see Nos. 157 foll.). § 6. Issos appears to have been archon the year before Euthias. On the historical references in this decree see Droysen, Uell. ii. 2. pp. 240-300.

The repulse of Brennos and the Gauls from Delphi in the early summer of 278 B. C. is one of the most interesting events of post-Alexandrian history. Their migratory hordes, having reached the western coasts of Europe, streamed back eastward and southward, and a century before this had swept away the Etruscan empire and deluged Rome itself. In time Italy became closed against them, and the battle of Sentinum, B. C. 295, gave a new direction to their course. Illyria, Pæonia, and the plain of the Danube now were inundated, and a horde under Brennos in 278 B. C., after ravaging Macedonia, forced, like Xerxes, the Pass of Thermopylæ, and proceeded to sack Delphi. In vain did Bœotia, Athens, Megara, the Phokians and Lokrians, and especially the Ætolians, send their best troops to oppose them;—Kydias, a young Athenian (the son probably of the mover of this decree), above all died bravely (Pausan. x. 21, 3) in this battle of the Pass. At Delphi a final check awaited them, which, though ascribed by the Greeks to the personal intervention of the gods, was due to their own fierce patriotism and the difficult nature of the locality. The Gauls, now a disordered multitude, retired northwards, and either passed into Asia, joining the hordes moving eastward under Leonnorios and Lutarios,—to be finally checked by the Pergamene kings, and to be known afterwards as the 'Galatians,'—or became mercenaries of the various kings in Asia and Europe. The date of our decree is after midsummer, 277 B. C. The reader is referred to Pausan. x. 20 foll.; Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. 340 foll.; Bishop Lightfoot's Galatians, introd.

PART VII.

PYRRHOS TO FLAMININUS.

B. C. 280-197.

IN making this division we are following the natural guidance of events. A different era now begins. The dream of an united empire embracing all Alexander's conquests has gone for ever. The royal line has long become extinct, and the men who fought under Alexander have passed away. After the tremendous conflicts of the Diadochi the Hellenic world settles down into a new and permanent order. History is now concerned with the dynasties and institutions of the Ptolemies, the Seleukidæ, the Pergamene kings. Macedon assumes her final position under Antigonos Gonatas: and the rise of the Achæan league, and the development of the Ætolian league, replace in point of interest the old civic system of Greece. Athens indeed has still a history, and the Spartan monarchy develops new features; while Rhodes maintains her independence, and rises to the highest importance in the Levant. But the names of Hiero II and Pyrrhos remind us of the increasing power of Rome, and mark out this period as introductory to the absorption of Greece in the Roman dominion.

Pyrrhos against Rome: B. C. 280-279 (?).

On a bronze plate excavated at Dodona, and sold by stealth from M. Karapanos' collection: recovered by him at Berlin, and published in Arch. Zeitung, 1878, p. 115.

[Βασιλευ]ς Πύρρο[ς και]
'Απειρω[ω]ται και Τ[αραντινοι ?]
ἀπὸ 'Ρωμαίων και [τῶν] συμμάχων Διὸ Να[ίφ].

Before starting for Italy Pyrrhos consulted the Dodona oracle: Dio Cass. Frag. 40, 6: ὅτι Πύρρος πέμψας ἐς Δωδώνην ἐμαντεύσατο περὶ τῆς στρατείας· καὶ οἱ χρησμοῦ ἐλθόντος, ἂν ἐς τὴν Ἰταλίαν περαιωθῆ Ῥωμαίους νικήσειν, συμβαλὼν αὐτὸν πρὸς τὸ βούλημα, (δεινὴ γὰρ ἔξαπατήσαί τινα ἐπιθυμία ἐστίν,) οὐδὲ τὸ ἔαρ ἔμεινεν. Afterwards in 273 B.C. (Pausan. i. 13. 2) he dedicated some of the spoils of his Macedonian conquest to Zeus at Dodona. Our inscription probably refers to the first campaign in Italy. Náios was the proper title of Zeus at Dodona: cp. Dem. in Midiám, p. 531 (see 3rd excursus in Buttman's ed.); Böckh, C. I. G. 2908, and Karapanos, Dodone et ses ruines, passim.

Tarentine dedication at Athens: B.C. 280-279 (P).

On a small architrave discovered at Athens. Published by Rangabé, Antiq. Hellén. No. 1158.

Ταραντῖνοι ἀπὸ τῶν πολεμίων ἀνέθεσαν.

M. Rangabé is perhaps right in connecting this dedication with the dubious victory of Heraklea. Tarentum ('Lacedæmonium Tarentum') was hardly likely to send a dedication to Athens, except at a time when the two cities were drawn together by the influence of Pyrrhos, the champion of both. Comp. Thuk. vi. 44, 104; vii. 1; viii. 91; and No. 157.

*The remaining seven lines are too much broken to be reproduced:
 the letter ends with ἐ(ρ)ῶσθε.*

See notes on No. 165 (Sigean inscr.). The Greek cities took advantage of the difficulties of Antiochos to claim an independence which, as this letter proves, they had lost under Seleukos. The Gauls, whose introduction into Asia had at first brought universal consternation (Droysen, Hell. iii. 1. p. 195), were probably ready to take service on the side of the cities against the king.
 Antiochos for the present has to make every concession (Droysen, ib. p. 254 foll.): Erythræ is allowed her old autonomy (No. 100), and no longer pays the Gaulish war-tax (τῶν εἰς τὰ Γαλατικὰ συναγομένων). Lines 11, 12: 'with all the means in my power to advance the interests of the city.'

The eponymi are the 'priest of the month,' who celebrated the ἐπιμήνια, or monthly sacrifice, and the ἐπιστάτης, who resembled the Athenian official so named. Novum Ilium (Hissarlik) claimed to be the veritable site of Priam's Troy; and in spite of the sober judgment of antiquity (Strabo, 601-2), the claim was allowed by Xerxes (Hdt. vii. 43), perhaps by Mindaros (Xen. Hell. i. 1. 4), by Alexander (Strabo, 593, cp. Diod. xviii. 4), and others. Dr. Schliemann believes himself to have settled the question in its favour, on the strength of his famous excavations.

In Alexander's time it was a mere fortified post (cp. Xen. Hell. iii. 1. 16), only occupied upon occasions, and with a temple of Athena scantily maintained. Alexander intended to revive the place, and build a city there: but death cut short his designs, and the new city was the creation of Lysimachos (Strabo, l. c.). Droysen (iii. 1. 253 foll.) shows that Antiochos, upon his accession in 280 B.C., found his dominions endangered on every side (see line 5). After a short campaign he concluded peace with Nikomedes king of Bithynia, and with Antigonos Gonatas (line 6). No. 164 shows how tenderly he had to deal with the Greek cities on the coast to secure their loyalty. With Ptolemy Philadelphos, who had invaded Syria, he also made peace upon the strength of a successful engagement (lines 6 foll.). At the time of this decree he has hastened back to Asia Minor (ἐπὶ τὰδε τοῦ Ταύρου, line 12), to confront the Gauls, who having been invited into Asia by Nikomedes for his private ends, had now become the common terror of all alike. The date and place of the battle are unknown, but the victory (due to the sixteen elephants of Antiochos) was a decisive one, and broke the terror of the Gauls. The victor received the title of Σωτήρ, which is used in line 38 as a mere epithet. The 'queen' is Stratonike, daughter of Demetrios Poliorketes and Phila (No. 151), and ἀδελφή is a mere title of honour. The union indeed was incestuous, for Antiochos was her stepson: but it was not a marriage with a literal ἀδελφή, like that of Ptolemy Philadelphos with Arsinoe (No. 172; Droysen, iii. 1. 267^a). Apollo was the divine progenitor of the Seleukid dynasty (Justin, xv. 4; No. 174); and the god is figured on their coins.

soon after B.C. 276.

Βασιλ]ῆ Ἀντίγονον [Δαματρίου].

This statue is mentioned by Pausan. vi. 15, 4: Δημήτριον δὲ . . . καὶ τοῦ Δημητρίου τὸν παῖδα Ἀντίγονον, ἀναθήματα ἴστω τις

Βυζαντίων ὄντας. It was his victory over the Gauls at Lysimacheia in 276 B.C. which earned him the gratitude of Byzantion (Justin, xxv. 1-2). The Gauls, settled in Thrace, were a continual danger to Byzantion (Livy, xxxviii. 16): their head-quarters were at Tyla (Polyb. iv. 46).

Honorary decrees of this kind became exceedingly common in later Greece; growing more and more wordy, and seldom possessing historical importance. Exceptions however may be found in the honorary decrees appended by Plutarch to his Lives of the X orators (cp. No. 145), and the present inscription.

It falls into three portions, as it rehearses the services of Phædros the elder, § 1; Thymochares, §§ 2-4; and Phædros himself, §§ 5 to end; § 11 is a rider to the foregoing: § 1 referred to the services of Phædros the elder in the Lamian War (Strabo, p. 446; cp. Diod. xviii. 11; Schäfer, Dem. und s. Zeit, iii. p. 335). § 2, for this sea-fight, B.C. 321, cp. the Nesiotie decree, No. 138, § 4. § 3, Glauketas was an admiral of Antigonos: Athens was still in the hands of Kassander (cp. No. 140; Droysen, Hell. ii. 2. p. 18). § 4, on the help sent to Kassander at Oreos see Diod. xix. 75; Droysen, ib. p. 32. § 5, Droysen refers this to a rising against Lachares in the spring of 295 B.C.; and he makes Nikias archon B.C. 296-5; ib. pp. 253, 395. § 6, Droysen, ib. p. 395. § 7, Ptolemy Soter abdicated in 285 B.C., and died in 283: the relations of Athens with Demetrios, Lysimachos, and Ptolemy are sketched in No. 160. § 8, Kimon's year is not known: the 'troublous times' were when Pyrrhos invaded the Peloponnese in 272 B.C., and Athens was aspiring to throw off the yoke of Antigonos (Justin, xxv. 4; Droysen, iii. 1. 209). We need not follow the other details. The erased passages referred to Demetrios and his son Antigonos; and were obliterated B.C. 200, by way of defiance to Philip V in the Macedonian War: see Livy, xxxi. 44.

Hiero II, king of Syracuse: 272-216.

On a marble base found at Syracuse in 1734: the text from C. I. G. 5368.

Βασιλέος ἀγε[ομένου]
 Ἱέρωνος Ἱεροκλέος
 Συρακόσιοι θεοῖς πᾶσι.

'Quippe genitus erat (Hiero) patre Hierocle, nobili viro, cujus origo a Gelone, antiquo Siciliæ tyranno, manabat: sed maternum illi genus sordidum atque adeo pudibundum fuit: Justin, xxiii. 4; cp. Pausan. vi. 12, 2. This base is thought to have supported a tripod. The splendid buildings of Hiero formed a marked feature of his reign: it is characteristic of him to use the verb ἀγέ[ομαι] rather than ἄρχειν or βασιλεύειν, and to associate his people with himself.

The Chremonidean War: B.C. 266-263.

Found on the Akropolis: the text from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 332; cp. Rangabé, Antiq. Hell. 453. This inscription is a copy of the original, which was ordered to be engraved on bronze (line 43).

The Chremonidean War (ὁ χρεμωνίδειος πόλεμος, Athen. p. 250)
 —so named after Chremonides the Athenian leader, a favourite and pupil of Zeno the Stoic (Diog. Laert. vii. 17)—was the last and noblest effort of Athens to recover her freedom. The scanty notices of it have been combined by Niebuhr (Ueber den Chremonideischen Krieg, in his Kleine historische und philologische Schriften, 1^{ste} Samml. 1828, pp. 451 foll.), and by Droysen, (Hell.
 iii. 1, pp. 225 foll.). The loci classici are Pausan. iii. 6; Justin, xxvi. 2; and the account of Philemon's death, the poet of the New Comedy, in Ælian, Frag. 11. The decree appeals to the memories of the Persian war; but the inspiration of the Chremonidean war was derived from the teaching of Zeno, and marks a recovery of self-control and self-respect at Athens which is in grateful contrast to the days of Demetrius' 'liberation' (Nos. 143 foll.). The allies of Athens are (1) Sparta under king Areus, who had ere this fought against Macedon, (2) Ptolemy Philadelphos, who was apprehensive of the growing power of Antigonos, and whose father had similarly opposed Demetrios, (3) the Achæans, whose league had been revived upon the death of Demetrios, (4) the Arkadian towns of Tegea, Mantinea, Orchomenos, Phialeia (or Phigaleia), and Kaphyæ, which (like the Achæans) were now dependent upon Sparta, (5) some of the Kretan towns, like Gortyna, which was on intimate terms with Areus and Sparta (Plut. Pyrrh. 27, 29, 32). The σύνεδροι are the deputies of the Spartan allies at the confederate synod. The end of this war was that Athens, left to herself, surrendered at last to Antigonos, who garrisoned the Museion, Munychia, Piræus, Salamis and Sunion. After some years indeed he evacuated the Museion, and so left the upper city free; but the other forts still kept the city in check until the death of Demetrios II, in 229 B. C. (see No. 181).

Chremonidean War; contributions for war expenses:

B. C. 266-263.

Found at Athens in several fragments: the text from Köhler, C. I. A. ii. 334.

The heading:— Ταμίαις στρατιω[τικῶν]

The year of Diomedon is not known; perhaps it was the next after Peithidemos (No. 169). The name of the tribe Antigonis or Demetrias has been erased in line 3, out of hatred to Macedon.

The decree:—

Here there follows, in two columns, a list of contributors, with the sums they gave. The stone is imperfect, but there remain some 80 payments: only two are the minimum of 50 drachmas, nine are 100 drachmas; the rest are the maximum 200.

Ten Arkadian cantons are included, the following six being omitted:—Phigaleia, Psophis, Kynætha, Kaphyæ, Pheneos, Stymphalos. The list indeed was subject to variation, according as Achæa or Sparta, Macedon or Ætolia, brought this or that town under their influence (comp. the list in No. 169). Droysen (Hellen. iii. 2, pp. 131 fol.) inclines to place this decree soon after the 'liberation' of Megalopolis in 251 B.C. by the assassination of Aristodemus (Polyb. x. 22). It is likely that the Arkadian League was then revived, and deputies convened at Tegea. The recipient of the honour is no doubt Phylarchos the historian, whose partiality for the Arkadians is severely censured by Polybios (ii. 56). The inscription would therefore have somewhat of the nature of a manifesto. It also reveals something of the constitution of the League: it has (1) its βουλή of deputies (δαμόργοι) from each town, varying in number according to the population; (2) an ἐκκλησία of 10,000 called Οἱ μυριοί (Xen. Hell. vii. 1. 38, etc.). As neither the writing nor the dialect of the decree are Arkadian, but resemble the Attic forms, M. Foucart concludes that Phylarchos was himself present, and personally directed the erection of the inscription.

Treaty between Hierapytna and Priansion in Krete:

B. C. 250-200 (?).

The original is in the Marble-room at Oxford, where I have re-read it. Published by Böckh, C. I. G. 2556: cp. Röhl. Schedæ Epigr. p. 8.

 10 χίᾳ καὶ ὄρκοις τοῖς προγεγονόσι, ἐν τ' αὐταῖς τ[αῖς πόλεσι] καὶ ἐπὶ τᾷ χώρᾳ, ᾧ ἑκάτεροι ἔχοντες καὶ κρατύν[τες συν]- θήκαν ἔθεντο, ε[ί]ς τὸν πάντα χρόνον.

Probably the 'previous alliance' between Gortyn, Hierapytna, and Priansion is that published by Bergmann (De inscr. Cret. Berl. 1860).

§ 2. Ἱεραπυτ[νίοις]

- καὶ Πριανσιό(ι)ς ἤμεν παρ' ἀλλήλοισ ἰσοπολιτεῖαν καὶ ἐπιγα-μίας καὶ ἐνκτησιῶν καὶ μετοχᾶν καὶ θείων καὶ ἀνθρωπίνων 15 πάντων, ὅσοι κα ἔωντι ἐμφυλοὶ παρ' ἑκατέροις, καὶ πωλόντας, καὶ ὠνωμένους, καὶ δανείζοντας καὶ δανειζόμενος, καὶ τᾶλλα πάντα συναλλάσσοντας κυρίως ἡμεν κατὰ

τὸς ὑπάρχοντας παρ' ἑκατέροις νόμος.

The citizens of the one town are to have all the rights of citizenship in the other; provided they are ἐμφυλοὶ, i. e. native Kretans, and not adoptive citizens.

§ 3. ἐξέστω δὲ τῷ

τε Ἱεραπυτνίῳ στείρην ἐν τῇ Πριανσίῳ, καὶ τῷ Πριαν-20 σιῇ ἐν τῇ Ἱεραπυτνίῳ, διδώσι τὰ τέλεα καθάπερ οἱ ἄλλοι[ι] πολίται κατὰ τὸς νόμος τὸς ἑκατέρῃ κειμένους.

A Priansian citizen living at Hierapytna, and vice versa, is to pay, not a μετοίκιον, but the ordinary taxes payable by citizens.

§ 4. εἰ δὲ τί

καὶ ὁ Ἱεραπύτνιος ὑπέχθηται ἐς Πριανσίον ἢ ὁ Πριανσιεύ[ς]
ἐς Ἱεραπύτναν ὄτιοῦν, ἀτελέα ἔστω καὶ ἐσαγομένη κα[ι] σας ἐξαγωγῆς τῶν ὑπεχθεσίμων ἀποδότω τὰ τέλεα κατὰ τὸς νόμος τὸς ἑκατέρῃ κειμένους.

Piracy and internecine war abound in Krete: provision is made therefore for the safe bestowal of goods or crops by Hierapytnians at Priansion (and vice versa); such goods to be brought in and out of port without toll; but if exported for sale, must pay duty. Cp. No. 100.

§ 5. κατὰ ταῦτα δὲ

καὶ εἰ τίς κα νε[ίμη,] ἀτελής ἔστω· αἱ δὲ κα σίνηται, ἀποτεισ[ά]- τω τὰ ἐπιτιμ[ια ὁ σινδ]μενος κατὰ τὸς νόμος τὸς ἑκατέρῃ κε[ι]- μένους. Right of ἐπινομία is interchanged.

30 § 6. πρειγῆια δὲ [ὦ κ]α χρεῖαν ἔχη πορήτω παρεχόντων
οἱ μὲν Ἱεραπύτνιοι [Κόσμο]οι τοῖς Πριανσιεύσι, οἱ δὲ Πριανσιέ(ε)ς Κόσμοι τοῖς Ἱεραπυτνίοις· αἱ δὲ μὴ παρίσχειεν, ἀποτεισιά-των οἱ ἐπίδαμοι τῶν Κόσμων τῇ πρειγείᾳ στατήρας δέκα.

Πρειγῆια πορήτω (= πρεσβεῖα ἐφοδίου) are privileges of public hospitality to be granted to envoys: if not granted, the fellow-citizens of the neglectful Κόσμοι must pay ten staters to the envoys.

§ 7. ὁ δὲ Κόσμος ὁ τῶν Ἱεραπυτνίων ἐρπέτω ἐν Πριανσιοῖ ἐς
 35 τὸ ἀρχεῖον καὶ ἐν ἐκκλησίᾳ καθήσθω μετὰ τῶν Κόσμων· ὡσαύτως δὲ καὶ ὁ τῶν Πριανσιέων Κόσμος ἐρπέτω ἐν Ἱεραπύτνῳ ἐς τὸ ἀρχεῖον καὶ ἐν ἐκκλησίᾳ καθήσθω μετὰ τῶν Κόσμων. ἐν δὲ τοῖς Ἱερ[αίο]ις καὶ ἐν ταῖς ἄλλαις ἑορταῖς οἱ παρατυγχάνοντες ἐρπόντων παρ' ἀλλάλος ἐς ἀνδρήϊ-40 ον, καθὼς καὶ οἱ ἄλλοι πολῖται.

Early in the 3rd century the old Doric institutions lost their rigour, and assumed a more democratical character, less different from the rest of Greece; hence the mention of ἐκκλησία.

§ 8. ἀναγινωσκόντων δὲ τὰν στάλαν κατ' ἐνιαυτὸν οἱ τόκ' αἰεὶ κοσμόντες παρ' ἑκατέ-ροις ἐν τοῖς Ὑπερβωίοις, καὶ προπαραγγελλόντων ἀλλάλοις πρὸ ἀμερῶν δέκα ἢ κα μὲλλοντι ἀναγινώσκειν ὁποῖοι δὲ κα μὴ ἀναγνῶντι ἢ μὴ παραγγήλωντι, ἀπο-45 τεισάντων οἱ αἴτιοι τούτων στατήρας ἑκατόν, οἱ μὲν
 Ἱεραπύτνιοι Κόσμοι τῶν Πριανσιέων τῇ πόλει, οἱ δὲ Πριανσιέες Ἱεραπυτνίων τῇ πόλει.

Provision is made for the periodical rehearsing of the treaty. The Ὑπερβωία are an unknown festival.

§ 9. εἰ δὲ τις ἀδικοῖη
 τὰ συγκεῖμενα κοινῇ διαλύων ἢ κόσμος ἢ ἰδιώτας, ἐξέστω τῷ βωλομένῳ δικάσασθαι ἐπὶ τῷ κοινῷ δι-50 καστηρίῳ, τίμαμα ἐπιγραψάμενον τῆς δίκας κατὰ τὸ ἀδίκημα, ὃ καὶ τις ἀδικήσῃ· καὶ εἴ κα νικάσῃ, λαβέτω τὸ τρίτον μέρος τῆς (κατα)δίκας ὁ δικάζόμενος, τὸ δὲ λοιπὸν ἐσ-τὼ τῶν πόλεων.

Κοινὸν δικαστήριον is a court empanelled from both cities.

§ 10. αἰ δὲ τι θεῶν βωλομένων ἐλομεν ἀγα-θὸν ἀπὸ τῶν πολεμίων ἢ κοινῇ ἐξοδούσαντες, ἢ ἰδίᾳ τι-55 νες παρ' ἑκατέρων ἢ κατὰ γᾶν ἢ κατὰ θάλασσαν, λαν-χαίνοντων ἑκάτεροι κατὰ τὸς ἄνδρας τὸς ἔρποντας, καὶ τὰς δεκάτας λαμβανόντων ἑκάτεροι ἐς τὰν ἰδί-αν πόλιν. § 11. ὑπὲρ δὲ τῶν προγεγονότων παρ' ἑκατέροις ἀδικημάτων, ἀφ' ᾧ τὸ κοινοδίκιον ἀπέλιπε χρόνω, ποιη-60 σάσθων τὰν διεξαγωγᾶν οἱ σὺν Ἐνίπαντι καὶ Νέωνι Κύσ-λεσι ἐπ' αὐτῶν κοσμόντων, καὶ τὸς ἐγγύος καταστασάν-των ὑπὲρ τούτων ἀφ' ἧς κα ἀμέρας ἂ στάλα τεθῆ ἔμ μηνί.

The Kosmi of this year shall bring before a joint-court those private suits which had been pending since the interruption of commercium juris dandi repelendique (κοινοδικιον); they shall carry them through (διεξαγωγάν) during their year of office, and give sureties for this within one month from the day this treaty is concluded. Κοινοδικιον may refer only to Hierapytna and Priansion: but if it be the same which Polybios (xxiii. 15) speaks of as existing B.C. 184 between all the Kretan cities, then it must have been revived again.

65 δίκῃ μὲν χρήσθων καθὼς τὸ διάγραμμα ἔχει, περὶ δὲ τῷ δικαστηρίῳ οἱ ἐπιστάμενοι κατ' ἐνιαυτὸν παρ' ἑκατέροις Κόσμοι πόλιω σταυδέσθων, ἃ κα ἀμφοτέραις ταῖς πόλεσι [ι δ]όξῃ, ἐξ ἧς τὸ ἐπικριτήριον τελε(ῖ)ται, καὶ ἐγγύος καθιστάν-των, ἀφ' ἧς κα ἀμέρας ἐπιστάντι ἐπὶ τὸ ἀρχεῖον ἐν διμήνῳ, 70 καὶ διεξαγόντων ταῦτα ἐπ' αὐτῶν κοσμόντων κατὰ τὸ
δοχθὲν κοινᾷ σύμβολον.

Here προδίκῃ = διαιτητῇ. Διάγραμμα is the regulation of this matter decreed in the Treaty alluded to in § 1. In case of such arbitration failing, the Kosmi are to appoint (σταυδέσθων) an ἐκκλητος πόλις which shall be called in for final arbitration (ἐπικριτήριον). Cp. No. 156.

§ 13. αἱ δὲ κα μὴ ποιήσωσι οἱ Κόσμοι καθὼς γέγραπται, ἀποτεισάτω ἕκαστος αὐτῶν στατήρας πεντήκοντα, οἱ μὲν Ἱεραπύτνιοι Κόσμοι Πριανσίῳ τῇ πόλει [ι], οἱ δὲ Πριάνσιοι Κόσμοι Ἱεραπυτνίων τῇ πόλει. § 14. αἱ δὲ τί κα 75 δόξῃ ἀμφοτέραις ταῖς πόλεσι βωλουόμεναις ἐπὶ τῷ κοινᾷ συμφέροντι διορθώσασθαι, κύριον ἔστω τὸ διορθωθέν. § 15. στασάντων δὲ τὰς στάλας οἱ ἐνεστακότες ἐ-κατέρῃ Κόσμοι ἐπ' αὐτῶν κοσμόντων, οἱ μὲν Ἱεραπύ-τνιοι ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τῆς Ἀθαναίας τῆς Πολιάδος, καὶ οἱ 80 Πριάνσιοι ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τῆς Ἀθαναίας τῆς Πολιάδος.

ἄποτεροι δὲ κα μὴ στάσωσι καθὼς γέγραπται, ἀπο-τ[ε]ρισάστων τὰ αὐτὰ πρόστιμα καθότι καὶ περὶ τῶν δικαίων γέγραπται.

Krete, though inheriting a legendary renown (Thuk. i. 4), and though regarded as the model of Doric institutions (see Plato and Aristotle passim), yet in historical times lived apart from Hellenic interests. Our scanty information reveals a long series of fierce struggles between the Kretan towns (350–200 B. C.), until the Kretans appear everywhere as hired mercenaries, and the island itself—long a hornet's-nest of piracy—was reduced by Metellus in 68–7 B. C. into a Roman province. The chief references for its history are:—Diodoros, xvi. 61 foll., where Phalækos assists Knossos against Lyttos, and then perishes in besieging Kydonia, B. C. 339–8; Strabo (pp. 477–82) speaks of the relations of Kydonia, Gortyn, and Knossos. In 220 B. C. Knossos and Gortyn combined (Polyb. iv. 53) to subdue all the rest of Krete, and destroyed Lyttos. In 216 B. C. the Kretans, wearying awhile of internecine war, invited Philip V to undertake the general protection of the island (Polyb. vii. 14). In 184 B. C. Appius visiting Krete as envoy for Rome against Philip, found Gortyn oppressing Knossos, and endeavoured to restore peace to the island (Polyb. xxiii. 15). These internal struggles are reflected in the large series of Kretan treaty-inscriptions, of which the present is one. We have Treaties between the Lalii and Olus, Hierapytna and certain kleruchs, Hierapytna and Priansion (the present one); between Gortyn, Hierapytna, and Priansion (Bergmann, De inscr. Cret. Berl. 1860); between Dreros, Knossos, and Milatos against Lyttos (Dethier, Dreros und Kretische Studien, Vienna 1859); between Hierapytna and Lyttos (Naber in Mnemosyne, i. p. 105); between Lyttos and Olus (Hermes, iv. 266). The exact date of these documents is doubtful: some of them must be earlier than 220 B. C., when Lyttos was annihilated. But Böckh, Höck (Kreta) and others place some of them much earlier, and some later than this. The writing of the Oxford marble would suit the earlier rather than the latter half of the 3rd century B. C.

Record of the Eastern Campaigns of Ptolemy Euergetes:
B. C. 247-222.

This document, known as the Marmor Adulitanum, has a curious history. It was inscribed upon a marble slab, set up at Adule, a port of Abyssinia on the Red Sea, which we may therefore conclude dated from the reign of Euergetes I. The marble was in post-Christian times employed to embellish a monument (consisting of a marble throne) erected by an Ethiopian king to commemorate his victories. The whole monument was seen and described by Kosmas Indopleustes, who in his Topographia Christiana, published A.D. 545, has given both the inscription of Ptolemy and the inscription of the Ethiopian king upon the chariot itself, in the belief that both are parts of the same document. With the later inscription we are not concerned. The original monument has disappeared: we have only the evidently careful transcript made by Kosmas. I give the text after Böckh, C. I. G. 5127.

Lines 1 foll. Ptolemy Euergetes is styled 'son of Ptolemy (Philadelphos) and Arsinoe.' Which Arsinoe is meant? For Philadelphos put away Arsinoe the daughter of Lysimachos and mother of Euergetes, to marry his own sister Arsinoe. It is clear Euergetes means to name the latter, his step-mother. For Philadelphos and Arsinoe are 'children of Ptolemy (Lagi) and queen Berenike,' each of whom are given the title θεὸς σῶτηρ. Arsinoe the wife of Lagos was a concubine of Philip of Macedon; so that the Ptolemies claimed an ambiguous descent from the reputed ancestors of the Macedonian royal family, Herakles and Deianira the daughter of Dionysos (see Q. Curt. ix. 8, 22; Paus. i. 6, 2; Thuk. ii. 99): ἀπὸ πατρός and ἀπὸ μητρός refer to these divine parents of the race. Lines 6 foll.: Theokritos (xvii. 76 foll.) similarly recounts the dominions of Philadelphos, which were inherited by Euergetes (line 5); but he adds Arabia and Æthiopia. The conquests recorded in lines 17 foll. are referred to by Appian, Syr. 65: καὶ ἐς Βαβυλῶνα ἤλασε: and by the prophet Daniel, xi. 7-9. The spoils of Euergetes were immense: see No. 179. It was because of his restoration of images and other valuables to the shrines of Egypt that Ptolemy earned his title of Euergetes. In the last two lines διὰ τῶν ὀρυχθέντων ποταμῶν is understood by Droysen (Hellen. iii. 1. p. 383) of the canals on the lower Euphrates and Tigris (Strabo, pp. 740-1). Through these canals Euergetes despatched troops to Arabia.

We have seen on No. 164 what sacrifices Antiochos Soter made to secure the allegiance of the Greek cities. The freedom of Ionia was yet further guaranteed by Antiochos Theos (Joseph. Antiq. xii. 3. 2, as illustrated by Droysen, Hell. iii. 1. p. 330). See what the Smyrna inscription says of Seleukos II and Antiochos Theos (No. 176, line 10). The πατέρων of line 3 are Seleukos I and Antiochos Soter. Iasos likewise owed its autonomy to the embarrassments of the Seleukid kingdom. The Seleukidæ claimed descent from Apollo (Justin, xv. 4), and placed his effigy on their coins: cp. No. 175. If the monarch referred to is Antiochos II ('Theos,' B.C. 261-246), he seems to have been urging Iasos and the maritime cities to union and loyalty to himself, as against Egyptian aggression. If from μεγάλου in line 11 we conclude it to be Antiochos III ('the great,' B.C. 223-187), then the situation is an analogous one, but the enemies in view will be the Romans. The royal message is enforced by an oracular response from Branchidæ.

(Then follows the inventory, with which we are not concerned.)

Apollo was the progenitor of the Seleukid dynasty (see No. 174), and it was his oracle of Branchidæ which first foretold the greatness of Seleukos I (Appian, Syr. 56; Diod. xix. 90). Seleukos I had been a benefactor of this shrine (Pausan. i. 16; viii. 46), and here Seleukos II sends gifts also. He writes the letter in his own name, but he couples with himself his brother Antiochos (Hierax), who must have been a mere boy. Hierax was still quite young when the war broke out between these two brothers: and Böckh, with much probability, supposes Seleukos II to have made these dedications directly after the murder of his father Antiochos Theos by his mother Laodike in 246 B.C. had secured his succession to the throne. After this convenient crime Seleukos wishes to conciliate the favour of heaven. πολιάνθῃ, line 21, is governed by χρᾶσθαι above: the word must mean incense, but the derivation is doubtful; εἰς δ ἔχετε may mean 'for such purposes as you find requisite.' The θεοὶ Σωτήρες are Antiochos I and Stratonike.

No sooner had Seleukos II succeeded to the throne, upon the murder of Antiochos and Berenike, than Ptolemy Euergetes proceeded to invade Syria to avenge his sister's death. Seleukos, who was then in Asia Minor, hastened across the Tauros to oppose him (lines 1-2). He was however defeated, and had to retreat, while Ptolemy overran the eastern dominions of Seleukos, and in 243 B.C., after a brilliant campaign, returned to Egypt with immense spoils (see Nos. 173, 179; Justin, xxvii. 1, 2; Appian. Syr. 65). Meantime Ptolemy's fleet had sailed round the coast of Asia Minor, and had attached most of the Greek cities to the Egyptian cause. Karia and Lykia, Ephesos, Samos, and Kos were already Egyptian dependencies: and now most of the other states followed them. Magnesia ad Sipylum was one such, and Smyrna in remaining loyal to Seleukos had braved considerable danger (lines 1-6, 89 foll.). Seleukos must have remained in Asia Minor until Ptolemy's return to Egypt. Then he again crossed the Tauros, B.C. 243 (lines 12 foll.). At the same moment a reaction in favour of Seleukos set in among the Greek cities (Justin, xxvii. 1), and our inscription sets forth the manner in which Magnesia is reconciled to Seleukos. By Σελευκίς (line 2, etc.) is meant the region of North Syria, which included the four cities of Antioch, Seleukeia, Laodikeia, and Apameia (Strabo, pp. 749–756). Lines 9 foll.: on the temple to Stratonike at Smyrna, see Tacit. Ann. iii. 63: δέξιόσας ἀποδέξασθαι = ‘requesting them to allow.’ Lines 14 foll.: Magnesia is to be simply absorbed in the body politic of Smyrna. It appears that many of the original inhabitants of Magnesia (οἱ πρότερον ὄντες ἐν Μαγνησίᾳ κάτοικοι, line 101) had been ejected, and their lands occupied by settlers who belonged to the armies of the Macedonian conquerors. Alexander the Great had settled soldiers there (lines 100, 101, cp. Droysen, Hell. i. 2, p. 291) and Antiochos Theos had done the same (line 100, cp. Droysen, iii. 1. p. 32). The military character of these colonists is seen by the terms employed to describe them in § ii: οἱ ἐν Μαγνησίᾳ κάτοικοι οἱ τε κατὰ πόλιν ἰππεῖς κ.τ.λ., i. e. ‘the colonists of Magnesia, including both the horse and foot soldiers resident in the city and those now serving in the field, together with the rest of the inhabitants’ (see the remarks of Droysen, iii. 1. p. 70).

The terms of the alliance are given in § ii. The Magnesians are to be merged in Smyrna: the laws and coinage of Smyrna are to serve for both, and any who desire to quit Magnesia and take up their dwelling at Smyrna are to be encouraged by the gift of a house (lines 54 foll.). These provisions resemble those respecting Lebedos and Teos (No. 149). The ἐξετασταί were probably analogous to the Attic λογισταί. εἰς δύναμιν εἶναι τὴν αὐτῶν, line 39, = ‘to the uttermost of their power:’ cp. ἐκὼν εἶναι.

§ iii is a decree respecting the garrison at Palæmagnesia, a fort near Magnesia. It was held by Timon, an officer of Seleukos, with a detachment of the royal phalanx (lines 103 foll.), assisted by a force of Persians under Omanes. The treaty with Magnesia itself (§ ii) granted citizenship at Smyrna only to free Greek colonists (line 74): but here Omanes and his Persians receive the same with the rest, on condition of the absolute surrender of the fort to Smyrna. The districts of land (κλήροι) apportioned to the soldiers by Alexander and Antiochos Theos respectively, are to be retained with their privileges unimpaired (lines 100 foll.): and a hope is expressed that the ejected inhabitants of Magnesia, who had occupied a district of land near to Palæmagnesia, might similarly be incorporated with Smyrna, and retain their lands without tithe or tax (lines 101 foll.). Those of the garrison who have no allotment are promised land (line 102). Κλῆρος ἵππικός is a horse-soldier's portion: δωρεάν = ἀτελεῖς. This inscription does more than illustrate the war between Seleukos and Ptolemy; it shows us the working of the system of colonization under the Macedonian monarchs. It also reveals the weakness of the Seleukidæ; their empire was unwieldy in size, and comprised very varied nationalities, so that a strong central control was impossible. Thus the soldier population of Magnesia, and even the soldiers at the fort—Timon with the detachment of the phalanx, Omanes and his Persians—went over to Ptolemy at his first expedition. When in 243 B.C. the tide of feeling runs the other way, they are reconciled to Seleukos, but this treaty reveals what strong securities Smyrna had to take for their permanent loyalty.

Statue of Attalos I; defeat of the Gauls and Antiochos Hierax: about B.C. 240–230.

A statue-base from Pergamon, recently recovered: Humann, Die Ergänzungen etc., p. 83; cp. Böckh, C. I. G. 3535.

5 [τήριον] ἔστησαν Διὶ, Ἀθηνῶ.
[Ἰσι- σι Ἀντι]γόνου ἔργα.

This inscription was one of several written upon a number of blocks forming the base upon which had once stood a series of bronze statues in honour of Attalos I and Eumenes II. The first grand victory of Attalos I is also commemorated in No. 180: he had a like success when Antiochos Hierax (line 4) had enlisted the Gauls in his struggle with his brother Seleukos II about the succession to the Syrian throne. Pliny speaks of these bronze groups and statues (N. H. xxxiv. 84: 'plures artifices fecere Attali et Eumenis adversus Gallos praelia, Isigonus, Pyromachus, Stratonicus, Antigonus'). For indeed Attalos and Eumenes defeated them over and over again: (Livy, xxxviii. 17, 'Attalus eos rex sæpe fudit fugavitque'). Our inscription appears to have stood beneath the central statue of the series, which was named Βασιλέα Ἄτταλον. Epigenes and his fellow commanders are otherwise unknown. But in the artist's name we recognize either the Antigonos or the Isigonos mentioned by Pliny.

Relations between Keos and the Ætolian League:

B. C. 240-220.

On the antæ of the temple of Apollo at Karthæa: the text from Böckh, C. I. G. 2350; Le Bas-Waddington, Voyage Arch. Pt. iv. 1763.

Ἐδοξεν τοῖς Αἰτωλοῖς, ποτὶ τοὺς [Κε]ῖους τὰν φιλίαν τὰν ὑπάρχουσαν διαφύλάσσειν, καὶ μηθένα ἄγειν Αἰτωλῶν μηδὲ τῶν ἐν Αἰτωλίᾳ πολιτευόντων τοὺς Κεῖους, μηθαμόθεν δρμώμενον, μήτε κατὰ γᾶν μήτε κατὰ θάλατταν, μήτε ποτ' Ἀμφικτυονικὸν μήτε ποτ' ἄλλο ἐγκλημα μηθέν, ὡς Αἰτωλῶν ἦντων τῶν Κεῖων· εἰ δέ τίς κα ἄγει τοὺς Κεῖους, τὸν στραταγὸν ἀεὶ τὸν ἐνάρ-ξοντα τὰ ἐν Αἰτωλίᾳ καταγόμενα [καταδικάζ]οντα κύριον εἶμεν, καὶ τοὺς τυνέδρους καταδικάζοντας τοῖς Κεῖοις [τὰν τῶ]ν ἀ[γόντων αὐ]το[ῦς ζα]μίαν, ἢ κα δοκιμάζωντι, κυρίους εἶμεν. στρα[γαγέ]ιτος τοῦ δείνος τὸ τέ[- αρτον, πρεσβευσάντων ἐν Κέ[ω τῶν δείνα].

The date is fixed by the reference to the Amphiktyonic assembly. It was about from 240 to 220 B. C. that the Ætolians assumed the sole management of the Delphic temple, and constituted themselves the sole members of the assembly, excluding all delegates (ἱερομνάμοιες) from other states (see Böckh on C. I. G. 1694, who compares Polyb. iv. 25). It is observable how frankly the Ætolians avow their robber-instincts (cp. Polyb. xvii. 4-5; No. 31). As for Keos, it had a considerable trade (see No. 108), and was therefore glad to be secure from Ætolian pirates. Keos was colonized from Naupaktos by Keos son of Apollo, according to legend; and Naupaktos was now Ætolian. The four towns of Keos have one united constitution (συννοικισμός).

The reader is referred to the notes on No. 173, which deals with the same campaign of Ptolemy Euergetes (lines 10, 11). Syria, Phœnikia, Kypros (line 17) were among the domains he inherited from his father (see No. 173). The famous Rosetta stone (C. I. G. 4697), now in the British Museum, is a decree in honour of Ptolemy Epiphanes dated March 27, B. C. 196, resembling this one, but of less historical importance.

Victory of Attalos I over the Gauls near Pergamon:
circa B. C. 235.

On a block of marble discovered in the excavations on the citadel of Pergamon in 1879; Humann, Ergebnisse d. Ausgrab. zu Pergamon, 1880, p. 80.

[Ἀπὸ τῆς ἐπὶ τοῦ] Καϊκου ποταμοῦ
[πρὸς το]ῦς Γαλάτας μάχης.

This victory took place not long after the accession of Attalos I in 241 B. C. Strabo, p. 624, says: "Ἀτταλος διεδέξατο τὴν ἀρχὴν, καὶ ἀνηγορεύθη βασιλεὺς πρῶτος νικήσας Γαλάτας μάχῃ μεγάλῃ. And so Polybios, xviii. 24 (41)—followed by Livy, xxiii. 21: ὅς τὴν ἀρχὴν ἐνεστήσατο τῆς προειρημένης ἐπιβολῆς οὐ μόνον διὰ τῆς εἰς τοὺς φίλους εὐεργεσίας καὶ χάριτος, ἀλλὰ καὶ διὰ τῶν κατὰ πόλεμον ἔργων (i. e. Attalos I was the founder of the greatness of the kingdom). Νικήσας γὰρ μάχῃ Γαλάτας, ὃ βαρύτατον καὶ μαχμώτατον ἔθνος ἦν τότε κατὰ τὴν Ἀσίαν, ταύτην ἀρχὴν ἐποιήσατο καὶ τότε πρῶτον αὐτὸν ἔδειξε βασιλεῖα. (Cp. Polyæn. Strateg. iv. 20; Droysen, Hellen. iii. 2. pp. 9 foll.) The battle appears to have been fought near Pergamon, on the banks of the Kaïkos.

It broke the power of the Gauls, who were becoming as terrible as they had been fifty years before (No. 165); and though it did not relieve Attalos or his successor Eumenes from the necessity of further victories over them, yet it was felt to be a decisive event. Attalos erected a monument upon the Akropolis at Athens to commemorate his victory; Pausan. i. 4. 6: Περγαμηνοῖς δὲ ἔστι μὲν σκῦλα ἀπὸ Γαλατῶν, ἔστι δὲ γραφή τὸ ἔργον τὸ πρὸς Γαλάτας ἔχουσα (see Brunn, I doni di Attalo in the Annali dell' Instit. 1870, p. 292, who has identified a number of sculptures as belonging to this monument). The 'dying gladiator' is probably part of a group in which a Pergamene sculptor immortalized this event. And the recent excavations of the Germans have recovered the reliefs from the grand altar erected by Eumenes to Zeus and to Athena Nikephoros in gratitude for the same successes: the subject is the struggle of the gods and giants (see Humann's work, l.c.; Pausan. v. 13. 5).

Diogenes (line 13) was the officer of Demetrios II, who commanded the Macedonian garrison at Athens. Upon the death of his master, he surrendered the forts to the Athenians; and such was the enthusiasm of the people at this act, that Diogenes was hailed as benefactor and hero. He is named in an epigram of the last decade B.C. as χὼ χθονὶ τιμαίεις Ἀθῶνι Διογένῃς |
.. οὐ δὲ δι' ἔργα | ἔδρακεν ἀρχαίαν πατρίσιν ἐλευθερίαν. About 75 B.C., if not before, he was honoured with a τέμενος and a festival, τὰ Διογένεια. Τὸ Διογένειον was the name of the gymnasium which formed the centre of what may be called the academic life of Athens under the empire: and Διογένους Εὐεργέτου is inscribed upon one of the priests' thrones from the Dionysiac Theatre (C. I. A. iii. 299; Köhler, Hermes, vii. pp. 3 foll.). Pausanias (ii. 8), and Plutarch (Arat. 34), make the liberation of Athens to be entirely the work of Aratos. But, as Köhler suggests, the 1000 talents given to Diogenes were probably to enable him to pay off his garrison; and if Aratos had really been the chief mover in the affair, then Athens (like Argos and Corinth) would have joined the Achæan League. The nameless benefactor of our decree had subscribed, inter alia, to the crown presented to Diogenes and his soldiery. Lines 1-9 refer to the Chremonidean War: No. 170.

For some time before the actual outbreak of the war in 201 B.C. the relations between Philip and the Rhodians had been very uneasy. They knew that he had caused the burning of their fleet, and had urged the Kretans to make war upon them (Polyb. xiii. 4). Nevertheless the Rhodians maintained a formal friendship with Philip, having nothing whatever to gain from war. But when Philip began to march southwards, when, in spite of the representations of Rhodian envoys, he treated Kios with the utmost barbarity—they delayed no longer to declare Philip an enemy, and sent envoys to Rome 'nuntiantes Asiæ quoque civitates sollicitari' (Livy, xxxi. 2). Philip pursued his course by marching into Karia, where Rhodes had become possessed of a valuable strip of coast, the Rhodian Peræa (Strabo, xiv. p. 651).

This region he took possession of, and put garrisons in several towns to make good his advantage, Iasos being one of these (Polyb. xvi. 12; xviii. 2. 8, 44; Livy, xxxii. 33; xxxvii. 17). Our inscription is evidently earlier than the final rupture; but only just before it. The incidents it relates to may well have happened in 201 B.C. Podilos (line 7) is the Rhodian governor in the Peræa. Olympichos (lines 42, 60) is probably an agent of Philip's, serving in Karia. It seems clear that the Iasians—who might very naturally be jealous of the growing influence of Rhodes upon the mainland—are made throughout the cat's-paw of Philip. Certain Iasians have been assaulted by Rhodians (A passim), the dispute being perhaps about a right to certain land. Philip and his agent foment the dispute, taking the part of the Iasians and supporting a remonstrance made by their envoys (Decree A). The Rhodians in decree B forward friendly assurances to the Iasians, and in C they send similar assurances to king Philip. In truth the Rhodians had no wish to quarrel with the Iasians, whom they claimed as συγγενεῖς, being a Doric colony from Argos (lines 4, 28, 39; cp. Livy, xxxvii. 17). The Rhodian envoys are Timasitheos son of Dionysios, and Epikrates son of Timasistratos. The resemblance of names suggests the thought that Timasitheos was the nephew of Timasistratos, Timasistratos and Dionysios being brothers. Livy names a Rhodian officer Epikrates ten years later as commanding in the Rhodian fleet against Antiochos (xxxvii. 13, 14 bis): this is probably the Epikrates of our inscription. And if he was cousin to Timasitheos, we may further suppose the Timasikrates of Livy xxxvii. 14 to be another kinsman, possibly his brother.

Polybios (xvi. 2) informs us that at the opening of the war with Philip, the Byzantine fleet co-operated with Attalos and the Rhodians. What more likely than that the fleet should anchor in the Peiræus, and there be welcomed with decrees like the present?

Euxenides is a μέτοικος (probably a ship-owner and merchant) from Phaselis (see No. 73 and p. 142) who has not only paid the usual war levies, but also in the late war (τῶ πρότερον, line 13), i. e. in the earlier part of the war with Philip, had furnished twelve sailors to the fleet at his own expense; and later on (line 16) has been supplying leather thongs for the catapults which defended the fortifications. This refers to the repeated invasion of Attika by Philip's troops (Livy, xxxi. 14, 16) which had caused great terror at Athens (ibid. 22), and by Philip himself (ibid. 24, 26). This explains the mention of the καταπάλται (from καταπάλλω = καταπέλται). Less is known about the operations of the Athenian fleet in this war: see however Livy, xxxi. 15; Polyb. xvi. 26.

We here get at the true designation of Masinissa, the ally of the Romans at Zama, and his father: viz. Masannasas son of Gaias. The MSS. of Livy (xxiv. 49, etc.) have filium Gala Masinissam. These statues were dedicated when the Numidian king was at the height of his power, and during a period when Delos, though deprived of her autonomy in B. C. 166 (Polyb. xxx. 18) and handed over to Athens, yet, through its exemption from taxes on imports and exports, was superseding Rhodes in the commerce of the Ægean (see Mr. Jebb, Journal of Hellenic Studies, i. p. 32). Both the dedicators were probably merchants. Charmylos is a Rhodian. Hermon, an Athenian merchant, is known from another Delian inscription (Bulletin, iv. 184) as repaying a loan from the treasury of Apollo, which (with interest) amounted to 1000 dr. Polianthes was from Kyrene (Bulletin, iv. 212 foll.).

It had been one of the general advantages of the Athenian supremacy by sea, that while it lasted piracy was impossible. With the decline of Greek independence piracy in the Levant became an unbearable nuisance, until it was put down by Pompey. The lettering of this decree can hardly be later than 200 B. C. In line 2 [Σωτ]ηριδης is dubious: Κοσυλλίτης is a demotic name, as also . . . σίτης. διαφωνήση line 25 = ἀπόληται.

The document defines the terms upon which Orchomenos is admitted into the Achæan League, 199 B.C. Antigonos Doson in 222 B.C. had severed it from the League; Polyb. iv. 6, 5: ὁ γὰρ βασιλεὺς Ἀντίγονος . . . Ὀρχομενὸν κατὰ κράτος ἔλθων οὐκ ἀποκατέστησε τοῖς Ἀχαιοῖς, ἀλλὰ σφετερισάμενος κατέειχε, βουλόμενος, ὡς γ' ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ, μῆ μόνον τῆς εἰσόδου κυριεύειν τῆς εἰς Πελοπόννησον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὴν μεσόγειαν αὐτῆς παραφυλάττειν διὰ τῆς ἐν Ὀρχομενῷ φρουρᾶς καὶ παρασκευῆς. It remained in Macedonian hands (Droysen, Hellen. iii. 2, pp. 124, 155) until Philip in 199 B.C. wishing to secure the goodwill of the Achæans, restored to them Orchomenos, Heræa and Triphylia (Livy, xxxii. 5; Polyb. xvi. 38). Zeus Hamarios (= Ὀμάριος, Ὀμαγύριος) is figured on the coins of the League (Strabo, 385, 387: Ἀγύλιων δ' ἐστὶ καὶ . . . τὸ τοῦ Διὸς ἄλσος τὸ Ἀμάριον, ὅπου συνήεσαν οἱ Ἀχαιοὶ βουλευσόμενοι περὶ τῶν κοινῶν). For the other deities of Ægion see Pausan. vii. 24 and Polyb. v. 93. As to the 'difficulties' provided for, the robbery of the gold-plated altar-table needs no explanation: and Nearchos was probably a τύραννος at Orchomenos under Antigonos Doson (see Polyb. ii. 41, 10). He and his family are granted an indemnity. The following officers of the League are here named, στρατηγός, ἱππαρχος, ναύαρχος: for the yearly eponymous στρατηγός see Plut. Aral. 38; the ἱππαρχος is referred to by Polyb. v. 95, 7; Plut. Philop. 18. The ναύαρχος is not named by historians, the naval operations of the League being unimportant (see Livy, xxxv. 26; Plut. Philop. 14).

Ægina, after the liberation of Athens in 229 B.C. (No. 181), joined the Achæan League. Upon the conclusion of peace between Philip and the allied Ætolians and Romans in 205 B.C. (Livy, xxix. 12), the Ætolians, to whom Ægina had fallen by the terms of the treaty, sold the island to Attalos I for 30 talents (Polyb. xxiii. 8, 10). It remained a part of the Pergamene kingdom until B.C. 133, when the entire inheritance of Attalos III became the possession of Rome. The Pergamene kings sent their governors to Ægina, two of whom are known from inscriptions, Hikesios and Kleon (see No. 189). Αἱ συναρχ(αι) were a committee of magistrates, entrusted with the initiative in preparing measures:
it is an institution very common after Alexander's time.

Kleon had been governor of Ægina under Eumenes II and Attalos II (see on No. 188) for sixteen years; his office being prolonged at the request of the Æginetans (ll. 28 foll.). He had been 'a just judge towards all, keeping far from himself all private motives, and determined to act neither unfairly nor arbitrarily, but endeavouring in most cases to bring the contending parties to agree,' etc. (ll. 8 foll.). There were festivals in honour of Attalos and Eumenes (l. 40), and another called Νικηφόρια. This was a festival originating at Pergamon, where Athena was worshipped as Νικηφόρος, a temple and grove being dedicated to her by Eumenes II (Strabo, p. 624; Livy, xxxii. 33, 34). The festival is repeatedly named in the newly excavated inscriptions from Pergamon, but they have not yet been thoroughly examined (Humann, Ergebnisse der Ausgrab. zu Pergamon, 1880). From Pergamon the festival had been carried to Ægina; so that it probably commemorated some success of Eumenes.

Kyretis, a town in the north of Thessaly, had been on the side of Philip, and accordingly was captured by the Ætoliens in 200 B. C. (Livy, xxxi. 41). At the close of the war with Philip the Romans had confiscated the property of some leading citizens of Kyretiaë, and probably of other Thessalian towns as well. But during the years 196-194 B. C., when the war with Antiochos was impending, it was the policy of Flamininus to conciliate all the Greek towns; cp. Livy, xxxiii. 27: 'Id a Quinctio facile impetratum; non quia satis dignos eos credebat, sed quia, Antiocho rege jam suspecto, favor conciliandus nomini Romano apud civitates erat:' and so xxxiv. 48. By this letter the general (1) makes a present to the city of such portion of the confiscated property as had not yet been sold and realised by the Roman government (ll. 8-10); and (2) as appeals had been made to him against the confiscation on the part of persons who declared themselves innocent, and he had in some cases allowed such claims, he bids the town authorities to see that such claimants had their rights restored, in accordance with his decisions. This reminds us of Livy, xxxiv. 48: 'Totum hiemis tempus jure dicundo consumpsit.' Ον στρατηγὸς ὑπατος = consul, see No. 191; ὑπατος alone is usual in later documents.

Flamininus besieges Gythion: B. C. 195.

A statue-base from Gythion: the text from Böckh, C. I. G. 1325.

Τίτον Τίτον Κοτγκτιον, στραταγὸν ὑπατον Ῥωμαίων ὁ δᾶμος ὁ Γυθεατῶν τὸν αὐτοῦ σωτήρα.

The capture of Gythion by Flamininus forced Nabis to sue for peace; see Livy, xxxiv. 29 foll.: 'Erat eo tempore valida urbs et multitudine civium incolarumque et omni bellico apparatu instructa. In tempore Quinctio rem haud facilem aggredienti rex Eumenes et classis Rhodiorum supervenerunt,' etc. (cp. No. 192). The town was glad enough to be freed from the tyranny of Nabis. It is observed by Marquardt (Röm. All. iv. p. 380), that στρατηγὸς ὑπατος was in the second century the usual Greek equivalent of Consul; Mommsen considers it the exact Greek equivalent of praetor maximus, which was the older designation of the Consul (Ephemeris Epigraphica, 1872, p. 156).

Used here of Flamininus it expresses his consulare imperium, which was continued to him for the completion of the Macedonian War. He was Consul in 198 B.C. and proceeded into Greece: in 197 'T. Quinctio prorogarunt imperium' (Livy, xxxii. 28).

Eumenes II assists the Romans in the War with Nabis of Sparta: B.C. 195, 192.

From the site of the Great Altar at Pergamon. The text from Humann, Die Ergebnisse, etc., p. 84: the restorations are mine.

Οἱ μετὰ βασιλείᾳς Εὐμέν[ους τοῦ Ἀττάλου]
τὸ δεύτερον εἰς τὴν Ἑλλ[άδα στρατευσάμενοι,] ἐκ τοῦ πολέμου τοῦ πρὸς Νάβ[ω καὶ τοὺς] ἐπιστρατεύσαντας τ[οῖς Ῥωμαίοις,] 5 ἀκροβίτια Ἀθηνῶ.

In 196 B.C. Greece had been proclaimed 'free' by Flamininus. But various hindrances to the pacification of Greece still remained. One was the menacing attitude of the Ætolian League, another was the arrogant tyranny of Nabis at Sparta. By the end of the year it was determined to make war on Nabis, and the operations of Flamininus against him occupied the year 195 B.C., until Nabis made his submission and the war ended in a treaty (Livy, xxxiv. 22-40; Polyb. xxi. 9, § 10). Livy expressly names Eumenes as being present with Flamininus in this campaign (ib. 26, 30). The only doubt arises about τὸ δεύτερον. Did Eumenes twice cross the Ægean within this one year to assist Flamininus? or is τὸ δεύτερον to be referred to the expedition of 192 B.C., when Eumenes brought a fleet to co-operate with the Romans at the opening of the war with Antiochos? His forces were variously employed that year by Rome (Livy, xxxv. 39); hence perhaps the intentional vagueness of τοὺς ἐπιστρατεύσαντας τ[οῖς Ῥωμαίοις].

Cn. Manlius and Ten Commissioners settle the Province of Asia: B. C. 188.

There can be no doubt about the restoration of lines 1-2. After the defeat of Antiochos at Magnesia, Manlius was sent in B. C. 189 to Asia, to settle questions of frontier, etc. His first year was occupied in the war with the Galatians (Livy, xxviii. 12 foll.). He remained the next year in Asia as Proconsul (ibid. 35, 37 foll.), and, assisted by ten commissioners from Rome, made arrangements for the future of the conquered territory. Manlius was of course assailed with petitions and deputations from the various towns (ibid. 37 foll.); one of these is Heraklea, to which he grants the status of a libera civitas. On the title στρατηγὸς ἕπατος see No. 191. By this settlement Karia was made Rhodian territory. In line 11 διδόναι αὐτοὺς εἰς τὴν Ῥωμαίων ἐπιτροπὴν translates the Roman editio: cp. Polyb. xxvi. 2; Marquardt, Röm. Alt. iv. 354.

Kallikrates, the traitor of the Achæan League : B. C. 179.

A statue-base recently excavated at Olympia : Dittenberger in Archæol. Zeitung, 1880, pp. 52 foll.

Λακεδαιμονίων οἱ φυγόντες ὑπὸ τῶν τυράννων[ων]
 Καλλικράτη Θεοξένου Λεοντήσιον, καταγαγόντα εἰς τὰν πατρίδα καὶ διαλύσαντα ποτὶ τοὺς πολίτας καὶ εἰς τὰν ἐξ ἀρχῆς [εὖν]οίαν [ἀποκα]τα[στ]άσαντα.

It is not necessary to follow the intricacies of Spartan politics during this period; suffice it to say, that it was the fierceness of Spartan sedition which wrecked the policy of Philopœmen. In 192 B.C., after the death of Nabis, Philopœmen went to Sparta and succeeded in bringing the city to join the League. This however was the result of circumstances, and not of any general consent. The Federalist party were never strong enough at Sparta to hold their own. Faction raged among the citizens and among the refugees without. In 191 B.C. it taxed Philopœmen's influence to the utmost to maintain peace: in 188 B.C. he was provoked to settle the difficulties at Sparta by a murderous revolution. Meantime the councils of the League on the one hand, and the Senate of Rome on the other, were besieged by envoys from Spartan factions, or the complaints of exiles. It was a foolish ambition for the Achæan League to seek territorial extension by the forcible retention of Sparta. Philopœmen's death (B.C. 187) left Lykortas a hopeless task. The 'patriotic' policy of the League had been to maintain a qualified but defined independence, subject to the protection of Rome. But this could not go on without internal peace within the Peloponnese. Grecian discord made freedom impossible. Kallikrates however had the unhappy distinction of first soliciting the complete control of Rome, and of becoming the avowed leader of a pro-Roman party within the League. In this connexion our inscription is important. Philopœmen had always been understood to befriend the victims of Nabis and the tyrants. When these came to regard Kallikrates as their friend, and set up his statue at Olympia, their conduct was proof enough that the policy of Philopœmen and Lykortas was gone by altogether. We may sympathize with Polybios (xxvi. 1-3) and the Achæan patriots without approving their policy; and we may criticize their policy without approving (with Mommsen, Bk. iii. ch. 9) of Kallikrates.

The Greek text, with its awkward, and even ungrammatical style, bears witness to its origin. It is an official translation made at Rome from the Latin of the Senate, and the reader will be glad of a Latin version. The senate met ἐν κομητίῳ (line 2), i. e. in the Curia Hostilia. In reality we have here two SCta A and B, dated respectively the 9th and 14th of October (lines 3, 14). The Consul (lines 42-3) Aulus Hostilius Mancinus, consul 170 B. C., being absent in Macedonia, and his colleague Aulus Atilius in Liguria, the praetor urbanus, Q. Mænius, convenes and consults the senate (line 1). Lines 15, 16 being by no means the only place where Marcus is represented by Μάρκος, Mommsen supposes the old form of the name to have been Maharcus, like ala from ahala. The version, which will be the best commentary, is chiefly by Mommsen; from whom I borrow some remarks on the historical events alluded to. At the outbreak of the war with Perseus, a majority of the Bœotian league (τὸ κοινὸν τῶν Βοιωτῶν) was Macedonian in its sympathy, and on terms of friendship with Perseus. In 171 B. C. the senate sent out commissioners into Greece, to organize alliances against Perseus (Livy, xlii. 37). In Bœotia they ignored the League, and insisted upon dealing with each city individually (Polyb. xxvii. 2). The result was that every city made its submission to Rome, with three exceptions. These were Koroneia, Thisbæ, and Haliartos: for this inscription enables us to correct a blunder in the text of Polybios (xxvii. 5), which must have been as old as Livy, both Livy (xlii. 46, 47) and Polybios l. c. speaking of Koroneia, Haliartos, and Thebes. Of the three towns Haliartos was at once besieged, taken, and razed to the ground (Livy, xlii. 56, 63). Koroneia was taken by Licinius the consul towards the end of the same year B. C. 171 (Livy, xlii. 67), and its case made the subject of a SCtum at the same time (id. xliii. 4). Concerning Thisbæ this inscription gives us information, and we may now correct the text of Livy, xlii. 63, and read: 'Inde (from Haliartos) Thisbas ductus exercitus; quibus sine certamine receptis, urbem tradidit exulibus et qui Romanorum partis erant; adversæ factionis hominum fautorumque regis ac Macedonum familias sub corona vendidit. His gestis in Bœotia, ad mare et ad naves rediit.'

This passage exactly illustrates S^Ctum A, (lines 6-13), where the Thisbæans 'of the Roman party' having applied to the Senate for a commission to inquire into their condition, five commissioners are to be appointed to see to their claims. It appears from Strabo, p. 411 (cp. Homer, Il. ii. 502) that Thisbæ, which lay at the foot of M. Helikon, possessed a territory reaching down to the sea-shore. Line 13, ἐδοξε means 'the preceding relatio was carried upon division.'

S^Ctum B. Lines 17 foll. Between the 9th and 14th of October the five commissioners have been appointed, and now the Thisbæan envoys again lay their case before the Senate, and this second S^Ctum instructs the commissioners as to their work. By ἐχεν it is not meant that the Senate annuls this deditio (for the formula of which, here alluded to, see Livy, i. 38; Polyb. xxxvi. 2), but merely that the Thisbæans should be allowed to occupy and enjoy their own, on condition of paying tribute. By πρόσδοι are meant taxes or tributes payable to Thisbæ by persons or places subject to it. Mommsen reads δρ[ι]ων, invito lapide.

Ch. ii. (ll. 20-24) places the administration of Thisbæ exclusively in the hands of the Roman party; and for a period of ten years only. There was this difference between a civitas libera and stipendiaria that self-government was ceded to the former absolutely, to the latter for a time only and subject to withdrawal.

Ch. iii. (ll. 25-27) restores their private possessions to the Thisbæans of the Roman party, of which they had been deprived at the surrender of Thisbæ. Mommsen thinks that though Flamininus proclaimed freedom and immunity to Greece, yet an exception was made in the treatment of Bœotia. He finds a reference to tribute paid by Bœotians in the thirty talents of Livy, xxxiii. 29, and the story of Cic. de Nat. D. iii. 19, 49. This would explain the peculiar hostility to Rome in Bœotia, as shown in the Persian war.

Ch. iv. (ll. 27-31) gives permission to those who during the war escaped to the Roman camp, and to these only, to fortify and occupy the citadel. But the town walls are not to be restored.

Ch. v. (ll. 32-35). The allies of Rome had the right of sacrificing and making offerings in the Capitol; and Livy (xlii. 40) speaks of the Bœotians as 'sociis nostris.' It seems that the Thisbæans, before the war broke out, had raised a fund for such an offering; and this fund had, by the deditio, been forfeited to Rome. It is hereby restored to them, that they may still offer it.

Ch. vi, vii (ll. 36-45) deal with the leaders of the Macedonian party at Thisbæ. Most of these had probably been brought to Italy after the surrender of the town to Lucretius. The envoys furnished a list of their names. The prætor Mænius is to summon them to appear, and deal with them at his pleasure: those who are still in Greece are to be dealt with by the Consul now in Macedonia.

Ch. viii, ix (ll. 46-52) deal with the case of three women of Thisbæ, two of whom (it seems) were detained at Chalkis, and the third at Thebes. They are to be liberated, but may not return to Thisbæ. We may imagine these women to have been engaged in a law-suit with certain members of the Roman party about some property, perhaps a disputed inheritance: the passage is certainly obscure. From the character of Lucretius given by Livy (xl. 4, 7, 8), we may believe the charge so circumstantially described in ch. ix, that these women had succeeded in bribing the prætor to give his judgment in their favour. Lucretius was at this moment at Antium, pleading detention on business, and anxious to avoid the complaints awaiting him from Chalkis as well as Thisbæ (Livy, l. c.).

Ch. x (ll. 53-56) refers to a contract or societas, by which one Gnæus of Pandosia had undertaken to farm certain lands belonging to Thisbæ, in return for a certain rent payable in corn and oil. Now that the territory had been surrendered to Rome, the Thisbæans are concerned to receive the warrant of this SCtum to hold Gnæus to his bargain. In case of any dispute, Gnæus will have to reckon with them.

Ch. xi. (ll. 57-end) gives letters commendatory to the envoys: cp. the SCtum in Josephus, Ant. Jud. xiii. 9: ὅπως αὐτοῖς πρὸς τε βασιλεῖς καὶ δῆμους ἐλευθέρους γράμματα δώσω εἰς ἀσφάλειαν τῆς εἰς οἶκον ἐπανόδου. On their journey home they would probably call at Naupaktos (Ætolian), and Antikyra in Phokis. We have already seen that the senate had dealt with Koroneia in the winter of 171 B.C., so that the envoys must have stayed on for some time at Rome, or else these are a fresh set of envoys.

I include this for the sake of § 2. Prusias II in 156 invaded the territory of Attalos, and pillaged the city of Pergamon without mercy, despoiling temples, and even carrying off the statue of Asklepios (the special god of Pergamon), to whom he had been sacrificing the day before (Polyb. xxxii. 25). Some of the first-fruits of these spoils (as it appears) he sends to the Apollo of Branchidæ, whom he especially revered. § 6. He sends also some cups called after himself: see Athenæ. 475 fin., 496. § 8. His queen, Kamasarye, sends also a golden object, which we cannot identify. Her name is identical with Κομοσαρή wife of Pairisades I, king of Bosphoros (C. I. G. 2119). The heading gives the date of these gifts by naming the Milesian ερονυμος, and the temple authorities. The ερονυμος is δ στεφανηφόρος, and the office has been held by the god himself for three years in succession; a not uncommon circumstance (see Böckh, C. I. G. Nos. 2677, 2905; Le Bas, Voyage Arch. Pt. V. Nos. 252, 255-8, etc.: cp. Livy, xxxii. 25): κατὰ ποίησιν = by adoption. Ἵδροφόρος in § 9 was the title of an important priesthood at Miletos.

The ager Dentheliates, a fertile strip of land on the slope of the foot of Mt. Taÿgetos, was for many centuries a bone of contention between the Messenians and Lakedæmonians (Steph. Byz. s. r. Δελθάσιοι). It contained a shrine of Artemis Limnatis (Pausan. iv. 4, 2), frequented by the Messenians and Lakedæmonians alone, but of which the Messenians claimed entire control. Strabo (p. 362) connects the old Messenian wars with this dispute about frontier; and the feud smouldered on, the Messenians being established in their claim by Philip the father of Alexander, by Antigonos Doson, and by Mummius. This we know from Tacitus (Ann. iv. 43), who speaks of a final decision in favour of Messenia being given by the Senate under Tiberius A. D. 25. The Messenians on that occasion put in as evidence the award before us, and a subsequent decision by 'Atidius Geminus, prætor Achaïæ.' It appears however that 'C. Cæsaris et M. Antonii sententia' the land was assigned to the Spartans. We may suspect this to be one case amongst many in which M. Antonius made a market of the memoranda of Cæsar which he seized after the murder (see Cicero's Philippicæ, passim).

The date of the award is soon after Mummius' taking of Corinth, B.C. 146. This appears from Tacitus, l.c., and the spelling of Καλιπόρνιος (line 42), which shows that the Greeks were still unfamiliar with the combinations of Latin consonants. B. Line 29: as the ερονυμος at Miletos was the στεφανηφόρος (line 40), the magistrates here mentioned were the executive, viz. the prytanes and the ἡρημένοι ἐπὶ τῇ φυλακῇ (= στρατηγός?). C. is of course the important document. Εἰρηνίου (line 40) may be a mistake for Εἰρηναίου. Line 41: in our reckoning, the end of April. As the civil year in Asia began with the Autumn equinox, Kalamæon was the 7th or 8th month of the Milesian calendar: so that it is added 'but according to Roman reckoning the 4th month' (ἀγει understood after υἰός). Lines 43, 44: the Senate had evidently prescribed a limit of time; it had taken five lunar months and eleven days since the Senatus consultum (δόγμα) to interchange messages and make the needful arrangements before the Milesians appointed a court of arbitration. Line 45: προειρημένη, 'pre-arranged.' Line 47: κριτήριον, like δικαστήριον. ἐκ παντὸς τοῦ δήμου, without reference to tribal or other subdivisions. Line 52: the senate had narrowed down the controversy to a question of fact, by determining 'utri hanc terram tenerint cum L. Mummius consul proconsulve illa in provincia esset, uti ii ita teneant.' It is clear that there was no real doubt on this point, and the sixteen votes given for Lakedæmon were probably due to other motives than honest conviction. It was natural that the Messenians should inscribe this diplomatic triumph over Sparta on the same monument which commemorated their military success in the Peloponnesian War (see No. 49).

Statue to Polybios the historian at Olympia: B.C. 145 (?).

Statue-base recently excavated at Olympia: Dittenberger, in Archæol. Zeitung, 1878, p. 37.

Ἡ πόλις ἣ τῶν Ἡλείων Πολύβιον Λυκόρτα Μεγαλοπολείτην.

We do not know what were the particular benefits conferred by Polybios upon Elis, which moved that city to erect the statue. What is certain is, that, after the fall of Corinth, Polybios, as the friend of Æmilianus, made use of his influence with Rome to mitigate the calamities of Greece. It was probably owing to him that a measure of freedom was still allowed to the cities, 'the fines imposed on the Achæans, and on the Bœotians and Eubœans, were remitted; the restraints on intercourse and commerce were withdrawn; and the federal unions which had been abolished were revived' (Thirlwall, ch. lxvi fin.). No greater proof of the confidence he enjoyed could be given, than by the ten commissioners who had been entrusted with the settlement of Greece (B.C. 146); upon their departure, after six months' work, they directed Polybios to make a circuit of the Achæan towns, to explain difficulties, clear up details, and reconcile the Greeks to their new condition. Such is the statement of the epitomator of Polybios (xl. 10). The traveller Pausanias found monuments of Polybios at Mantinea (viii. 9), Megalopolis (viii. 30: ἐπὶ τῆς ἀγορᾶς . . . ἀνὴρ ἐπειρασμένος ἐπὶ στήλῃ, Πολύβιος Λυκόρτα· γέγραπται δὲ καὶ ἐλεγεία ἐπ' αὐτῷ λέγουσα ὡς ἐπὶ γῆν καὶ θάλασσαν πᾶσαν πλανηθεῖη, καὶ ὅτι σύμμαχος γένοιτο Ῥωμαίων καὶ παύσειεν αὐτοὺς ὀργῆς ἐς τὸ Ἑλληνικόν); near Akakesion (viii. 37: καὶ οἱ ἐπίγραμμα ἔστιν ἐξ ἀρχῆς τε μὴ ἂν σφαλῆναι τὴν Ἑλλάδα, εἰ Πολυβίῳ τὰ πάντα ἐπέθετο, καὶ ἀμαρτούση δι' ἐκείνου βοήθειαν αὐτῇ γενέσθαι μόνον); at Pallantion (viii. 44); and Tegea (viii. 48). It is quite possible that the statue at Olympia was erected during his lifetime, soon after the departure of the Ten in 145 B.C.

The date of this letter cannot be long after the taking of Corinth, B. C. 146. The 'constitution granted to the Achæans' (line 9) was a timocracy; so Pausan. vii. 16. 6: πόλειον δὲ δοῦναι Ῥωμαίων ἐναντία ἐπολέμησαν τείχη μὲν ὁ Νόμιμος κατέλυε καὶ ὄπλα ἀφηρεῖτο πρὶν ἢ καὶ συμβούλους ἀποσταλῆναι παρὰ Ῥωμαίων ὧς δὲ ἀφίκοντο οἱ σὺν αὐτῷ βουλευσόμενοι (the ten commissioners), ἐνταῦθα δημοκρατίας μὲν κατέπαυε, καθίστατο δὲ ἀπὸ τιμημάτων τὰς ἀρχάς . . . συνέδρια τε κατὰ ἔθνος τὰ ἐκάστων, Ἀχαιῶν καὶ τὸ ἐν Φωκεύσῳ ἢ Βοιωτοῖς ἢ ἑτέρωθι ποῦ τῆς Ἑλλάδος, κατελέλυτο ὁμοίως πάντα (cp. Polyb. xl. 8-10; but see Pausan. vii. 16. 10). The συνέδριοι of line 4 are probably the senate of Dyme: and οἱ περὶ Κυλλάνιον συνέδριοι of line 5, the senate of Kyllene, just south of Dyme. The crime of Sosos was an attempt at revolution: he aimed at introducing a more democratic constitution, assisted by some of the ex-deputies (δημιουργοί) of the late Achæan League (line 21). With this view he had fired the public archives, that he might destroy the assessment-returns upon which the timocracy imposed by Rome upon Dyme was based (line 22). In line 26, ὁ ἐπὶ τῶν ξένων στρατηγός is the 'prætor peregrinus.' The proconsul is proconsul of Macedonia; for no proconsul of Achaia is known before B.C. 28, when Augustus readjusted the provinces. Until then Achaia had been governed by the proconsul of Macedonia. But who is this Q. Fabius Q. F. Maximus? Whoever he was, he had been present with the ten commissioners at Patræ in 146–5 B.C. (line 11). Zumpt assigns his proconsulate to 116 B.C. (Comm. Ep. ii. 167): but one would prefer an earlier date. The explanation of ἐλευθερία (line 16) given by Thirlwall (note in ch. lxvi fn.) is probably correct, viz. that it refers to the permission given to the Greeks to restore their federal leagues (Pausan. vii. 16. 7).

The civitates federatae held the highest rank among the peoples subdued by Rome. They made treaties with the conqueror on equal terms, and retained absolute independence, with the important exception of the clause inserted in all such treaties ut eisdem, quos populus Romanus, amicos atque hostes habeant. Our inscription comprises—§ 1. fragments of a SCtum, granting the alliance, and specifying its formalities; § 2. the terms of the alliance itself. Treaties of this kind were always deposited in the Capitol (line 11): cp. Marquardt, Röm. Alt. iv. 347 foll.

I restore from the stone ἔλκυσεν (line 25) for ἐἔλκυσεν, ἀτόν (lines 27, 54) a known variation for αὐτόν, and in line 51 εἰς π[αρά]τασιν καθ I hope the reader will pardon the insertion of this specimen (one out of hundreds) of the vanity and verbose servility of later Greece. The date is not long before the expedition of Pompey in 67 B.C. against the Pirates, whose ravages are mentioned in line 8: cp. No. 186. Lucius Aufidius Bassus was some Roman merchant, settled at Tenos. His father had died leaving the city his debtor for several loans (lines 8 foll.), and in particular his son inherited two bonds (συγγραφαί) from the city for 11,000 drachmas and 19,500 (about £458, and £812) respectively (lines 20 foll.). These Aufidius did not press, upon his father's death, but allowed them to stand over (ἐλοιπογράφησεν). The other (smaller?) loans owed him by the city (lines 24 foll.) he calculated at 12 per cent. from the date when they were advanced, not at compound interest, but ἐξ εὐθυτοκίας, i.e. no interest was charged on unpaid interest: 12 per cent. was the usual rate at this time. Moreover (lines 26 foll.) he advanced a further loan; and calculating the total principal owing him at the lowest possible sum, allowed the city five years more to pay it in, with interest at 8 per cent. (τετρωβόλου). At the end of this term (line 30), finding the city still insolvent, he cancels a large part of the debt, and allows a further term of eleven years for it to be paid off in, without charging interest for that time. These favours the Tenians cheaply repay with their wordy compliments. Other creditors had not been so indulgent (line 32). Tenos is a ἱερὰ νῆσος (line 37), as the centre of an ancient worship of Poseidon and Amphitrite (Strabo, p. 487).

The shameless misgovernment of republican Rome had stirred up a hatred of the Roman name which made the Asiatic Greeks ready to hail Mithradates as a deliverer, and even to comply with his savage order to massacre on a certain day every Roman or Italian, without regard to age or sex, within the cities of Asia. Ephesos was foremost in this bloody revenge (B. C. 88: Appian, Mithr. 21-23, 61). But very soon a reaction set in against Mithradates: his tyrannical behaviour to the Asiatic towns, and especially his brutal treatment of Kos, led the Ephesians in 86 B. C. to refuse entrance to Zenobios, the king's general (Appian, ib. 48), except without arms, and privately. That same night they slew him, and Mithradates felt his position so insecure that he at once granted full autonomy to all the Greek cities. Meanwhile the arms of Rome were prevailing against him in Greece proper, and it was becoming evident that his cause was virtually lost. It must have been at this period, the end of 86 or beginning of 85 B.C., that this decree was passed. The studied expressions of regard for Rome are clearly dictated by fear of Roman revenge. In 84 B.C. Sulla came to Ephesos, and though he put no one to death, yet the protestations of the Ephesians did not blind him to the guilt of the city, which he punished with a heavy fine (Appian, ib. 62, 63).

The first decree is introductory to the second. The excuse urged in lines 8-9 is manifestly false. The second decree is περὶ φιλανθρώπων (lines 19, 42), i. e. it promises rewards to those who will volunteer for the war against Mithradates. The rewards are these: citizens who have been struck off the list, either entirely (ἐκγεγραμμένοι) or for a time (παραγεγραμμένοι), for non-payment of taxes, fines, etc., due to the state or to the temples, are to be reinstated in their rights (lines 29-34). Farmers of temple-lands however, and of the public tolls and dues, are not to be hereby released from their legal engagements (lines 34-36). All loans made to persons from temple-funds on note of hand are hereby cancelled (lines 36-37); except in the case of loans advanced on mortgage, whether the mortgage is upon the property of the companies (συστημάτων, societatum) so borrowing, or upon the property of sureties approved by the creditor (lines 38-39); in such cases however the interest on the mortgage is to be excused for the present (lines 39-40). These advantages are to be enjoyed by all citizens free born or enrolled up to this date (lines 41, 42). All prosecutions now pending, whether in the name of the temples or the state, are hereby quashed, excepting suits concerning disputed boundaries or disputed inheritances (lines 42-44). Metæks, temple-serfs (ἱεροί), freedmen, and aliens are to receive full citizenship (lines 44-48); public-slaves are to be set free and made metæks (lines 49-50). Thus far the decree has dealt with debtors only to the state or to temples. It is accordingly added that all private creditors (lines 50 foll.) came before the ἐκκλησία, and placing themselves in the hands of the people, gave a voluntary release of all debts owing them; whether loans on ships and cargo (συμβόλαια ναυ- τικά), loans on note of hand (χειρόγραφα), loans secured by deposit (παραθήκαι), or by mortgage (ύποθήκαι), or by penalties in case of default (έπιθήκαι), loans upon a deed of sale with power of recovery (ώναί), or loans on note of hand of whatever stringency (όμολογίαι, διαγραφαί, έγγραφήσεις). At the same time such release (lines 53-55) was not to affect the right of the creditor to retain any property or pledge of the debtors of which he had already taken possession, provided no stipulation to the contrary had been made by the creditor either in the original deed (έν-θάδε), or in an after document (έπειτα, lines 54, 55). With respect to the transactions of bankers, whether as lenders or receivers, the decree annuls all transactions before this date, but all transactions after this date are to hold good (lines 55 foll.). I have restored ύπ[ο]στήναι in line 26: έπίτευμα in line 32 must be a blunder or variant for έπιτίμια. This decree is quite a storehouse of Greek financial terms.

This is a decree of the Proconsul of Asia, bearing date probably A.D. 65. For the Proconsul, whose name is lost, succeeded (line 3) L. Antistius Vetus, who was Consul in 55 (Tac. Ann. xiii. 11), and afterwards Proconsul Asiæ (ib. xvi. 10; cp. xiv. 58, 22). Antistius Vetus fell a victim to Nero's hatred in A.D. 65, shortly after returning from his province: his proconsulship may be assigned to 64, and our decree to 65 A.D. The Proconsul had lately had before him a dispute between the Chian envoys and the claimants of some property (ὑπάρχοντα, line 1) left by one Staphylos; the claimants produced a letter of L. Vetus in their favour, though the envoys declared it to be contrary to the constitution of Chios. The new Proconsul at first was inclined to follow the ruling of his predecessor (line 4 foll.). But a careful hearing of both sides has convinced him that L. Vetus had been mistaken; as he finds (1) a sealed and official copy of the SCtum of 80 B.C., which made Chios a libera civitas under Sulla's settlement of Asia (line 11 foll.; cp. Appian, Mithrad. 61; Pliny, N. H. v. 38); and (2) a letter of Augustus to the same effect, dated in his 8th Consulate, B.C. 26. Εἰδικῶς, line 15, is specialiter; τύπη, line 17 = formula, actio, procedure. It was not usual for a civitas sine fœdere immunis et libera (as was Chios) to receive the right of deciding civil suits affecting Roman residents in its native courts: this was a privilege usually reserved for the civitates fœderatæ (see Marquardt, Röm. Alt. iv. p. 347 foll.).
